Foreword

Ours is the privilege to view the pictorial scenes of Pleasant Township, its older inhabitants, and notably the town of Kouts as it progressed in the century from 1865 to 1965.

It has been the privilege of many of us to grow with the community during this time.

May we present to you, our readers, whether presently living here or visiting, our great area, our posterity, those scenes in picture, and those events in narration that vividly portray the lives of our early settlers who were a part in our growth.

We dedicate this book to those early pioneers and to Kouts and the community.

As we egress from the years of five in score may we embark on a hundred more.

Our desire is that the aspirations and progressiveness that has been ours and our forefathers may become a part of our posterity so that this community will remain one of the greatest in this nation of ours.

A Message From The Chairmen:

To our friends and neighbors, to you who are natives here or were born here, we greet you with a most cordial welcome to the celebration of our 100th birthday.

We hope your visit with us will inspire you to wish to return for many more.

The Kouts Centennial Committees and workers, as well as all our citizens of the community, whole heartedly welcome you and in turn want to thank you for being with us on this great occasion.

To each and every one, who contributed in any measure, great or small, in this anniversary program, we say "THANK YOU".

The Centennial Committee extends its sincere appreciation for the untiring efforts of Miss Loretta Lauer in assembling the history of the Centennial Book. We are most fortunate in having her as our historian.

For the most important events on the progress of our community we were ably assisted by important data and photos from our senior citizens, especially from Miss Etta Benkie, Mr. and Mrs. Will Denzine, Mrs. Alta Falls, Burt Hofferth, Mrs. Floyd Nichols, Mrs. Minnie Schreiner, Mrs. Edwina Salzer, and many others.

We are much indebted to Mrs. James Lauer of Crown Point, who so graciously and gratuitously assumed the editing and typing of all the script and properly prepared it for the printers.

To John Schnurlein, our publicity manager, goes the credit for many hours spent in working out the many problems of advertising and building up interest in this, our Centennial.

May the aspirations of our forefathers, namely to maintain a democracy that guaranteed freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of religion and also government, continue and live into our second century.

May we continue to struggle to hold this heritage and in our faith in Almighty God and in our fellow men aspire to continue to uphold these ideals.

We are ever mindful of the sacrifices of our forefathers and for the principles for which they stood.

For this our great heritage and all bountiful blessings, we thank Almighty God.

CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR CENTENNIAL YEAR IN KOUTS

We are pleased to have the honor of celebrating our centennial year with you.

The support and cooperation which we have received from Kouts on the various joint projects and activities is greatly appreciated.

A cordial welcome is extended to our many friends from the Kouts area to attend our centennial celebration during the week of July 21 - 25.

Both of these men are well-known auctioneers, both civic-minded both considerate of the needs of the community.

Just one of their many activities has been auctioneering the Kouts Lions Club Community Auction Sale . . . helping a civic club raise funds for community projects. This is typical of the work they have donated to the betterment of the Kouts area during their residence in Kouts.

These two men spent many, many hours on all phases of the organization of the Kouts Centennial Celebration. . . over and above the usual call of civic duty.

There could not have been two better qualified, more dedicated men chosen to organize the Kouts Centennial Celebration.

Mr. John R. Schnurlein
Publicity Chairman
Kouts Centennial Committee
Kouts, Indiana

Dear Mr. Schnurlein:

We are enclosing excerpts from two Porter County histories.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, referred to in the 1912 account as the "Panhandle" and in the 1882 account as the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railroad, was originally called the Chicago and Great Eastern Railway Company. We have a pamphlet, "Chicago and Great Eastern Railway Company, Chicago & Cincinnati Railroad Company Bonds". In this pamphlet is a date, July 13, 1864. The pamphlet begins thus:

The Chicago and Great Eastern Railway Company, an organization created by a consolidation of a road by that name, organized under the general railroad law of the State of Indiana, with a corporation in the State of Illinois, known as the Galena and Illinois River Railroad Company, the charter of which was passed in 1857, is engaged in the construction of a railroad from LaCrosse, a station upon the Chicago and Cincinnati Railroad, eleven miles south of its northern terminus, to the City of Chicago, and seeks thereby to form a direct line from Chicago to Cincinnati, and also to Baltimore and the East. The Chicago and Great Eastern Railway Company, in pursuit of these objects, have executed a mortgage upon their proposed road...

Kouts is the only village of importance. It is situated about two miles northwest of the center, at the junction of the Erie and Panhandle railroads as already mentioned. This town was laid out by Bernard Kouts, from whom it took its name, about the time the railroad was completed. A post office was established there in 1865, with H. A. Wright as postmaster. Mr. Kouts built the first business building in the town, and the second was built by Brown & Dilley. When the Erie Railroad was built in 1881, Kouts began to grow more rapidly and now has a population of about 500.

Taken from History of Porter County, Indiana, Volume 1, The Lewis Publishing Company 1912 p.163-4.

VILLAGE OF KOUTS--The only town that the township has ever produced is the town of Kouts, situated in the northwestern part, on the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railroad. This town was laid out by B. Kouts and took its name from him. He built the first business block which is now occupied by Dr. L. Atkins. The second business house was built by Brown and Dilley; the third was built by A. Williams. The post office was established here in 1865, with H. A. Wright as Postmaster, who held the office until 1881, when S. E. Douglas, the present incumbent, took charge of the office, which he has held up to the present time. The Chicago & Atlantic Railroad has reached town within the last year, and as Kouts promises to be the only station on either road in the township, its prospects are quite flattering. Counting the floating population brought in by the building of the new railroad, there are perhaps 300 people in the town.

Taken from Counties of Porter and Lake, Indiana, Historical and Biographical. Chicago: F. A. Battey & Co., Publishers. 1882. p.221.

On an 1864 map the town is not listed, although the railroad line is marked.

Although the county histories place the date of the establishment of the post office as 1865, the official records read thus:

Foster. Established July 24, 1866, Peter C. Bonham, first P.M.
Name changed to Kouts Station, May 14, 1867
Name changed to Kout, November 28, 1882
Name changed to Kouts, December 10, 1890

It would seem from the above that the town was layed out some time between July, 1864, and July, 1866. We wish we could pinpoint it more exactly, but perhaps this will help.

Very truly yours,

Louise Wood

Dear Mrs. Kosanke:

Permit me to extend my heartiest congratulations to the people of Kouts on their Centennial celebration. This gala occasion will mark the completion of 100 years of growth and progress, for which local residents should be rightly proud.

On my various visits to Kouts, I have been impressed by many qualities: high caliber public officials, modern educational system, helpful merchants, excellent service organizations, and pleasant residential areas. Few Indiana cities its size present such an attractive, wide awake appearance.

I remember the friendly attitude of the people of Kouts. No matter the occasion, local inhabitants have always made me feel "at home" whenever I called on them, and have been most courteous to me. Surely this is Hoosier hospitality at its best!

To the people of this fine community, I send my best wishes for a most successful centennial celebration and express the hope that the next 100 years will prove to be even more rewarding and eventful. If my official schedule permits, I certainly will be one of those who will come from afar to help join in the joyous festivities next September 3-6.

Dear Mrs. Kosanke:

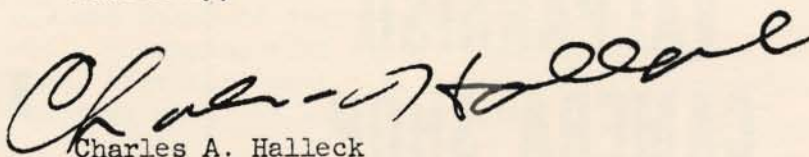

During my time in the Congress of the United States I have watched Kouts grow and prosper into one of the finest small communities in the District it has been my privilege to represent.

As one born in DeMotte and raised in Rensselaer -- which is still my home -- I have a deep and abiding affection for the warmth of friendships that can be developed among neighbors of America's heartland.

While it is a bit difficult for me to project my personal plans too far in advance I would certainly hope it will be possible for me to join with my many friends in Kouts on one of the days of your Centennial Celebration.

Meanwhile, if there is any other way I can be helpful, please let me know.

To Our Good Friends and Neighbors of Kouts:

I welcome this opportunity to extend my warmest greetings and hearty congratulations to the citizens of Kouts, Indiana, upon the occasion of their Centennial Celebration. There is something about a Centennial observance that should warm the heart of every American citizen, and especially those whose ancestors laid the foundations of the community in which they were born.

Much of our Northern Indiana history and development has been made and written during the past one hundred years. When the first settlers came in the early eighteenth century, most, if not all, of the Kankakee basin was still a virgin wilderness. There were no roads and no fences, and the howl of the wolfpack broke the stillness of the midnight hour. Log cabins had to be erected and then the struggle for existence really began. None of us today can really know or understand the hardships these pioneers endured, or the reverses that often threatened their very existence. At such a price the foundations of our present day civilization was laid, and it is well that we remember it in these Centennial Celebrations.

Being a native of North Judson the growth and development of the Kouts community is almost as clear to me as that of my own. In spite of floods, frosts and prairie fires our forebears never gave up the fight, and the railroads came to give them an outlet to the nation's markets. What a wonderful heritage they left for our own generation!

Next year, 1966, our own State of Indiana will celebrate its Sesquicentennial, and I heartily recommend that every community make some appropriate preparation for this historic event. No one can really appreciate the priceless value of our heritage until he knows the cost.

IN MEMORIAM

Since universal draft was passed in October 1940 no attempt has been made to list the soldiers of the Second World War. Many enlisted, others were drafted and Kouts young men served in every branch of the service and in every theater of action. We here pay tribute to our five heroes who gave their lives to further the cause of democracy:

Howard Kneifel
Howard Pumroy

Connie Minton

Barney Bukalski
Frank Peterich

1911 A Memorable Year

It was a hot July afternoon that a large balloon lettered "The Million Population - St. Louis" loomed up in the southwest sky. It was not unexpected for readers of the "Chicago Inter-Ocean" had read that the balloons were being released in Kansas City in a race to see which could go the farthest. With the prevailing winds as they are, one floated over Pleasant Township south-east of Kouts. It was low, in fact, so low a rope from the basket dangled in the corn tassels. The men in the basket tossed out a few sand bags, gained altitude and managed to get a few miles farther but landed on the Reeves Ranch. They gathered up the balloon and an obliging farmer took them to LaCrosse where they entrained on the Pennsylvania R.R. for Chicago.

A remarkable feat in the history of aviation was the first transcontinental flight by Calbraith Perry Rodgers in 1911. He flew a Wright Brothers type EX airplane from Long Island, New York to Long Beach, California in 84 days and 70 hops to win the Hearst $50,000 prize for the first ocean to ocean flight. The plane passed over Kouts following the Erie R.R. approximately 500 feet above the ground at 5:10 P.M. on October 5, 1911. At the same time that the plane flew over, a train with large lettering advertising the flight steamed along the Erie Railroad. The train dropped off a slip of paper which read "Greetings from the Sky". Since George Pumroy was working the second "trick" at the tower, his son Charles Edward and family now have the prized paper.

Mrs. James Kosanke, Secretary,

Kouts, Indiana

Dear Mrs. Kosanke:

It gives me great pleasure to extend congratulations to the town of Kouts as it celebrates it's Centennial. Your thriving, bustling community is an asset to the economy of the State of Indiana.

The state itself is not much older than Kouts. Next year, in 1966, Indiana will observe the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Statehood, and plans are now being made for a Sesquicentennial celebration.

The dates of your Centennial coincide with the dates of the Indiana State Fair, and I cannot, with certainty, say I will be with you at that time. Be assured, however, that if I cannot be there in person, someone will be with you to represent me.

Again congratulations, and may your celebration be an outstanding one.

Very truly yours,

Early Exploration

About the year 1673 Jesuit missionaries, Fathers Claude Allouez and Claude Dablon landed in the lake region that is now Porter County and covered the territory to the Kankakee River.

In the following year Father Jacques Marquette paddled up the Kankakee to its source on his return trip from the Mississippi.

In 1679 a famous band passed down the beautiful river. Robert Cavalier Sieur de LaSalle was the leader and Chevalier de Tonti, the lieutenant. The next spring, LaSalle returned on his way to Frontenac with only three companions and passed through this territory on foot.

In 1711, the natives of this area came under the influence of Father Chardon, a missionary. Many were baptized from his post at St. Joseph, Michigan and because of this the natives were friendly with the French.

Land of Four Flags

In 1759 all of northern Indiana passed into the hands of the British who found their rivals, the French, had greater favor with the Indians. The Indians caused several skirmishes to help the French regain the territory. However, peace prevailed and trading posts were established.

In 1781, the northern part of the territory was invaded by Don Eugenio Pierre who had come from St. Louis to seize the land in the name of the king of Spain. Now the third flag waved over the area which was to be Pleasant Township.

By the treaty of peace made between England and the United States in 1783 following the Revolutionary War, a fourth flag waved. Through the military efforts of William Henry Harrison and his valiant army, the monetary contributions of Frances Vigo and the persuasiveness of Father Gibault, the Northwest Territory which embraces five states became a part of the new nation.

During this time there were very few white settlers in the region which was to become Pleasant Township. The Kankakee region was very valuable for its furs and fish but the white settlers and the natives were farther north because Lake Kankakee, as it was sometimes called, covered most of the southern part of the county.

Congratulations Kouts On Your 100th Birthday

The Fort Wayne Gas Light Company - Northern Indiana Public Service Company's earliest predecessor - was already 13 years old when Kouts was born, and we have been keenly interested in the growth of your fine community ever since.

NIPSCO has had the privilege of serving you with electricity since 1921 and with natural gas for almost five years now. Our area development profile on Kouts published in 1963 -- containing highly valuable and extremely pertinent information for industrial prospects -- was sent throughout the country to assist in your search for new industry.

The next century will be challenging indeed for both NIPSCO and Kouts, and we look forward to sharing in your progress each and every one of these exciting years.

Founding of Township

The Pottawatomies in 1832 ceded to the United States the territory that is now our township.

In 1835 came the sale of Public Lands. This sale was held in the town of LaPorte - a town of log cabins.

During the "general division" April 12, 1836 Pleasant Township was formed. The name was suggested by its location and appearance. The following action of the First Board of Commissioners provided "That the following territory shall constitute a township by the name of Pleasant, commencing at the southeast corner of Porter County, thence north to the northeast corner of Section 1, Township 34, Range 5, thence west to the southern boundary of Washington Township to the southwest of the same, thence south to the Kankakee River, thence east with the same place of beginning."

In July 1836, a county road was established from the quarter post on the north line of Section 30 Township 35 Range 5 to Sherwood Ferry on the Kankakee. This was probably one of the first planned roads of the new township.

Joseph Stearns and John Ship obtained a license in March 1837 to keep this ferry across the Kankakee.

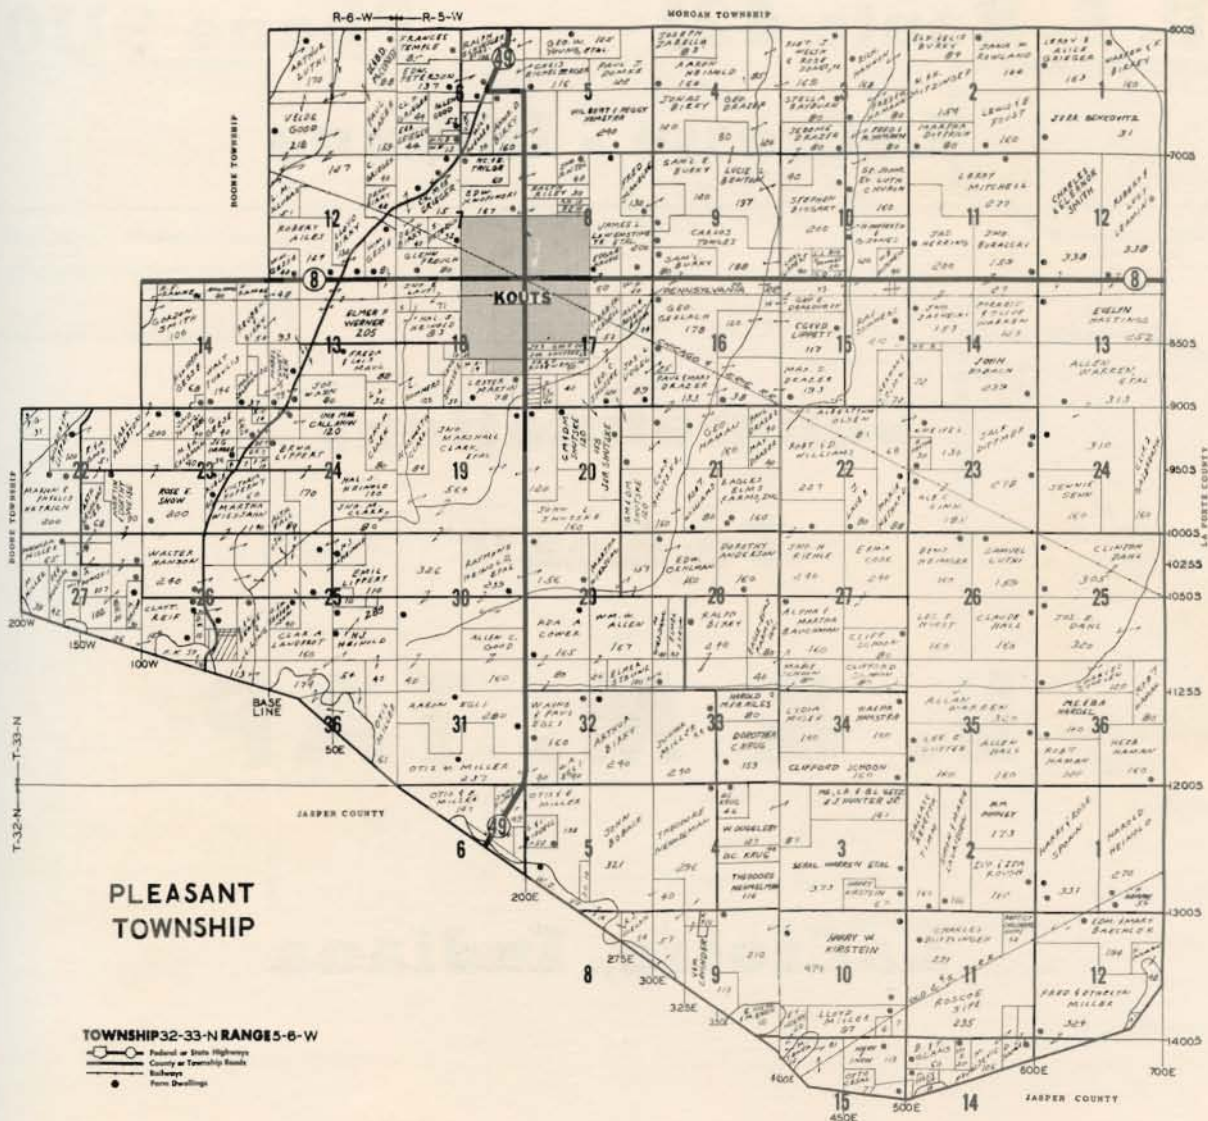

During the March 1841 meeting of the County Board of Commissioners, Morgan and Porter Townships were taken from the north side of then Pleasant Township, as well as Boone Township from the west side leaving an area of approximately 58 square miles. Pleasant Township still remains the largest township in the county.

Crooked Creek flows southward through the center of the township and Sandy Hook Creek along the western border, both emptying into the Kankakee River.

John Sherwood was the first white settler in the township, coming here with his family in 1834. During the next two years William Trinkle, John Jones, Henry and John Adams, William and Enoch Billings, John and Joseph Bartholomew, Martin Reed, Morris and James Witham, Lewis Comer, Charles Allen, Luke Asher, Hise Coghill, Oliver Coles, Berrier and others were added to the population. The first election for township officer - a justice of peace only - was held at the house of Henry Adams on April 30, 1836 when eleven votes were polled. Lewis Comer was elected unanimously and became the first justice of the peace.

The first birth was that of Henry, son of William and Gillie Ann Trinkle, December 2, 1835. The first marriage was that of a Miss Jones to Alexander Wright about 1839, and the first death was that of Jeremiah, son of John Sherwood.

Naming of Kouts

As the word "No" has often changed the destiny of nations and of men, so the word "No" played an important part in the naming of Kouts as the following story attests:

When the surveyors for the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis Railroad were working in the township they looked for a place to stay. There was no town in the vicinity but there was a home one and one-half miles west of the present location of Kouts occupied by the Trinkle family. Since Mrs. Trinkle was busy making apple butter, a project conducted out in the yard that required constant stirring and adding apples until it was of the proper consistency, refused of necessity. The strangers pushed on eastward and the gracious hospitality of Mrs. Kouts who took the men as boarders resulted in its name.

The men designated this spot for a station and it was named Kouts Station. Later the town was laid out around this station with the horse driven coal docks and water tower located east of the present Pennsylvania depot and Maple Street on the north side of the tracks.

In May 1867 it became Kout's Station with Hillary Wright as Postmaster who served till 1881; in November 1882 Kout and on December 10, 1890 it was changed to Kouts as the name is now. Previous to this, mail was brought into the area on horseback from Valparaiso via Tassinong, a trading post located in Morgan Township. This trading post consisted of several stores, two blacksmith shops, a shoe shop, a school, and a Presbyterian Church built for the use of people of all denominations. A bronze marker today shows the location of Tassinong.

The Bank

The Bank of Kouts was built in 1903 with living quarters upstairs for the cashier. Robert Parker of Remington, Jasper County, was president and L. W. Shaffner was cashier. On January 8, 1909 it closed its doors. A representative of the state auditor took charge of the institution. Some of the citizens of Kouts purchased the building and organized the Porter County Bank which opened for business on July 31, 1909. Most of the stock in this bank was held by local men and its management was in the hands of well known citizens H. A. Wright, president; J. J. Overmyer, vice-president and P. O. Norris, cashier. The capital stock was $15,000 and the bank had deposits of $105,000.

In January 1919 it changed to a state bank and the name changed to Porter County State Bank with P. H. McCormick of North Judson as president and Charles Cannon cashier.

On April 11, 1927 the bank closed in receivership. During the time it was closed the apartment was rented to families needing living quarters and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Danielson lived in the bank proper, where Mrs. Danielson, the former Lucille Redelman, operated a beauty parlor.

On August 25, 1945 the present Kouts State Bank was organized with H. F. Kosanke as president and a starting capital of $35,000. The cashier then was D. D. McQuaig.

In 1961 the bank building was completely renovated and modernized. The exterior was sand blasted, the trim painted, the apartment upstairs and the bank remodeled and up-dated to present day needs.

There are seven employees and the present president is Art Trede, vice-president is Ernest Thormahlen, cashier is Mrs. Bessie Kneisley, and assistant cashier is Mrs. Elizabeth Birky.

The lot and building south of the bank was purchased and the building razed in 1964 which was another improvement.

The Kouts Family

(Originally spelled Kautz)

The late Barnhardt Kouts, who was the principal representative of the family here for half a century, was a native of the state of Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1835, a son of Barnhardt and Salome Kouts. Their parents were both born in Germany, and brought with them to this country those sterling qualities which are so often associated with the German stock. The Kouts family were among the pioneers of Porter County, having located here before the railroad era and helping in the development of the resources of the country. Son Barnhardt Kouts married a Bridget Neal, a native of England, who died only a year or so after their marriage. He later wedded Mrs. Henrietta Eadus. Mrs. Henrietta Kouts, a kindly woman and highly honored resident of Porter County was born in this county, and was the daughter of John W. and Elizabeth (Shuey) Wright. John W. Wright, the father of Mrs. Kouts, was a progressive and public-spirited citizen and his name adorns the history of the bench and bar of Porter County. He also served in the offices of sheriff and county treasurer. Besides Henrietta, the other children of his family were: Nancy, who became the wife of Albert Spencer; Elizabeth Crawford; Ann J. Hall; and Hilary, who was a hardware merchant and president of the bank at Kouts.

After his marriage, Barnhardt Kouts located in the town of Kouts. Before the construction of the railroad through this point he was engaged in farming, but with the coming of the railroad he and his brother-in-law, H. A. Wright, established the first store and built the first house on the new townsite. Beginning with a small stock of groceries, they developed their trade throughout all the surrounding country, and Mr. Kouts would make regular trips to Philadelphia to buy his stock and brought into the store, goods to the value of as much as five thousand dollars at a time. For sixteen years during his career as merchant he also acted as agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad, but finally his increasing business obliged him to give up this position. The partnership was finally dissolved, and Mr. Kouts then erected a two-story building in which he continued his business. On January 1, 1893, a fire that originated in adjoining buildings wiped out his own property with a loss of eight thousand dollars, which was total since he had neglected to renew his recently expired insurance. This disaster was not sufficient to discourage a man of his character, and he at once resumed business in the little store rooms where he had begun his career as a merchant, and with the encouragement of his wife was soon rapidly recovering from his losses. Afterwards, on a prominent corner in the center of town he erected the first brick business building in Kouts. This building located next to the bank was razed in 1964. Barnhardt Kouts was in the past, one of the most prosperous and influential merchants and citizens.

One son, Leon B., was born to Mr. and Mrs. Kouts. Leon Kouts was one of the progressive young farmers of this vicinity. He was married to Miss Jessie Miller and they were the parents of three children - Kenneth Wright, Katy B. and Edith. Katy died when seven years old and Edith at the age of eight months. On the evening of November 12, 1911, in the midst of a hard wind storm, Mr. Kouts with his little son set out to carry a pail of milk to his mother's home, and on the way a limb torn from a tree by the violence of the wind, struck him on the head and resulted in his death. The sudden death of this rising and influential citizen was a shock to the community in which he had been reared, and he left many friends to grieve over his loss. Leon's only descendant, Kenneth Kouts, resides in Crown Point and conducts a business in Hebron.

Hilary Wright - Hay Press and Hay Barn

With the dissolution of the Kouts-Wright partnership Hilary Wright operated the Hay Press and Hay Barn on the plot of ground where the Bill Small's now live. The wild marsh hay was pressed, generally in the field by horse power, and brought here to be stored until shipped to Chicago as feed for the horses that pulled the street cars. A little track was built from the hay barn to the Pennsylvania main line and the loaded cars were pushed by hand. Since this work was seasonal the empty hay barn became at times a center for social gatherings in the town's infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright and daughters Shirley (Anna), Edna and Muse lived in a home they built in Wright's Addition on the corner where Kosanke's Bottled Gas business is located. With the construction of the Chicago and Atlantic Railroad in 1881 they sold this first home to P. F. Fredericks who dealt in nursery supplies and built a new home farther east in their addition. This home is owned and occupied by the Lloyd Berndts.

With the completion of the Erie Mr. Wright sold his hay barn near the Pennsylvania to George Wilcox and built a business office and scales, a hay barn and grain elevator along the Erie. The office stood in what is now Williams front yard, the elevator where the Standard Oil tanks are, and the hay barn farther east. Grain was hauled to the elevator in double box wagons with side boards but in grain sacks that held 2 and 2-1/2 bushels. These grain sacks were in need of repairing and washing which was another household chore. The elevator was destroyed by fire November 5, 1901 and Mr. Wright bought out Bob Arnold's hardware and lumber business and moved his office there. In this venture he was assisted by his son-in-law Walter Bush (Muse's husband) and continued there until his retirement. Mr. Wright was always active in civic affairs and his integrity was much admired by all who knew him. Truly he was the "Grand Old Man of Kouts".

In this area the only direct descendant of the Wright family is Mrs. Nelson Metherd, a granddaughter, who lives southeast of Kouts on a farm.

The hardware and lumber business operated by Wright is presently owned by Richard Chael and is the Kouts Lumber Company.

The first Wright home sold to Fredericks was made into a hotel and around the mid 1890's it was sold to Herman Behrends who with his wife and family came from Chicago. It was known as the Behrends Hotel for about a quarter of a century. With the widening of Main Street and the building of sidewalks and the aging of the operators, the hotel business was discontinued and the building sold to Paul Wells. He had it moved a short distance to the east and made into apartments. As such it served until it was razed by Kosanke to make a parking lot to serve the funeral home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Chael

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Chael and five children, Henry and Herman, Lena, Caroline and Minnie, came from Mechlenburg, Germany in 1883 and stopped in Denham, Indiana. On hearing that work could be had in Kouts they moved here in June 1884 and the father went to work on the Pennsylvania section and later at the coal docks where he was employed until 70 years of age. Frederick, Martha and Erma were born in Kouts. This family is unique in that all the living members of the second generation are still in the town and several of the third and even the fourth generation are here. The son, Herman, went to work for Grant Hayes, a blacksmith, with a shop on the southeast corner of Main and Alice Streets - then the east end of town. Grant Hayes moved to Tennessee to do blacksmithing and Herman maintained the shop. Hayes decided Kouts was best and returned. By 1917 Hayes sold his shop, the main part to Carl Peters and the back part to Chael who moved it to the present location, and for 45 years carried on a general repair shop in the lot next to his home bought at the time of his marriage to Carrie Schroeder. When he started the business it was fixing buggies and wagons and plows; through the years it changed to tractors, autos, combines, and even airplanes. Folks within an area of 25 miles knew of his work and his willingness to try to fix anything and how he always succeeded. Widows and children never had to pay. His oldest son, Harold, now has taken over the business. One of the oldest pieces of equipment in the shop is the forge which stands in the center and is one of the few forges left in this part of the country.

Another son, Richard, owns and operates the Kouts Lumber Company which was begun in the 1880's by Will Arnold who sold out to Hilary Wright.

Herman Rosenbaum Store

In 1874 the Herman Rosenbaum family - the wife 4 sons and 4 daughters came to town from Brems, Indiana, and built a general store on a street running parallel to the railroad on the plot where the Cities Service Station used to be. This was a two story building and the family lived upstairs until prosperity prompted them to build a spacious home on what is now State Road 8. Here they purchased over 12 acres of land from Kruells in the early 1890's. They sold this area to interested buyers for home sites in acre sized lots, which much of it is today except for the McKinney Addition that has 9 homes built on 2 acres served by a dead end street. This Rosenbaum home was destroyed by fire on March 7, 1936 and today Mrs. Viola Francis lives in a home built recently on the lot.

With the passing of Herman Rosenbaum the store was operated by members of the family, a son, William, and daughter, Adeline, until the 1930's. Adjacent to the store on the east was a salt shed where customers bought salt by the barrel. Later in the teens it was used as Levy's Dress Shop where power driven sewing machines operated by local women made dresses for both wholesale and retail.

Besides groceries, Rosenbaums also sold a fine quality of dry goods, men's clothing, even dress suits, shoes, clocks, and hardware, truly a general store.

As you will read in the Kosanke history Mr. Ewalt Kosanke's first furniture shop was sold and moved to make way for a larger business building.

Rosenbaum's bought it and located it just across the street west from their general store and here the three sons had turns at operating a hardware business-- first by Fred, then by Frank, and lastly by Gus.

None of the original family are living today.

In this centennial year a daughter-in-law Mrs. Frank Rosenbaum, a grandson Fred Rosenbaum, two granddaughters Ruth Rosenbaum Struve, Alice Rosenbaum Goodpasture, three great grandsons Dean, Dale and Robert Rosenbaum, and a great granddaughter Drelah Rosenbaum perpetuate the name in the town.

In this period, going east on the street from Rosenbaum's Store, Johnnie Hall had a saloon with a most uncommon sign made by the civil engineers that were working for the Pennsylvania Railroad. It was shaped like an old fashioned bee hive and lettered with this poem;

In this hive we're all alive
Good liquors make you funny
If you're dry; come in and try
Good liquors for your money.

Michael J. O'Brien

In 1883, Mike O'Brien and family moved to Kouts from Valparaiso and opened a grocery store on the present site of the Town Hall. John Welsh of Marshall Grove helped finance the two story building. The first floor was a grocery store. Coffee, sugar, flour, cereals, salt, crackers, etc. were measured out of the barrels and sold to customers in desired poundage. The candy in pails and store cookies in big boxes with isingglass windows were so tempting to farm children who got to town rarely. But the most fascinating thing in the O'Brien store was the cuckoo clock and happy was the child who could linger there until the noon hour. Our modern noon whistle has no such charm.

The O'Brien family lived in the home now occupied by the Floyd Kerlinska family. A son, Frank, succeeded his father in business. He and his wife, the former, Mayme Hannon of Marshall Grove, built and resided in a home back of the store now occupied by Laura and Emil Pulaski. They graciously served satisfied customers until 1916 when they sold their business to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Luers of Rensselaer. The second floor of the building known as O'Brien's Hall, served as a meeting place for the lodges, social functions, high school classes and for a period of time as a Methodist Church. The hall was reached by an outside stairs on the west side of the building, while the land west of the building was taken up with hitching racks.

A son James (Jim) O'Brien built the store now owned by Hiatt and for a time ran a grocery store. Later he became the Kouts postmaster. The surviving O'Briens, Agnes Merry, Bertha Rennebaum, Sophia Cotton, and the O'Brien twins, Leo and Louis, now live in California.

August Hofferth

Another business man that served Kouts and surrounding territory for over seven decades and bridged the two centuries is that of August Hofferth and sons Burt and Emil.

August's brother, John, immigrated from Germany to Kouts in the early 1880's. There was work to be had in Kouts so he sent word to August to come. Not only did August Hofferth come but he brought two more worthy Augusts - Honehouse and Wandrey - both names still found in Kouts.

August Hofferth had been trained as a brickmason and learned plastering so he was always busy in the growing town and farm community. He married

Theresa Wittenberg who had come to the township with her parents from Germany in the 1860's. He built the cement plant in 1906 and was helped in the business by his sons. Besides block stones the Hofferths also made burial vaults and for a time concrete tile. At one time in the operation of the plant, machinery was installed that enabled them to turn out 5 blocks a minute. Due to a lessening demand they quit making block stones in 1946 and in 1958 the Hofferth Brothers sold out to John Rogowski whose Kouts Building and Supply business is located a block farther east. The building that housed the cement plant was bought and remodeled to be used by the Kouts Cabinets operated by Ralph Birky and

Besides the sons Burt and Emil, there were two daughters, Hattie and Alta. The former married Ed Rosenbaum, that genial never to be forgotten rural mail carrier, and their daughter LaVerne Sommers is active in the community life and serves as a relief rural carrier.

In 1934 Burt Hofferth started in the insurance business as a side line and today is kept busy with its demands, while Emil is still called upon and on occasions lays up with his skilled hands an attractive stone or brick front or fireplace. Burt, too, served the community as postmaster from 1913 to 1921.

James Hodgins

No early history of Kouts would be complete without giving recognition to James Hodgins, since his legacy to the community is occupied by the present school plant and grounds. Mr. Hodgins came to Kouts from Canada, his birthplace, where he had been a teacher, and in 1881 purchased 39.64 acres of land in the southeast part of Kouts from Barnabas and Henrietta Kouts for $2000. Just as Barnhart Kouts and Hilary Wright were brothers-in-law (Mrs. Kouts was Henrietta Wright), so were Hilary Wright and James Hodgins brothers-in-law, as their wives were Susan and Maria Maxwell. Mr. Hodgins had a hay press and was an implement dealer. Mr. and Mrs. Hodgins always kept boarders and roomers too, and built the spacious home where Grace Cannon presently resides for that purpose, and at the time there were only two other houses on that side of the street south of them. A Mr. Grogert lived in the Hazel Hofferth house and Mr. Theil where the senior Fred Rosenbaum home is now. Around the turn of the century several families and individuals went to North Dakota to homestead. Mr. Hodgins joined in the Great Migration but stayed only two years. It was too rugged and Mrs. Hodgins didn't choose to go. Although James Hodgins was born in Canada and never became a citizen of the United States, his zeal in promoting the Fourth of July celebration could not have been more intense were he a descendant of a D.A.R. However, he was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. Mr. Hodgins was a very versatile person serving as Justice of the Peace performing marriages and on rare occasions conducted funerals in the absence of a minister. Another talent lay in his ability to direct a band and deliver a good address.

The location of the present Legion Hall was determined by the gift of the land to them if they would erect a hall upon it - if not it would revert to the Hodgins estate.

His kindness and generosity to the children of his era is held in grateful remembrance by all the senior citizens whose memory reaches back to "Uncle Jim" as he was fondly called.

Railroad in the 1860's.

Mr. Benkie, a pharmacist with experience both in Wanatah and Chicago, bought the building just south of the Erie Railroad from Dr. McKee who left Kouts to practice in Chicago. When Benkies first came to Kouts they lived in a cottage where the Heinold Elevator garage is now, and in 1895 built a large home on the same street with Kosankes and next door to the Rosenbaum home. (The cottage was moved out on 49 and incorporated in the Doyne Stewart home.)

A son, Raymond, and daughter, Louise, were born here. In 1900 Mr. Benkie enlarged the drug store and it housed the first telephone exchange Kouts had of only twenty subscribers. In 1918 a new front was added and in 1925 an addition was built on the back bringing the building to its present size and appearance. After a course in pharmaceutical school Raymond joined his father in the business, and he and his sister, Etta, operated the drug store alone after the father's death in 1939, and until Raymond's death in 1950, when the business was sold to Louis and Dorothy Marquardt. The building still owned by the Benkies is rented by the Jorgensen Heating and Sheet Metal.

Housing the first telephone exchange in his store as Mr. Benkie did, cast its spell on one of his family. Louise served as an operator for over thirty years both in Kouts and later in Valparaiso as the Kouts office was closed by automation. Louise retired in 1963 and she and Etta occupy the family home maintaining an active and ever friendly interest in the community.

Charles W. Betterton, Sr.

Another family that gave Kouts an early business man was that of Charles W. Betterton, Sr., who with his wife Christinia and family of two sons, William J., and Charles W. Jr., and two daughters, Emily and Margaret, came to the Kouts area from New Albany, Indiana shortly after the end of the Civil War. The Betterton family originated in England where there is a town by that name. They settled on a farm on the Baum's Bridge Road, across and a little north of the Elmer Werner home. Mr. Betterton was a cabinet maker and it is the two sons that had a share in Kouts history. Charles, Jr. was a salesman for J. I. Case machinery and a talented musician of whose skill and contribution you have or shall read in another chapter. His son, Jesse Oatman Betterton, was the first and only graduate of Kouts High School in 1900. This family moved to Omaha, Nebraska and Kouts' first graduate went on to finish college as a mining engineer.

William J. Betterton married Margaret Lauer around 1884 and at first they lived on a farm near Baum's Bridge. During this era he served as township assessor. Through the years ten children, three daughters and seven sons, were born, one son dying in infancy. Leaving the Baum's Bridge area they moved to English Lake where he had a general store. From English Lake they moved to the town of Kouts, buying the George Trumblee property on the south end of Main Street, the house now occupied by Leonard Good. For a decade he conducted a general store, groceries, dry goods, hardware, etc. in the building on the west side of Main Street next to Kosanke's Store. Prior to this, Charles W. had a feed grinding store on the site of the Rock residence.

After selling his grocery business Will Betterton operated a saw mill and feed grinding service on the area west of the home about where the Vance William's home is now, as that street was not yet opened. From 1914 to 1918 he served as trustee of Pleasant Township and at the same time owned and operated a large steam threshing machine and separator, so large it required thirty to thirty-five men to feed the separator's hungry maw and haul away the grain to the elevator.

Their son, Joe, was one of the crew of the battleship "Kansas" with the United State Navy when the fleet was sent around the world in 1908 during the Theodore Roosevelt administration. This fleet stopped at all the important seaports of the world and was the first intimation of our power.

Another son, Jack, was always in demand as a garage mechanic as was Pete for carpenter work.

The two living members of the family are a daughter, Mary, in Florida, and a son, Oley, who devoted his life to teaching with only time out for service with the navy in World War I. He is a retired principal and resides in Porter, Indiana.

Ewalt Kosanke

A continuous successful business in its third generation is that of Kosankes Funeral Home, having been established in 1882 by Ewalt Kosanke who came here from Wanatah with his wife and here reared a family of three sons, Herman, William, and Edward, and two daughters, Nettie (Humphrey) and Laura (Wolf).

Ewalt built a small building on the present site of Keehns Hardware, and there made furniture by hand and repaired broken furniture for his customers. They lived in a cottage just south of the furniture store. When Mr. Key another village blacksmith died, a mortician, Mr. LaPell, had to come from Valparaiso to take care of the funeral. The distance was so great that Mr. LaPell urged Ewalt Kosanke to take up undertaking in conjunction with his furniture making. He complied and later the three sons followed the same profession.

A larger building was needed so the first shop was moved down Main Street to the site of the I.G.A. parking lot and there Gus Rosenbaum, son of Herman, had a hardware store.

When Kosankes built the larger building it was a two story structure. In this building was a thriving furniture and undertaking business. A cyclone damaged the building badly in 1917 and again in 1935. In 1935 they removed the second story. In the early 1900's Ewalt built a large home where the Kosankes Funeral Home is now. With added improvements of the funeral chapel in 1941, more improvements in 1960 and again in 1964, Kouts boasts a funeral home whose facilities and gracious, kindly service ranks with the best in the state. James Kosanke, grandson of Ewalt and son of Edward, is in charge of the business and lives in the original home modernized and styled for years to come.

George Frederick Wolbrandt

George Frederick Wolbrandt, his wife Louise and family of four sons and four daughters, came here from Des Plaines, Illinois before 1870. When he came from Germany where he had driven a stage coach between Mechlenburg and Berlin is unknown.

Wolbrandts bought the Simon Witham farm which today includes the southwest subdivision. Since his boys did not want to farm, he sold it August 1, 1870 and bought the tavern on Mentor St. east of Rosenbaum's Store. The tavern was a boarding and rooming house with a bar.

The older Germans say they took in and cared for all early immigrants who had no place to stay. Meantime they helped them find work and adjust to life here. Mrs. Wolbrandt was a midwife who cheerfully helped all who needed her and cared for the family doing all household tasks.

In the mid 1880's they sold the tavern to Knolls who came from Medaryville. Mr. Wolbrandt then had a meat market on West Mentor St. in the area between the Danford and Neuffer homes. With business discontinued there he rented the first Barney Kouts building on the west side of Main St. and there had a meat market.

Three sons, Fred, Charles, and George, all went to work on the railroad, the former as an operator at the tower and the other two as signal maintainers. August went to Jasper County where he farmed.

The daughters married and descendants of three of them are Kouts residents today: Minnie's (Mrs. Dan Metherd) daughter, Mrs. Lillie Nichols and her son Herbert; Emma's (Mrs. Henry Herring) son Jim Herring who operated The Kouts Inn, grandchildren, Cecil and Gene Wise, and the four daughters of Lee Herring, as well as Sophia's (Mrs. Keehn) grandson, Jack Keehn, who operated the hardware store until February of this year.

The Hunter's Home and Hotel and Saloon

George Glissman

George Glissman was born in 1840 in Schleswig-Holstein, then a part of the kingdom of Denmark but since 1864 belonging to Germany. When he left his home in 1861 for America he came directly to Porter County. Two sisters, Anna and Dora, also came; the former married and moved to Iowa, while the latter married Benjamin Hine and has descendants in the county.

George married Anna Hurst and they lived north of Kouts where the Knopinski farm is now. (Their two grandchildren, Arthur Glissman and Henrietta Viola Hilding, furnished information and pictures for our Centennial book.)

After his first wife's death Mr. Glissman married Elizabeth Teut (Tight) in 1875 and it is thought they then had the hotel on the present site of the town water tank. It was known as "The Central House" until 1900 but later as "The Hunters Home." It was a large hotel providing board, lodging, and a bar. George and Elizabeth had four children but the only descendants are children of Henry and Barbara (Misch) Glissman none of whom live in Kouts. Henry died in December 1963.

It was to this hotel hunters flocked during the hunting seasons. It was in close proximity to the railroad stations where accommodation trains arrived and departed four times daily in each direction.

In addition Mr. Glissman kept a kennel of hunting dogs for the use of his customers who returned regularly to enjoy the abundance of game in the Kankakee River area. Too, he had an ice house where ice cut on the river was stored not only for his own use but to sell.

The draining of the river closed out the hotel business and Mr. Glissman died there in 1914. After his death the building was used as a two family dwelling part time and as a storage place. In 1923 or 1924, while occupied by the Herring family, it was destroyed by fire.

Fred Perry

Undoubtedly the most varied and longest business career can be claimed by Fred Perry who came from Valparaiso to Kouts in 1902. He was of French Canadian ancestry, the name originally spelled Pare'. Fred went to work in Sed Unruh's bakery on Main Street. In 1904 he took two important steps - he married Olive Wyant and bought the bakery shop and business and both ventures were successful. They had two sons, Theodore and Kenneth, both deceased, and a daughter, Janet Hilliard. Mr. and Mrs. Perry celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary September 26, 1964. Good fortune prompted "Bake" as he was commonly called to buy the building and land from H. V. Deopker next north to Kosanke's Furniture Store. With the opening of Will Street (named after Will Betterton) in 1916, Mr. Perry moved the building, faced it south on Will Street (now Claussen's home site), remodeled and opened the Gem Theatre. With the bakery and theatre, Mr. Perry had help from two local young men, Delbert Hicken at the theatre and Vaughn Lane at the bakery. The theatre was a real boon to the town - admission was a nickel and because of a queer quirk in the film circuit, the best movies were shown in Kouts even before they were shown in Chicago. The silent movies had musical accompaniment played on the piano by Edith Porter Knoll succeeded by J. Raymond Benkie. With the advent of talking pictures that feature was added. Charlie Cannon and George Hanaway were so persistent in their demands for buying the theatre that in 1920 Mr. Perry yielded and went to Remington, Indiana where he acquired the show house there. Loneliness for Kouts and environs brought them back in less than a year. Mr. Perry then went to work with Turner Eadus as contractor and together they built gravel roads around Otis, Chesterton and Lake Eliza. In 1927 the depression left the road builders broke financially but not in willingness to work. At this time Mr. Perry bought out Theodore Pletsch, the baker who had come to Kouts in 1921 and was located in the building on the east side of Main Street now occupied by the Alcoa Aluminum where he conducted the business until 1932 when he bought the restaurant from Caroline Hamann and then ran both bakery and restaurant.

With better roads, bread trucks, and the Depression which forced many to do their own baking, Mr. Perry discontinued baking but retained the restaurant.

In 1942 he accepted a position with the Alcoholic Beverage Board and served on it until 1956.

In 1944 he leased the restaurant for three years and in that time there were three restaurateurs, Frank Green, Willard Sutter and Paul Martin.

Janet Perry Hilliard and her husband John took charge in 1947. Due to increased business more space was needed and in 1957 an attractive dining room was added. This feature accommodates family dinners, parties, and weddings, and the restaurant now provides employment for twenty people.

Prior to failing health, Mr. Perry was on hand with his friendly and genial manner to greet the hungry and bid them welcome, a service that is now missed.

Mrs. Margaret Williams

Mrs. Margaret Williams, affectionately called "Aunt Margaret" by her customers still living in the town today, had a little grocery store built north of the Pennsylvania Railroad and on the west side of the street. These customers with a touch of nostalgia tell that Aunt Margaret had the "best candy" and that she was so understanding, patient, and helpful while each made his choice - that precious penny must be wisely spent. These same patrons too fondly recall how she and Mrs. Nancy Shuey sat enjoying their rocking chairs, smoking their clay pipes and discussing items of local interest in the interim between customers. This store was moved a little to the south and incorporated in Hiatt's Plumbing Shop.

Next to O'Brien's store Aunt Liza Fay lived in and operated the "Cottage Inn" where she roomed and boarded the salesmen known as "drummers" who traveled by train and solicited orders from the business men.

Early Names

In the early history of Kouts and Pleasant Township three large ethnic groups have dominated the population.

The Irish are represented by the names: Anderson, Barry, Bartholomew, Best, Biggart, Burke, Callahan, Cannon, Casey, Clark, Dwyer, Grffith, Hannon, Maxwell, McCarthy, McNeff, O'Brien, Quirk, Ryan, Smith, Walsh and Welsh.

The Germans were predominant and history records the names of: Behrends, Benkie, Chael, Coleman, Denzine, Gesse, Gramps, Heimberg, Herring, Hofferth, Honehouse, Jarnecke, Klemm, Kneifel, Krueger, Kosanke, Kouts, Kruell, Lauer, Miller Neuschafer, Pontow, Reinke, Steiner, Trinkle, Wandrey, Weise, and Wolbrandt.

The Polish names are: Baranowski, Cincoski, Diskavish, Drazer, Lapelski, Knopinski, Mishnick, Mroz, Pulaski, Radilyack and Shutske are representative of their group.

Not classified under the three groups above are: Asher, Betterton, Berrier, Brown, Childers, Crawford, Douglas, Hall, Meadows, Morrison, Spencer, Shuey, and Stoddard.

The building of the Pennsylvania with its opportunity for work in the very early settling of Kouts followed by the construction of the Chicago and Atlantic in 1881 drew many people to Kouts. Several worked on the railroads until they accumulated enough to buy a little land; really their main objective; to own a farm rather than work on the railroad. When both railroads double tracked still more work was available.

Not all names included in the ethnic groups were employed on the railroad for some sought employment on farms and saved until they, too, could buy a few acres of their own. With hard and persevering work those few acres have grown to prosperous farms.

The Reeves Ranch

An early ranch formed of 5500 acres in the eastern part of Pleasant Township and western part of Dewey Township, LaPorte County, was known as the Reeves Ranch, from the name of the first owner Arthur Reeves of Richmond, Indiana. Lee G. Howell followed by Frank Wood were first managers of the ranch and lived in the managerial home recently vacated (Feb. 27, 1965) by the Rudy Dolezal family.

With the death of Arthur Reeves the ranch was inherited by his aged mother, Mrs. Mark E. Reeves, who turned over the responsibilities to her son-in-law William Dudley Foulke. In 1910 for lack of competent management the ranch was offered for sale at $75 an acre but there were no takers.

Then Mr. Foulke appealed to the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D.C. for help in finding a manager. The Department recommended J. A. Warren of Nebraska who was on a leave of absence due to illness. In 1911 with return to health, Mr. Warren was back at work as Consulting Agriculturist for the Holly Sugar Beet Co. of Holly, Colorado. He accepted the offer to manage the ranch on a trial basis, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren and family moved here from Nebraska.

In 1911 the Grasmere Land Company was formed with directors Mrs. Foulke, A. D. Gayle, and J. A. Warren; Mrs. Foulke's sons-in-law Dr. Urey, Cates, Gayle, Hughes, and Morrison were stock holders, as were the directors.

Just before the Depression some of the ranch was sold as individual farms but returned for lack of payments.

When Mr. Warren retired in 1941, Wilbur Coultas became manager of the ranch until 1944 when it was again sold out in farms. Mr. Warren purchased the home place where he returned to live, the Fred Deli, Dick Deli, Neal Pumroy, and Elliott Warren farms. Elliott later purchased his farm. Other farms carved from the ranch are those of Forest Warren, Hefners, Warren Birky, Norbert Dolezal, Hastings, Dr. Jack Dittmer, Albert Sinn, and Jake Galbreath.

A daughter, Mrs. Myrna Warren Tuesberg, lives in Kouts.

Gustave Kosanke Family Home

Gustave Kosanke and family came to Kouts from Wanatah at the same time his brother Ewalt did. He opened the first meat market in a building on the present location of Hilliards Restaurant and lived in the house just north of the store. In this family were four sons, Otto, Julius, Fred and Henry, and three daughters, Elsie, Lenora and Louise, none of whom are now living in the area.

Gus, as he was known, drove through the country with horse and buggy, bargaining with the farmers for animals which he killed at a slaughter house west of town adjacent to the Ira Dye property. They, too, built a big home on the street across from the Rosenbaum home, presently occupied by the Milford Fox family. Gus was succeeded in business by his son Henry (Hank) who operated the store till 1916. He sold out to William Resh from Boone Grove and moved to Argos, Indiana.

William Abraham

Wilhelm Carl Abraham was born in Ruheim Province Posen, Germany in 1842 and came to America in 1866. He first located in Jasper County but came to Kouts in 1868. Here he married Louisa Schwanke in 1871 and in 1872 became a naturalized citizen.

They owned five lots on the corner of Kouts and Pulaski St. just north of the Pennsylvania where they built a home. Mr. Abraham bought and sold hay and horses and dealt in coal. The coal sheds were between the old Kouts Elevator and stockyards along the Pennsylvania R.R. On the home property he operated a sawmill and cider press during a period of time. He, too, built a blacksmith shop in the same area which he rented to Grant Hayes until Hayes built his own shop on the southeast corner of Main and Elizabeth St.

After the death of his first wife Mr. Abraham married Lena Jahnz and to this union four children were born, none of whom live in Kouts. The original home was destroyed by fire in 1907 and a second home built to the east of the old site.

Henry Herring

Henry Herring had a business before 1900 with little or no competition -- that of dredging and house moving. Now you know how the buildings that didn't burn got moved to a new location.

Early Historical Events

Three events in Kouts and environs were publicized in the Chicago paper prior to 1900.

In September 1887 a Chicago and Atlantic passenger train was standing at Sandy Hook Ditch taking water when a Wabash freight train smashed into it, telescoping the passenger train. No one knows how many were killed but the injured were brought to the old Kouts Hotel on the east side of Main Street operated by Millers. Every room was filled and the town women, Mrs. Henry Herring, Mrs. George Wolbrandt and daughter, Minnie, Mrs. Henrietta Kouts, and Mrs. Ben Anderson, went in and cheerfully helped in caring for them until they were again able to travel to their homes. One case was especially pathetic - that of a young boy whose parents died at the scene of the wreck. The railroad company wanted the Millers to keep him and they would repay them generously. Since Mr. Miller was a Civil War veteran and then an old man, he could not accept such responsibility. Litigation following the wreck caused the bankruptcy of the Chicago Atlantic Railroad. Thereafter, the road bed and rolling stock were taken over by the Erie.

Another news item was shrouded in mystery. A "wild man" was living in the vicinity. He made an awful noise terrorizing the people and dogs. Possees were formed to search for him during the day in the woods and marshes. Young men did their courting in the daytime and no one was out after dark save the "wild man" and his accomplices. After several months of terror it disappeared quite coincidentally with the young men going to work in distant places.

Then on March 31, 1889 the worlds featherweight boxing championship match fight took place in O'Brien's Hall. Prize fighting was outlawed in Chicago and through the influence of some Kouts citizens with Chicago connections the fight was brought to Kouts. Arrangements were carefully made - the justice of peace was taken for a ride to Valparaiso - the special train on the Erie with its cargo of contestants puffed into the side track. Frank Murphy of England and Ike Weir, the Belfast Spider, 100 Chicagoans, men in high silk hats and tails speedily made their way to the hall.

It was midnight when the fighters climbed into the ring, donned skin tight gloves and went to work for the $1500 and the title. Three hours and 60 rounds later it still had not been won. At 4 a.m. Weir the Irish champion was weakening. Weir rallied and at 80 rounds, as neither could stand well, they called the fight to a draw. They made their way back to the waiting train and left town after the history making event.

Mike O'Brien and his helpers hastily tidied up the hall so that it would be ready for Methodist church services on Sunday morning. The Methodists were incensed at such use of their church but Mr. O'Brien, an enterprising man, retorted that he'd gotten more rent for the one night than the church goes paid in a year.

The famous hall with the store and locker plant operated by William Hefron as the Royal Blue Store was destroyed by fire on October 28, 1954.

Ike Weir (the "Belfast Spider"), then the world's featherweight champion, fought Frank Murphy of England at Kouts, Indiana, for the featherweight championship of the world in one of the most colorful fights in ring history. Weir and Murphy fought eighty rounds with skin-tight gloves, for a purse of $1500. Murphy was the favorite and although the Spider weakened at the last, he retained his championship title. The date March 31, 1889.

WEST SIDE OF MAIN STREET, LOOKING NORTH

EAST SIDE OF MAIN STREET, LOOKING SOUTH
MAIN STREET - KOUTS, INDIANA

Come walk with me down the east side of Main Street in the early 1890's. You've already read about Benkie's Drug Store. Just north of it Joshua George, a cobbler, then an old man, besides repairing shoes, made shoes to order. Mr. George had served Kouts faithfully for many years and at one time he and John Schultz also in Kouts, were the only two boot makers in Porter County. Next to the drug store on the south was Bloods Barber Shop; adjacent to it Ben and Jack Anderson had a livery barn where rigs could be rented or they would taxi by buggy to their destination, customers who were horse shy. Nearby stood a paint and wall paper store operated by Otto Knoll. The building occupied by Gina's Pizza Shop was built by August Wandrey who had an ice cream parlor on the first floor and a hall for meetings upstairs. The ice cream business was not lucrative and the owner changed to a saloon. A dwelling stood in an orchard between the Wandrey building and Gust Kosanke's butcher shop. In the area east of the butcher shop Mrs. Winslow had the old Kouts Hotel. (This hotel had been built early in Kouts history with "Uncle" George and "Aunt" Jane Miller in charge. He started the hotel when he came here after the Civil War.) Evidently business was not too rushing for she did dress making as a side line. Although Barney Kouts built the first brick business building in town he rented it to Massey and Freeman, the latter buying the merchandise and Joe and Rose Massey doing the selling with Minnie Dillingham as clerk. As we walk on toward Rosenbaum's store look left and see the horse driven Coal Docks and Water Tank on the north side of the Pennsylvania tracks just opposite Maple Street. Since you've read about Rosenbaum's store we'll saunter on down the street and cross over to watch the village blacksmith, Bill Cincoski, a master smithy, ply his trade in a shop on the site of the John Stark's home.

Coming back to the north Pent Witham had an ell shaped home - the part two storied which they used as a home and the one storied part faced on now Mentor Street and in this Mrs. Witham had a millinery store. Just north across the street was Dr. Atkins Drug Store - across the railroad stood Barney Kouts' first building, then one story handling dry goods mostly - back of the store a short distance stood the Jerry McCarthy home. Let's travel on. Jim O'Brien had a grocery store (now the Hiatt building) and during the two separated presidential administrations of Grover Cleveland, it was also the post office. Standing close to Jim O'Brien's store was Harry Reiter's business which started out in a small building but with additions east and west and aft, it took on its present aspect. Harry was a watch repairman and sold jewelry and was very enterprising indeed. Next stood Sed Unruh's bakery shop. This shop, too, had an upstairs and the rooms were rented at intervals to dentists who served Kouts intermittently; and for other painful extractions if you held a poor hand and were the loser.

As we stroll northward we come to Barney Kouts' second building which burned in the 90's, the Cottage Inn and O'Brien's Store of which you read earlier. Leaving O'Brien's Store we tread on a brick sidewalk to the Ewalt Kosanke home and to the Kosanke Store. Adjacent to it was the Betterton store and few steps on to another blacksmith shop where George Wyant held forth. An now we come to the last business building the lumber yard where John Arnold is proprietor.

After reading this far you realize that between fires and movings, additions, subtractions, and face liftings, few business buildings in Kouts even faintly resemble the original.

Early Professional People

Now that you have read the history of the early business people, an attempt will be made to trace the craftsmen and artisans that constituted a large part of the town's population and supported the three or four grocery and general stores, the meat markets, restaurants, recreational centers, etc. Let us take the occupations in alphabetical order which cannot be chronological order for they do not coincide.

AUCTIONEER - The first auctioneer to come to Kouts was William Martin who came here in 1917. Today his son, Lester, follows the trade.

BAKERS - In a previous account you read of Sed Unruh, the town's first baker, Fred Perry who succeeded him, and Theodore Pietsch, who came in 1921 and had a bakery for a decade. Emil Wiesche, a German baker, served for a short time in the late 20's and the last one was Sam Myren, who conducted a bakery and quick lunch restaurant on the corner next to the bank.

BARBERS - The barbers have been numerous and Kouts always supported two shops and two barbers in one shop. Before 1900 William Ellis, Pete Lyons, Archie Blood, Stoyer and Emory Goodpasture were barbers; Leo Drazer, who went on to be a dentist practicing in St. Louis; later Julius Kitzman, Bill Rampke, Joe Hart, Joe Harris, and by 1911 an advertisement revealed Ira J. Dye as tonsorial artist and John Wandrey and Martin Radilyack as barbers. Melvin Hendrickson came here from Wheatfield in 1914 and followed the trade until his death in 1940. Perry Griffith, Bill Neider known as "Bill the Barber", Wally Ruark, and Sherman Riddell have, too, served Kouts. To Vernon Schultz goes the distinction of 34 years of continuous service as a barber beginning in 1930 when shaves were 15¢ and hair cuts were 35¢. In 1956 Bill Johnston opened a shop on N. Main St. and when Vernon Schultz retired in 1964 he was replaced by a native son, Vincent Sommers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sommers.

BEAUTICIANS - The first beauty operator was Edith Knoll who gave Marcel waves with a hot iron, followed decades later by Alice Hendrickson who opened a beauty shop in her father's barber shop after finishing her course at Mrs. Hill's in Valparaiso. Then when she married she had a shop in the Lyons Building where she also lived until moving to Valparaiso. Wilmetta Dykes Hiatt operated a shop in Mrs. Quirk's grocery store in the 1930's. Doris Schultz has had a shop since July 15, 1944. She took her training at Travis Beauty School in Hammond.

CARPENTERS of the earlier era are George Tromblee, George Cannon, Sam Steiner, Link Arnold, Rudolph Hotchchilds, Charlie Taylor, and Harry Miller. The latter came here for the express purpose of building chicken houses for William Howell who planned to raise chickens to sell to the restaurants in Chicago during the Columbian Exposition of 1892-93. Mr. Howell's lack of knowledge of "setting hen habits" (this pre-dated incubators) doomed the project to failure, but Harry found ready employment. Carpenters after 1900 were William Lane, Ed Snodgrass, Frank Bradney, Desilver Lyons, Klemz Brothers, William Peters, and Vern Hopkins. The latter came here following the 1917 cyclone when much carpenter work was in order to repair the ravages of the storm.

DRESSMAKERS were Mrs. Winslow, Mary Radilyack, Mary Fry Pagel, Mrs. Harry Rollar, Mrs. James Nichols, Mrs. Perry Griffith, and Mrs. Clara Wandry. With the coming of ready-to-wear there was less demand for this service.

LAWYERS - Through the years Kouts has had three lawyers: James A. True, Thomas (Pat) Crowe and Parmenius (Pete) Lyons, the former serving as a Justice of Peace and the latter as township trustee during whose tenure paper and pencils replaced the slates.

TOWN MARSHALS - Since the 1880's Kouts has had less than a score of marshals or constables.

The first one who served was Dan Doon. He was conveniently spirited out of town during the championship fight in 1889 so had no problem. He just wasn't here. Dan Doon also served as janitor at the Kouts School while he was marshal. Other men who have held this post are: Otto Knoll, Charlie Lane, Herman Kosanke, Luther Wise, August Vergin, Burney Maxwell, Walter Jackson, Herman Chael, Grant Shoup, Simeon Rice, Homer Stewart, Joe Shepard, William Schultz, Ewalt Jahnz, Charles Mason, and presently Leland Jarnecke. Ewalt Jahnz went on to serve as deputy in the Porter County Sheriff's Department, a post he has held for years.

The masons, cement workers, brick layers, and plasterers were represented by George Glissman, August Hofferth and later his sons, William (Teut) Tight, Walter Pfeiffer, and Leland Jarnecke.

MILLINERS - And to keep milady properly hatted, Mrs. Pent Witham, Mrs. Winfield Pierce, Mrs. Cecelia Childers, and Mrs. Sanders offered chapeaus styled to the period when they were in business.

MUSIC TEACHERS giving piano lessons were Mrs. Elizabeth Rivet, Mrs. Edith Knoll, Mrs. C. P. Hockett, Marie Quirk, Gladys Pumroy, and presently Mrs. Minnie Koepke.

PAINTERS and DECORATORS - After the carpenters and plasterers got the buildings finished, the painters and paper hangers moved in to beautify and finish the raw materials. This work was done by Al Cleveland, Charlie Ferguson, Enos Schloetter, Otto Knoll, Herman and Bill Kosanke (painters), and Porter Childers who taught the trade to Herman Honehouse who later apprenticed James Griffith, Otto Metherd and Ferdinand Redelman and Sons.

VETERINARIAN - Dr. L. H. Hough was the first and only veterinarian Kouts ever had. He came here in 1922 with his wife and four children from Scottsburg, Indiana. A graduate of Indiana Veterinary College, Indianapolis, in 1909, he served this community until his death in May 1936. Two children, Mrs. Thomas Quirk (Ida) and Robert Hough are now residents of Kouts.

Dentistry

In the practice of dentistry only five names appear in the early history. Of the four only two were resident dentists and not for more than that many years each. The other two maintained offices in a nearby town and had an office in Kouts open only on one day a week. The community was fortunate that Mr. Benkie, Dr. Noland and Dr. Dittmer had forceps and were skilled in using them. Teeth would ache most when the dentist was not here.

The first resident dentist within anyone's memory was Dr. Hill who had office on the west side of Main Street over Unruh's Bakery. He was here in the early 1900's.

Dr. Hill was succeeded by Dr. Charles L. Bartholomew of Valparaiso who served Kouts one day a week from 1908 to 1912 commuting with horse and buggy. His office was over the bakery on the east side of Main Street. Dr. Bartholomew eventually gave up dentistry for undertaking, his father's business.

He was followed by Dr. Frank Ling from Hebron who had an office for a little over a year in Benkie's Drug Store. Dr. Ling commuted from Hebron on the Pennsylvania Accomodation Trains. He wooed and won Mae Benkie and after their marriage in 1913 they chose to live in Hebron.

In 1914 and '15 the Christian minister's (Rev. Whitt) son-in-law, Dr. Myers, practiced in the same offices used by Dr. Hill.

In the 1920's Dr. G. D. Conover of Valparaiso served Kouts a day a week with his office located on Mentor Street east of the Rosenbaum Store.

From then until 1960 Kouts dental problems were attended by dentists in Valparaiso, La Crosse, Wheatfield, Hebron, Wanatah and North Judson.

On September 1, 1960 Dr. Robert E. Hott opened his office in the Runyan building on the east side of Main Street. In November 1962 he moved to the new Medical Arts Building located in Good Acres north of Kouts. Dr. Hott received his dental degree from Indiana University in June 1958 and then spent two years in the armed services.

At long last Kouts is enjoying and appreciating the skilled services of a full time dentist.

Optometry

Dr. John Wright, an optometrist, opened a part time office in the Medical Arts Building in the spring of 1963. He comes to Kouts on Wednesday from DeMotte where his main office and home is located.

Kouts Doctors

Various doctors' names have appeared in this history and in quick review will rename Dr. Adtkins, Dr. Ibach, Dr. Kellog, Dr. Welch, Dr. Sprague, Dr. McKee, Dr. Ellis, Dr. Hockett and Dr. Chevigny.

Besides being a physician, Dr. Adtkins had a drug store on the site of Fritz's Tavern. It was a two story building and the family lived upstairs. Those whose memory serves them best remember the large apothecary jars that decorated the drug store windows and besides drugs, he also had cigars, candy and gum. They, too, recall that Dr. Adtkins and his brother who made his home with them, both wore long white beards. When they left Kouts they located in Kansas.

The two doctors who stand out and who chose to live out their days in Kouts are Dr. P. D. Noland and Dr. S. E. Dittmer.

Dr. Noland came to Kouts with his wife from Boone Grove in 1888. Two daughters, Anna and Eva, were born here. In 1893 Dr. Noland went back to school in Chicago and had Dr. Chevigny come to take his place for a year. During that time Dr. Chevigny and family lived at the Behrends Hotel. In 1910 Dr. Noland built the home where his grandson Phillip Reif, (Eva's son) now resides. It was a residence with office and waiting room built in. With horses and buggy Dr. Noland made home calls throughout the area until the automobile came into common use. Perhaps the most trying time of his medical career was the "flu" epidemic of October and November 1918. For three weeks he traveled constantly from home to home administering to the sick only stopping at home for food, a bath, clean clothes and a quick nap. He lost no patients except those with other complications. As Dr. Noland became semi-retired he served Pleasant Township as Trustee from 1922 to 1926 - that difficult era when the Ku Klux Klan dictated policy not only in Pleasant Township but the state and nation as well.

Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Dittmer

Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Dittmer and son, Jack, arrived in Kouts in 1912, coming from Charleston, Illinois. He began practicing medicine in an office over Cunningham's Store. His skill especially as a diagnostician, his wit and humor and great compassion endeared him to his patients. A daughter, Jane, and son, Tom, were born in Kouts.

In 1918 Dr. Dittmer answered the call to colors and served in the army in Camp Greenleaf, Georgia, resuming practice after the Armistice of 1918.

With no adequate hospital facilities in the county, Dr. Dittmer usually took his surgical patients to St. Bernard's Hospital in Chicago by train. In this hospital his medical opinion was highly respected. Lesser cases or those objecting to the distance in going to Chicago were cared for in the Christian Hospital in Valparaiso. Here the nurse in charge, Clara Gulbransen, had no peer in her profession. With Dr. Dittmer's guidance and her skilled nursing his patients were returned to health and vigor.

In 1917 Dittmers bought and remodeled the McCarthy house built on the site where Dr. Ellis's home was destroyed by fire in 1906 and in this home he lived until his death in December 1951.

His sons, Jack and Tom, are both outstanding physicians and surgeons maintaining a joint office in Valparaiso while Jack also has an office in Kouts.

While doctors came and went in Kouts the pioneers were fortunate to have in their midst a most understanding and efficient licensed midwife in the person of Mrs. Anthony Diskivish, who with her husband had come to this country from Poland in 1870. Mr. Diskivish worked on the Pennsylvania Railroad until 1887 when they bought and moved to the farm where the Gerald Shutskes now live. Mrs. Diskivish went wherever and whenever she was needed and besides assisting at the birth, stayed and cared for the mother, baby, and rest of the family until the mother could resume her duties. Her name is spoken almost reverently which indicates the esteem with which she is held by those who remember her acts of Christian charity. A daughter, Mrs. Frances Adams, lives near the south edge of town.

Anderson's Roller Mills And Heinold's

In bygone days a mile east and a mile north of Kouts, a wind powered mill stood on a farm owned by George Haste. Within the memory of the oldest residents a Holland Dutchman named Keil operated the mill. Here the early settlers took their sacks of grain to be made into meal or grist. When you inquired as to when it would be ready, the old timers quoted the following: "Vell, I don't know! Ven the vind no blow, I can no grind, ven the vind it blow, you come three days."

Another mill, water powered, stood by Crooked Creek, on what is now the Paul Drazer farm.

Both mills were unnecessary after W. N. Anderson built the Kouts Roller Mill in Kouts on the present site of the Heinold Elevator. The mill stones were imported from France. Mr. Anderson employed Gust Denzine as miller. He and Mrs. Denzine lived in a house adjacent to the mill until they built the first house on the north side of 8 now occupied by Elbert Schneckenburgers.

With the death of Mr. Denzine in 1908, Mr. Anderson employed Ed Dolman of North Judson as miller. Ed Dolman was succeeded in the late teens by Mr. Hentgen who worked a few years until commercially ground flour took away the business.

In conjunction with the milling business, Mr. Anderson also was a dealer in hard and soft coal, saddles, horse furnishings and mended harness. With his advancing years, business ceased and in 1937 the mill was purchased by Matt Heinold.

The Matthew Heinold family moved in 1921 from Gridley, Illinois to the farm south of Kouts now occupied by Ted Koselke. Here they farmed until the purchase of the Kouts Roller Mills. This purchase included the Anderson home in which the Matt Heinolds lived, now the Jonas Birky home.

The original Heinold business was a partnership consisting of the founder Matt, his son Virgil, and daughters Dorothy Stewart and Fern Antrim. They rebuilt the Anderson mill into an elevator and in 1940 purchased the Aylesworth Elevator Co. In 1943 the rebuilt elevator was destroyed by fire and replaced by a new concrete structure.

1952 witnessed great expansion at Aylesworth for they built a grain storage plant, concrete, fireproof elevator of 392,000 bushel capacity with cleaning and drying equipment. They, too, bought the competing Kouts Elevator from Eldon Kuehl. It was razed in 1963 to make way for a new equipment warehouse and pre-mix room.

Heinold Elevator was incorporated in June 1958 with approximately 300 stockholders at present. And in 1958 the new Square Deal Feed Mill was built in Kouts to replace the one destroyed by fire September 25, 1956. The mill on Mentor St. provided bulk storage for 300 tons of ingredients and the housing system is unloaded via a push button batching arrangement involving the latest design and geared to a production of 20 tons of feed per hour.

The first cement block garage next to the Catholic Church was built in 1947 and the second one July 1956. The new office building and warehouse on Mentor St. were completed in April 1963.

The firm employs 73 people, has over 30 trucks and serves the needs of farmers in a six county area of northwestern Indiana.

Incorporation of Kouts

In the establishing of an incorporated town Kouts followed the slogan: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

It was in 1914 that five civic minded citizens saw the need for corporation and spear headed the movement. They were: H. V. Deopker, Walter Bush, Herman Kosanke, and J. J. Overmeyer, with E. M. O'Brien as notary public. A long list of citizens signed the petition but the County Commissioners disregarded the appeal and the measure never came to vote. They tried again in 1917 and this time Dr. S. E. Dittmer was the first signer, but when it came to vote the voters rejected it. It was not until 1921 that they voted to accept town government. Accordingly a mile square, a half mile in each direction from the junction of State Roads 8 and 49, became the incorporated town. The population at that time was 576 with 156 households and 170 voters.

The first election for trustees and a clerk was held in the old school house in February 1921 with the following results: District One, William Denzine; District Two, Henry Herring; District Three, Ira Dye; District Four, Ray S. Berline, and the clerk, Burt Hofferth. August Vergin was appointed as the first town marshal with Thomas E. (Pat) Crowe as the town's first attorney. Mrs. Vergin resigned in July and Burney Maxwell was appointed.

The government was run on money borrowed from the trustees from election time (Feb.) until the beginning of the next year. There was no town hall so the second floor of the old Kouts building, vacated in 1964 by Mrs. Cunningham, was rented as a meeting place.

The first budget was small, only slightly over a thousand dollars with $75 a month allowed for the town marshal, $25 a year for each trustee and $50 a year for the clerk. With no electricity nor water, and most of the roads in town taken care of by the county, a large budget was unnecessary.

Electricity was extended from Hebron to Kouts in 1921 from the Walter Beal generating plant in Hebron. By 1924 power came from the Valparaiso Lighting

Co. and then the Northern Indiana Public Service absorbed both plants and electricity was brought from the State Line generator in Hammond.

In a December 1922 meeting of the Town Board Henry Herring offered the following resolution:

That whereas the Town of Kouts is without a place to keep their fire truck and also without a lock up, and without a place to hold their meetings and whereas H. V. Deopker has offered to sell to the Town of Kouts the cement block building and about 22 ft. of ground (frontage) off the north side of lot for the sum of $2500, one half to be paid in 2 years and the balance in 3 years with the rate of interest at 6% be it resolved that the Town Board purchase the same when he furnishes a good and sufficient warranty deed - motion carried.

In July 1923 the order of business carried a motion by Ira Dye, seconded by Henry Herring, that the front of the town hall be taken down for the purpose of putting in an "I" beam instead of the wooden beam which will be too short when the front is remodeled for the purpose of accommodating the fire truck, also to fill in the back end with blocks and a wall to form a lock up. Motion carried.

A committee of two, Herring and Dye, was appointed to look after the work on the town hall.

The jail was built at a cost of $360 and locks, cots and a coal stove were added equipment.

The fire siren was ordered in May 1925 at a cost of $360 with Ralph Knoll and Paul Gordon doing the electrical work at a cost of $175.

In July 1925 a resolution was passed to sound the siren at noon each day for the purpose of testing and to keep the siren in working condition. So for forty years we've known when to eat lunch or dinner.

The struggle for water in town, too, required perseverance. In 1930 a petition was made to erect a municipal water plant but the Public Service Commission rejected it because a town is allowed to be bonded for only 3% of its taxable evaluation and that sum was insufficient to build a plant. The rejection was a blessing in disguise for in 1939 on the second try, a much larger and better plant was made possible through government assistance. At the time an alert town resident read that Lakeville, Indiana was installing a water system through P.W.A. help. Accordingly Town Board President Fred Perry and Town Attorney Edward J. Ryan drove to Lakeville to confer with their town officials. With their findings they drove on to South Bend to see Clarence Manion who had charge of P.W.A. in this region and he promised to use his influence on behalf of the Kouts project. In due time wells were drilled on the George Glissman property which had been purchased by the town. The W.P.A. furnished the labor and P.W.A. some of the material required and Kouts had an adequate plant.

At one of their meetings the Town Board gave priority to naming the streets. The leading north-south street remained Main Street as it has always been but commonly called 49 today, while the leading east-west street was named Indiana Street, now State Road 8. Rose Street was named for Rose Yoder of whom you shall read in the Christian Church history; Kouts Street in honor of the first family; Maple Street for the trees that enhance it; Church Street because two churches are at its beginning; Poland Avenue for many of our early Polish residents who lived on it; Will Street for Will Betterton; College Avenue for it ran past both the old and new school, and Mentor Street retained the name given it by Charlie Betterton, Sr. The street running parallel to the Erie Railroad was named Erie Street while the one running north of and parallel to the Pennsylvania Railroad was called Railroad Street.

The board had their moments of levity for to Pete Lyons, a staunch Democrat, the street past his home was named McKinley, while not wanting to neglect a rank Republican, the street beside Will Betterton's home was named Jefferson Street.

In 1957 construction on a new Town Hall to cost $17,000 was begun on the site of the old O'Brien Hall, more recently Bill Hefron's Royal Blue Store, destroyed by fire. It was dedicated in 1958 and serves as a meeting place for not only the Town Board, but also for a voting place, other civic meetings as well as a garage to house the fire trucks.

Howard McKinney developed the two acres in the Rosenbaum addition on the north side of Road 8 with the house now owned by Mrs. Gust Lippert being the first one built.

A new subdivision was started in an area southwest of town in 1952 with Lee Birky building the first homes. In 1954 Sam Strong furthered development but sold out to Hall whose home sites are on the south side of Jefferson Street, with Hamstra Builders building on the north side of Jefferson. This area was brought into the corporation in March, 1959.

Allen Good opened Good Acres to the north of town on the west side of 49 and here built the Medical Arts Building and plotted the rest of the area for restricted homesites. Shady Lane on North Church Street is under development as is the Betterton property on S. Main Street. The Wieland property on the east end of town awaits development.

Centennial Year finds the Town Board and citizenry faced with the challenging problems of a sewage disposal and new storm sewers.

Fire Department

In the April 25, 1921 meeting a resolution was proposed for the purchase of a triple tank chemical engine outfit from Obenchain-Bauer Co. of Logansport, Indiana for the sum of $2075 with Cannon and Peters Ford Dealers of Kouts to furnish a Ford ton truck chassis with self starter for the sum of $682. The resolution was passed, the outfit purchased, and put into service on May 5, 1921.

The first fire fought by the department with the new truck was that of the Fred Heinold residence on August 4, 1921.

The Fire Department was on a voluntary basis and Paul Gordon, Gust Rosenbaum, August Vergin, Burney Maxwell, and Herman Chael were names listed in the department's infancy.

By 1930 the Ford chassis was replaced with a larger Chevrolet chassis (1 1/2 ton) and Ewalt Jahnz became the fire chief. With the installation of the water plant, fire was fought with water pressure on the hose.

In 1946 Kouts acquired the first pumper truck and in January 1965 a new American-LaFrance fire truck was purchased in Elmira, New York for $23,000. Present Fire Chief Richard Chael, his brother Harold, John Rogowski, and George Maul made the trip to drive the truck to Kouts.

J. C. Hiatt and Howard Cannon served as heads of the Fire Department between the time served by Ewalt Jahnz and the present.

Radio Relay Tower South of Kouts

Another link in the nation's growing web of defense and civilian communications is that of the new microwave radio relay system which stretches from coast to coast. In Illinois these towers are located at Winnebago, Lee, Norway, Bonfield, and Momence, and in Indiana at Kouts and LaPorte.

At the present time many of the nation's trans-continental telephone circuits pass through Chicago. The new radio relay route will carry calls around Chicago which is a safety factor in national defense if the telephone equipment in Chicago should be destroyed.

Each tower in the system will use newly developed antennas shaped like "horns of plenty" which send beams of radio waves toward the next tower in line as well as receiving antenna which gather them in. Then they are amplified and sent on. Each pair of "cornucopia horns" can handle as many as 20,000 telephone conversations at a time.

The steel towers range in height from 187 feet at Winnebago to 340 feet at Kouts. The Kouts tower was built and completed in 1956.

Industry

Very few attempts have been made to establish manufacturing enterprises in Kouts. Joseph Hackman erected a sawmill on the bank of the Kankakee River in the very early days, but in the 1870's sold it to James M. Pugh who converted it into a portable mill and used it in various parts of the township.

H. A. Wright started a cheese factory about 1877 (where Breitzke's live) but shortly abandoned the undertaking.

In 1887 Jerry Ryan started an ax-handle factory which employed five or six men but for lack of suitable timber that business was discontinued.

The cutting and baling of marsh hay was big business until the straightening of the Kankakee and digging dredge ditches turned all the area into productive farm lands.

Miss Kathy Robbins - Kouts Centennial Slogan Winner

After 1910 mine props were cut from the river timber until the supply was exhausted. They were shipped out by rail from Kouts to their destination.

Albright and Ely, representatives of Elkhart Lumber Company, had a saw mill on East Mentor Street approximately where the stockyards are now, but it was destroyed by fire in the early 1920's. Over a million board feet of lumber was lost.

In 1915 a reed furniture and basket factory was started by Joe Mroz in the Glissman Building known as "The Hunters' Home". In this venture George Maul and Prokop of LaPorte worked with Joe. From "The Hunters' Home" they moved to the Frazier Building (next east of Mrs. Kasl's home). After a few years the factory moved to LaPorte and Joe and George went into the slaughtering business.

In the 1920's Dodson had a so-called pickle factory in Kouts. It was merely the large vats of salt brine in which the pickles were stored until shipped by rail to the processing plants. These vats stood east of the Kouts Elevator along the Pennsylvania Railroad. Claussen succeeded Dodson in this project but the community soon tired of the back breaking activity.

Transportation

Rail service at Kouts is provided by two lines. The Logansport Division of the Pennsylvania line, P.C.C. & St. L. R.R., which was built through here in 1865, was the beginning of the town.

The Chicago and Atlantic Railroad built through Kouts was begun in 1881 and the first trains ran over it on December 25, 1883. The work had been hampered by the stretch of wet marsh land between Clanricarde and Wilders where all the roadbed had to be built with wheelbarrows and shovels. Very little work could be done with horses as they were too heavy. The 1887 wreck at Sandy Hook Ditch caused the bankruptcy of the Chicago and Atlantic and it then became the Chicago and Erie.

The Pennsylvania double tracked in 1904 and the Erie in 1916. Each road ran two accommodation trains each way daily.

With the Erie crossing the Pennsylvania in Kouts, operators and lever men have always held important and responsible positions. Formerly it was just two shifts as each turn was 12 hours instead of 8 hours as now. Early operators whose names could be recalled were: Fritz Wolbrandt, Godfrey Nimon, Ted Swartz, Charlie Bentley, Mike Shutske, Cleo Kent, George Hanaway, Edward M. O'Brien, Gleason Falls, Edwin and George Pumroy. The last 6 men knew and used the Morse Code so were telegraphers, too, as trains were dispatched that way. Today they use telephones. Thomas Quirk, Sr. was operator at the Lomax tower and lived in Kouts. Jack Radilyack, Henry Furness, and Harry Rollar worked at the Clanricarde Tower long since discontinued, as well as the tower at Goodpasture's crossing (where J. L. Vogel now lives) where Bert Warble was operator. Present operators are: Charles Underwood, Jack Frasere and John Paulsen.

The Pennsylvania depot agents were: Barney Kouts, Pent Witham, Turner Eadus, A. J. Howard, Pat Halligan, Tommy Britton, Joseph V. Vogel, Jay Banter, Bob Maudlin, Mrs. Howard Enoch, also her husband Howard Enoch, Wanda Kinney, and now Adolph Kaysen of Hebron who serves only a certain hour each day.

The Erie agents were: Mike O'Brien, Ray Berlin, Moonshower, D. E. Jones, Waldo Gray, Claude Walters, Wayne Mallett, Kenny Appleman, Harry Teems, and presently our genial and ever obliging Lester Hoover.

To keep the trains moving safely, a number of signal men were stationed in Kouts. George Wolbrandt, John Metherd, Fred Chael, Dempsey Wandrey, Ernest Wandrey, Harvey James, Wilbur McIntire, and Alfred Chatten are some names that come to mind and each served many years.

In addition Henry Dux was employed by the Pennsylvania as car repairman, working on any box cars needing repair found on the siding between the coal docks and Crown Point.

The section men had the responsibility of keeping the road bed in repair and ready for the heavy train traffic. The Erie and Pennsylvania each had four sections with the bosses and workers living in town. Some of the Erie bosses were Pat McGrath, Tommy Clark, George Bernoski, William Cunningham, Roy Adams, and Ted Hurley.

On the Pennsylvania were found Louie Pfost, Jerry McCarthy, Louis Wandrey, Jim Garrigan, John Dwyer, Lawrence Starkey, Hiram Jackson, and Fred Henning. Now these sections are lengthened and few if any of the men live in town. The men commute in company owned trucks and on company time.

Before the installation of gates at the Main Street crossings both roads employed crossing watchmen, with John Lapelski, Alec Williamson, George Maul, Gust Jahnz, Ed Garvey, and Mrs. Fred Henning each serving a period of years, while August Honehouse and Verner Blachly guarded the Erie until gates and flashers were installed in 1941.

Besides the railroaders you've read about, another group of men held responsible positions at the Coal Docks and Water Tank. All the Pennsylvania trains stopped in Kouts for coal and water. While the men appreciated the work so close at hand, the townspeople became weary waiting for the crossing to clear, the women disgusted if not furious when the refueled train belched out soot on their washings and clean porches. Finally the agitation became so great that the Pennsylvania built new modern docks two miles west of Kouts, where a tiled ditch brought water from Sandy Hook Ditch to their water tank. They opened for their first trains on February 14, 1907. (A real Valentine for the town.)

Fred Chael, Sr. and Dan Metherd are names of early workers at the docks as are Lawrence Starkey, John Wandrey and Joe Craig.

By 1911 the Sandy Hook Ditch was dredged lowering the water level and wells had to be drilled. They drilled 290 feet and found plenty of water. But before the first train reached Logansport, they had an urgent call ordering them not to use that water for any more trains. It was too salty! By drilling more wells and installing a pump to lift the water from the Sandy Hook Ditch, a supply of water was in reserve.

Joe Craig was foreman at the docks from 1909 till 1911 when Jim Hooley who had seniority took over the job until 1914; then John Dunkel took over till 1926 when Joe Craig was welcomed back and held the job until his retirement in 1946. Alva Hardesty took Joe Craig's place and then Ray Sommerville until the use of diesel engines closed the docks. They were dismantled and torn down in 1957.

New Post Office in Kouts

The Kouts Post Office

According to records from the Federal Government the first name of our town was Foster, and Peter C. Bonham was temporary postmaster.

It was on May 14, 1867 that Hilary Wright was appointed postmaster of Kout's Station, a fourth class office, and he served until March 11, 1881. Mr. Wright was succeeded by Sebastian Douglas who served only twenty-one months.

Lyman Atkins got his appointment on December 4, 1882. He was Dr. Atkin's brother and had the office in his brother's drug store.

On February 5, 1886 Jim O'Brien took up the duties in his store under Grover Cleveland's administration and served under Cleveland's both terms which were separated by a term under Benjamin Harrison's presidency when Johnny Hall was awarded the job.

Due to a change in politics Truman S. Caswell (called Stoddard Caswell) relieved Jim O'Brien and had the Post Office in a small building, office and home combination, across the alley from the old Post Office on what is now the Dittmer property. It was moved to North Main Street and converted to a barber shop.

Since Mr. Caswell was paralyzed from an accident in the timber when a falling tree caused a permanent back injury, he served his customers from a wheel chair. He resigned in 1902 to join the families of Mark

Zorn, Joe Vannett, Mrs. Pent Witham and sons, Maxwells, Sims and others, who went to North Dakota to homestead.

On March 27, 1902 Charles Wolbrandt, a nephew of George Wolbrandt, was appointed and for the first time Kouts had an office in a building which was exclusively a Post Office. It later became a barber shop. Mr. Wolbrandt's daughter Vivian (Mrs. Francis Hawbrook) lives in the Five Points area as well as grandchildren and great grandchildren, Tetzloffs and Selmans.

On August 23, 1913, Burt Hofferth was awarded the job and it was during his tenure that the business outgrew its first building. Since Mrs. Kouts owned the building and was made aware of the overcrowded condition, she immediately hired Frank Bradney as carpenter, to build a larger building just east of the old one. It was during these years that Kouts became a third class office. Burt resigned in 1921 to go back into private business.

Clara Young was appointed in April 1921 but due to a technicality requiring the postmaster to be a free holder in the town or township, served only three months when she was succeeded by Albert Honehouse. When politics changed again, Mr. Honehouse was succeeded by Ira Dye who took over on January 1, 1933, and served for twenty years.

On November 1, 1953 Lester Rhynard was awarded the position and in 1955 the Post Office moved from its location of over a half century, to its new home on State Road 49. With increased business due to growth of town and community, Kouts became a second class office in 1954. The income from the sale of stamps, government cards and envelopes determines the class rating of an office. Mitchell Starkey has served as a faithful and competent postal clerk since June 1959.

Through the years Kouts has always been privileged to have excellent mail service with both railroads dispatching and discharging first class mail several times daily on their fast trains. However at present, just one mail sack a day is sent and received on the Pennsylvania, none on the Erie. The bulk of the mail is brought in by truck, as is the parcel post, and is dispatched in like manner.

Kouts Creamery

A group of 68 townsmen and farmers led by a better business promoter pooled their resources and built the Kouts Creamery in 1912 with P. O. Norris current bank cashier as secretary-treasurer. It always operated on the brink of broke, never paid dividends and the stockholders finally sold out to Martin Walters whose sons continued the business. They shortly went over the brink and the building was taken over by the Bowman Dairy in 1925. This place hummed with activity and was a "shot in the arm" to both business and the farmer. Farmers hauled milk for a radius of twenty miles to the dairy where it was tested, cooled, and piped into thermos trucks for its journey to Chicago. Dairy managers included Ed Capouch, George Mathews, Harvey Lloyd, Harry Carr, and Ed Knopinski who succeeded each other in that order.

Chris Daumer, owner and manager of the thermos trucks, bought and renovated the former Ford garage built by George Knoll. Some of his faithful drivers were Don Rhynard, Clarence Sommers, George Talbutt, Leon Henderson, Vernon (Gangle) Burns, and George Wilson. With newer methods of milk handling, Bowman Dairy closed in November of 1951. Heibold Elevator bought the building and use it as a storage place.

Rural Free Delivery

History records that the first rural route in the United States was established in Charleston, West Virginia in 1896; it was 15 miles long. At the present time our nation is served by 32,000 routes, averaging 55 miles per route.

It was on November 15, 1904 that the first rural free delivery was started from the Kouts Post Office. Earl Pierce was the first carrier and served until February 1913. His brother Nyle was his substitute. The route of 21 miles was covered with a horse drawn mail wagon and in 1913 with the introduction of Parcel Post, had an added feature for everyone's convenience.

The inimitable Edward (Eddie) Rosenbaum was appointed to succeed Earl Pierce.

With the establishment of a second route from the Kouts office in 1916, Carl Cannon became the second carrier. He served until January 31, 1917 when he resigned. Eddie's sister, Laura Rosenbaum Pulaski, was his successor on Route Two but by mutual agreement they traded routes.

Eddie served Kouts rural patrons for 44 years retiring in 1957. Hattie, his wife, substituted for him until her tragic death October 1, 1948 in a traffic accident at the junction of Roads 2 and 30 southeast of Valparaiso.

Laura retired in 1962 after 46 years service and in all those years, no one ever saw either Laura or Eddie too busy, too hurried, or too harassed to be patient, polite, and pleasant, often going beyond the call of duty and despite most adverse road and weather conditions they followed the motto of the Pony Express "the Mail Must Go Through".

Eddie was succeeded by Al Miller and Art Kneifel was awarded Laura's route. Eddie and Laura left very exacting marks of excellence in service at which to aim, and by aiming high, doth one grow. Future historians can write the new carriers' claim to fame.

Burke Ranch

The Burke Ranch was created in 1887 when three Chicago cattle brokers - Jim and John Burke, brothers, and George Adams - bought almost ten square miles of Kankakee swampland southeast of Kouts for $2.50 to $3.00 an acre. The 6000 acres of damp land grew little except wild marsh hay. But that was abundant and the men planned to ship in western cattle to winter on the hay, fatten in the spring on Illinois corn and brewery malt and thus earn a tidy profit.

Accordingly they hired Charles Lauer, a lean six-footer plus, just turned 21 to set up and manage the ranch. With help he erected a few rough buildings, strung 12 miles of fence and graded a siding which the Erie Railroad tracked and named Clanricarde in honor of Jim Burke's wife's home town in Wales. To this point the cattle were shipped from Chicago. By the fall of 1888 longhorns by the train load began arriving and they soon had 1800. Our Hoosier cowboys knew little about western cattle but they soon learned never to walk among them. They would obey horsemen but immediately charge a man afoot.

They got through the first winter in good shape, tending the herd on imported western ponies and feeding them 9000 tons of wild hay baled that summer. Frank O'Brien, son of Mike O'Brien, one of Kouts' first storekeepers, and William Hofferth, then boys, helped with the haying during the summer. Frank Kise and Lawrence Starkey whose son Gordon lives in Kouts, was one of the cowboys.

The following spring Lauer and a half dozen men started on their first big trail drive with 450 cattle to Herscher, Illinois in the heart of the corn belt 80 miles away. They traveled 20 miles a day with no trouble until they made the mistake of driving the herd through Kankakee. Curious people stood and stared, and as the crowd gathered some steers got nervous and stampeded. The people did, too, and luckily they took off in opposite directions. The cowboys finally got the herd stopped two miles out of town and finished the drive without further incident.

During the next two years, they made a half dozen similar cattle drives without serious trouble.

But the cowboys in Indiana were short lived. The ranch owners failed to reap expected fat profits and welched on pay promises. In 1890 Lauer quit and went to work on the railroad. A few years later the Burke ranch declared bankruptcy.

Clanricarde still remains; there has been a grain elevator there since 1907 owned and operated by William J. Dahl. In the early part of the century it was a regular stop for the accommodation trains on the Erie. The old ranch boarding house was moved out to the main road (Dunn's Bridge Road), remodeled and is a dwelling now owned by the Kirsten Brothers. The ranch manager's home built at Log Heap, just south of Joe Dahl's place on the hill, was destroyed by fire.

Telephone Service

Telephone service in Kouts was first established in 1899. It was owned by Abe Halleck, father of Charles Halleck, long time Republican congressman. The office was located in the building now owned by Desilver Lyon and was operated by Harry Reiter and his family, local service only. He also had a jewelry store in connection with the telephone office.

The franchise was sold in 1903 to H. R. Ball and James McGill of Valparaiso; the company was known as the "Northwestern Indiana Telephone Company." The office was moved to the Benkie Drug Store. There were twenty subscribers and one Valparaiso line. The first manager was Carrol Stanton and chief lineman was George Stanton. The first operators in that location were Etta Benkie, Sylvia (Wandry) Berrier and Fred Behrends.

The office was moved again in 1910 to the Gust Kosanke residence now owned by Joe Susdorf.

The managers during the years were George Burk,

James Walsh, Harry Wells and Paul Gordon. The operators were Kenny (Cunningham) Reder, Mabel (Hall) Gordon, Margaret (Lane) Bradney, Mabel (Wells) Carichoff, Annetta (Kosanke) Humphrey, Lena (Kosanke) Brodus, Rie Maxwell, Lenore (Kosanke) Buechner, Laura (Kosanke) Wulf, Agnes (Lauer) Stark, Lyle (Dangerfield) Smith, Milne Trinkle Bruder, Caroline Hamann, Orma Sandberg Wellsland, Margaret James, Alice Hough, Margaret (Hough) Billet, Margaret (Cannon) Graham, Joe Susdorf, Ruby Susdorf, Lulu Schneckenburger, and Louise A. Benkie.

In 1937 the company was sold to the Indiana Association Telephone Corporation, predecessor of General Telephone Company of Indiana. In 1950 a new office was constructed and the equipment converted to dial on October 17th. Kouts outgrew the equipment installed at that time and a new building was erected. Another conversion was made on May 5, 1963 to completely modern dial equipment, seven digit numbers and direct distance dialing.

Heinold Hog Market

Since Kouts is surrounded by fertile farm land producing good crops of grain and hay, stock raising has always been an important occupation.

Gust Kosanke and George Wolbrandt bought and slaughtered animals for local consumption, for each had a meat market in town.

George Childers, Art Maxwell, William Detlef, Jerome Bartholomew, and William Denzine were stock buyers too, who rode through the area buying up hogs, cattle and sheep to be shipped to the Chicago Stock Yards. There were stock pens on both the Erie and Pennsylvania Railroads, to which stock was driven on foot in the early days and hauled later by wagon, and then by trucks.

It was in 1948 that Vernon Reibly of Valparaiso started a hog market on the southeast edge of town at the end of Mentor St. It was bought in 1950 by Harold Heinold and today an average of 60 farmers and truckers pass through Kouts daily to bring hogs to market, coming from distances up to 25 miles.

Mr. Heinold has 20 other markets in Indiana, Illinois, and one in Iowa, and last year a total of 2 million hogs were handled with a gross of 70 million dollars. The garage originally built by George Knoll, an early Ford dealer, later owned by Chris Daumer to house the milk trucks of Bowman Dairy days, was completely renovated and remodeled, and is the main office of the Heinold Hog Market with Joseph Vogel, Jr. as general manager, and in Kouts a total of 11 persons are employed.

William Reinke, a native son, is local manager of the yards, while another native son, Ray Pfladderer, is manager of a newly opened yard near Liberty, Indiana.

From Then To Now

Since you have read of the earliest business men and their stores, an attempt will be made to trace the sequence of business in the building and shall try to avoid being repetitious.

The first Kouts store (Cunninghams), a one story frame structure, was remodeled in 1911 by adding a second story providing office space for rent and laying up a block stone exterior. After Mr. Kouts no longer used the building Wolbrandts had a meat market here. Mrs. Celia Childers had a millinery store for over a quarter century. Mrs. Childers was followed by Mr. and Mrs. Amos Cunningham who had a notions, dry goods and candy store which closed in 1963 due to age and health of the owner, Mrs. Mary Cunningham.

The Rosenbaum Store operated under that name and by members of the family until the 1930's. Linkimiers of Valparaiso had a store for a short time. Then the building was razed and the Cities Service Station built on the site.

The Rosenbaum Hardware Store was last operated under that name by Gus who sold out to Harve Stanley in 1929. Mr. Stanley intended to have a meat market but his plans did not work out and he sold it to William Denzine, who operated a grocery and meat market from 1930 to 1947. Mr. Denzine sold to Wayne Mallett who had an electrical appliance shop until he sold to Tabler who had a fire which left only the lot to the owner.

As you've read O'Briens sold out to Luers in 1916. Luers sold to Shutske Brothers (John and Leo) in 1921 and in 1924 Shutskes sold back to Luers who continued a general store until 1932. The building was then used by the American Legion as a meeting place. Penny dances were held there, too. In 1937 August Gessa and brother-in-law, Ellis "Cap" Snow, bought the building and opened it as a grocery and meat market. In March 1946 William Hefron bought out Snow and he and Augie were partners until 1955 when Bill became sole owner. The same year a locker plant, a much needed service, was built on the south side of the store. But on October 28, 1955 the building and contents were destroyed by fire.

Kosankes Furniture Store sold out to Carol Root in the early 1940's who opened it as a hardware store. Root sold to Roger Schnurlein, who sold to Jack Keehn. The latter operated the store until February 1965 selling to Paarlberg the present proprietor. All the owners since Kosankes have come from Crown Point.

Kosankes Meat Market became a restaurant in the early 20's with Louise Hamann in charge, and when it was destroyed by fire in February 1927 she built a new building on the same site. Her brother and wife, William and Caroline Hamann conducted the business until his death in 1928. McIntires then operated the restaurant for two years, succeeded by Gordon and Harriet Spencer. In 1932 the building and business were sold to Fred Perry.

The Potter Building which stood next to Kosankes Store (west) and shared a common stairway, was a general store operated by Bettertons and then H. V. Deopker. When Mr. and Mrs. James L. Nichols and family came to Kouts in 1908, he bought the Potter Building and opened a Pool Room where he, too, was dealer in tobacco, cigars, and candies. In 1916 this business was discontinued, the building bought by Fred Perry and used in constructing the Gem Theatre on the north side of newly opened Will Street. When the Gem Theatre was razed in the 30's the usable lumber was incorporated in the present Christian parsonage where the Rose Yoder home was destroyed by fire in February 1927. Mr. and Mrs. Luers and daughter were living in the house at the time of the fire.

Freeman. It was then leased to H. V. Deopker and the store was known as "The Leader". As such it carried groceries, dry goods, shoes, carpets, etc. Deopker was succeeded by Ordman and Shapiro who used the same trade name. In 1914 the building was unoccupied. Later it opened as "The Liberty Cafe" with John Ketchmark as proprietor. Gatlif and Morningstar had a business there and William Hamann had it until he moved to the site of now Hilliards restuarant. Gus Krueger had a hardware store in the 20's. Howard Edwards operated a tavern coming here in 1937. Edwards moved their business and the Kouts building housed a package liquor store. Then back to a restaurant with a frequent change of proprietors. Mrs. John Stoddard and Mrs. Ora Gut are two names recalled, and the building was last used by Sam Myren who operated a bakery and short order restaurant until 1963.

After the frame store building on the site of Fritz's

Mr. Gus Rueger

Tavern was destroyed by fire, H. V. Deopker bought the site and in 1911 erected a large block stone building to use as a general store. In this grocery section were seen the first fresh green vegetables ever to be on sale in Kouts in the winter time. One solicitous mother was heard to remark, "Indeed! I wouldn't feed my children that raw stuff in this cold weather." After a decade of successful business, Deopker sold to J. T. Cannon and Sons, who sold to Russell and Gilbert Prevo. In 1927 Prevos sold to Combs and the store closed in 1929.

In 1926 Mr. Deopker sold the building to Thomas Quirk, Sr. In 1931 Mrs. Kate Quirk opened the I.G.A. Store and operated it until 1940. Mrs. Quirk sold the store building to Howard Edwards who had a tavern until he sold out to Stowers in 1943. Stowers sold to Fred Maul in 1945 and it is Fritz's Tavern today.

Gina's Pizza Shop was built by Link Arnold for a poolroom but he sold it to August Wandrey who had a saloon until he sold it to Runyons who lived upstairs. The two brothers, John and George Runyon, continued the saloon business until Prohibition. Rudolph Kuss moved his meat market from the Leser Building and had a store. Heine Dux succeeded his father-in-law, Mr. Kuss, and had a store from 1927 to 1951. Since then it has been used as an electrical repair shop by Wright and Scott, a toy and gift shop by Mrs. Kasl, a dress shop by Rhynards, followed by the G. & G., then as an office by Dr. Hott from 1961 till he moved into the Medical Arts Building.

The P. Lyons Building now the Kouts Inn was built in 1916 on the west side of Main Street where the second Kouts building was destroyed by fire in 1893. It has a restaurant in the basement conducted by Luther Wise for a number of years, while the main floor had Bowling and Pocket Billiards conducted by Andy Trinosky. By 1928 it was known as Jim's Place with Jim Herring as proprietor, where Near Beer (Prohibition Days), Candy Cigars and Pop were advertised. With the repeal of the 18th Amendment in 1933, it became a tavern and poolroom. Milas and Kowalczyk are in charge now.

HIATT BUILDING

Floyd, the only son of Jim Nichols, married a local girl, Lillie Metherd in 1914. As newlyweds they bought the restaurant business of Luther Wise and moved it to the Jim O'Brien Building now Hiatt Building. Here they served short order meals with Ed Rosenbaum's restaurant next door serving regular meals. In 1917 Nichols sold to John Jarnecke; Jim and Ethel Garrigan, and Mansfield had restaurants there too. From then until the 1930's when Thoma of Valparaiso opened a store with Walter Newsom in charge, the businesses are unknown. Newsom sold to Snow and the store closed. Hiatt bought it and had an electrical and plumbing shop.

Floyd then left Kouts for 7 years returning in 1924 as a meat cutter in Prevo's Store. In 1944 he bought

Goodpasture's Barber Shop

Rasmussen's stock and had a store there for two years. He and Paul Martin had a restaurant on the east side of Main Street for year when bought Paul out and had a grocery store until 1958.

Mr. Trinkle rented it to Johnson who had a restaurant and ice cream parlor for a short time and then to Fair-childs who moved on to Monon. From 1905 to 1912 William Denzine and his widowed sister, Mrs. Trinkle, carried on a successful restaurant, at which time Mrs. Trinkle sold the building to Desilver Lyons and built the hotel on Rose Street. Mr. Denzine married Martha Chael and together they continued in the business for two years selling out to Nyle Pierce. From Pierce it sold to Ed Rosenbaum who sold to Gus Rueger. (home and saloon combination) on East Mentor Street.

You've read that Wolbrandts had a tavern here selling in the mid 80's to Knolls of Medaryville who moved here with 7 sons. George, Ralph and Otto later had business places in town. After Mr. Knoll's death his widow married Joe Leser and they continued in the saloon business until Prohibition. Then Rudolph Kuss started a meat market on this site until he moved into the Wandrey building on N. Main. The store part was cut away from the home, moved south, faced east and made into a dwelling. The remaining part has had two fires recently but is still standing.

In the new building Ruegers built they continued with the restaurant until 1923 when they traded it to Earl Inman of Valparaiso for property there. Earl Inman sold to Frank Klemm who in the mid 30's sold to Rasmussens who continued the business until 1944, when Floyd Nichols took over until 1946 when he sold to Bob Heath. Bob Heath sold to Scherers, Scherers sold to Stowers and closed it out as a grocery store to reopen as the G. & G., a ladies' ready-to-wear and notions in 1954. When the G. & G. partnership dissolved, it became the Kouts Department Store as it is today.

ELEVATORS

The Wright Elevator along the Erie, destroyed by fire in 1901, was never replaced.

The Kouts Elevator built by Stanton Dillingham was sold to J. J. Overmyer early in the century. Overmyer sold to Charles Ray who moved here from LaCrosse in 1919. He had the business until 1945 when he sold to Eldon Kuehl. The latter sold to Heinold, his competitor, and the elevator was razed in 1963 to make room for improved buildings.

In Porter County Since 1936

You've read that Ben and Jack Anderson had a livery barn on the east side of N. Main in the 90's but sold out to Rhinolt Klott. After a few years Mr. Klott sold the business to Jay Kilday who had the place till it burned to the ground around 1910.

Early in the 1900's another hitch barn was located south of Kosanke's Butcher Shop about where the Kouts Stop and Shop is now. Besides livery service draying was also conducted by Herman Werner, the proprietor.

And in the same era Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mason and son, Dwight, came from north of Aylesworth to Kouts and built a home on the corner of College and Main (originally the site of Cincoski's blacksmith shop) and the Mason Hitch Barn and Livery Stable to the west of the home. Here, especially in cold and rainy weather, churchgoers left their horses and buggies, for their son, Dwight, would take the people to the church door and bring the horse and rig back to shelter. The pupils attending high school left their horses here too, for the day, just a short block from school.

With the coming of the automobiles, the horses gave way to the cars and hitch barns to garages. By 1920 Kouts had three garages, all still standing - they were of block stone construction.

The first garage was built by George Knoll on Mentor Street, now the headquarters of the Heindol Hog Market and Kouts Investments. He built it adjacent to his mother's place of business. In the 1920's it was advertised as Ford Sales and Service and Ford Hospital. When George Knoll left Kouts, John Kuss had an agency for Maxwell, Chalmers, and Chevrolet in that location. John Kuss was followed by the Cannon Brothers (Harry and Leon) who previously had a garage in the block stone building just north of Deopker's Store (purchased as the first town hall in December 1922). The Cannon Brothers had the Willys Knight and Overland Agencies with Auto and Tractor Repairing for a few years.

Although the Bowman Dairy came in 1925 the garage was not taken by Chris Daumer for several years. The trucks were kept in Hebron. But from 1930 till 1951 it was here that the trucks were housed and kept in first class mechanical condition for their daily trip to Chicago.

A. L. Arnold built the second garage on Main Street (now the Kouts Stop and Shop Store) and in 1916 it was operated by Mr. Arnold and William Peters with the Maxwell Agency and Livery Hire. Dwight Winchell and Grover Lain were competent mechanics in the Main Street garage in that era. Arnold and Peters were followed by Harold DeArmond, Beals, and George Hanaway, and in the early 1930's Luther Wise was operating the garage selling Plymouths. From a garage it changed to an International Harvester sales and service under Mr. Rheinhertz.

In 1939 Glenn Crouch took over and it became a Hudson agency with Dodge and Plymouth for a time. Then Glenn built a new garage north of the four corners of 8 and 49 on the west side of the road with construction beginning in the fall of 1945 and completed by July 1947. Here he had the Hudson agency. Unable to carry on the garage work, the building was rented by Herschel Maple for about three years followed by Victor Krug, who closed in 1956 when both 8 and 49 were under construction. In 1960 Glenn Crouch opened the Kwik Wash Laundromat and Dry Cleaning establishment in the building.

All the garages had gasoline pumps as did the hardware stores. The first filling station as such was a Standard Station operated by E. H. Ling and Fred Behrends on the corner where the Marathon Station is now only much closer to the road. Lee Murray had a Conoco Station where Kosanke's Bottled Gas is and Roy Wandrey had the Shell Station for twenty years before selling to Bob Claussen. You've read before that Oscar Maxwell had a Cities Service Station on the site of the Rosenbaum Store. He also drove a tank truck delivering gasoline and oil products to farms and homes of the territory.

Charlie Krueger had the first horse drawn Standard Oil truck that predated the gravel roads. With mud roads it was an occupation for the brave and strong. Overpack, Murtaugh and Floyd Kerlinska are some drivers that preceded Arden Mendel on the Standard truck.

Besides the garages which provided taxi service generally to the county seat, this service was also furnished by Charlie Pullins, George Lane, Bert Tillotson and Caroline Hamann. Various attempts were made to establish bus service between Kouts and Valparaiso - in the 1920's a bus operated for a couple years and again in the 40's but always quit because of no patronage.

The building occupied by Alco Aluminum was a one story building just east of the alley beside the old post office site and was moved in the early 1900's to its present location by W. N. Anderson and here he had a harness shop. A second story was added. The front rooms upstairs were rented for business offices with an apartment to the back.

Theodore Pietsch started a bakery in 1921 and the family lived upstairs until 1939 although he sold the bakery business to Fred Perry in the late 20's. With the death of W. N. Anderson, Edward M. O'Brien bought the building, remodeled the main floor and opened a realtor's office. Here he conducted his business until 1947 when he built the brick office building in the space just north of the bank. Paul Martin used the Anderson building as a restaurant where Floyd Nichols joined him in the enterprise. When Paul Martin returned to the service, Floyd closed out the restaurant and opened a grocery store which he operated until 1958 when ill health forced him to retire. Mrs. Kasl rented it for a year as a variety store, followed by Mona's Beauty Shop for another year and then the present business operated by Joe Krueger.

The building next south was built by Winfield Pierce and shared a common wall with the Anderson building. Mr. Pierce had a grocery store for many years followed by Jim Hodgins and William Detlef who had a butcher shop for a time. Jim Galbreath succeeded them and again it was a grocery store. From this grocery store it became a saloon with Ed Stibbe as proprietor. In the 30's Gus Krueger used the building as a hardware store. Besides hardware Mr. Krueger repaired furnaces, plumbing, and did sheet metal work. The next business was that of a pool hall operated by Herman (Luke) Schultz, who sold out in 1946 to William E. Reinke and Fenimore Biggart. With the accidental death of the latter in November 1951, Joe Horak became Reinke's partner until July 1955 when they sold to Ed Felker. After a couple years Felker sold to Howard Bailey. After Bailey went out of business, Orin DeWitt opened the Sports and Hobby Shop.

In Ed O'Brien's brick office building, a second office was first used as a Dress Shop by Mrs. Rhynard. In 1954 he built an addition to this building and here in December 1955 William Hebron opened the Royal Blue Store which operated until February 1964. W. A. Butler took over Mr. O'Brien's business July 1, 1951.

100th BIRTHDAY

WHILE THE TRAIN STOPPED FOR WATER, TRUMAN CHATTED WITH INDIANA CHILDREN

Our own beloved Governor Schricker aboard the Presidential Special.

Great was the excitement when the "Presidential Special" train stopped in Kouts that October day in 1948. It had come in on the Erie from a political rally in Hammond and wanted to continue on the Pennsylvania to a like event in logansport. This change over was possible in North Judson or Kouts but the latter was the chosen place.

Since this event was known beforehand, vast preparations were made by the section men who did a thorough job of cleaning the right of way. Never before nor since had it been so meticulously cleaned. Not a stone was out of place. One still wonders if they have ever found all that was hidden from view for those brief history making minutes. An extra rail was laid for the crossover for the armored car of the "Presidential Special" was too heavy for the rails already in use.

With school dismissed for the occasion the children and townspeople made a sizable crowd. While the train stood on the track near the Erie depot, President and Mrs. Truman and daughter, Margaret, came out on the rear platform of the train. Someone asked President Truman to make a speech but his answer was, "I've said too much already." However, he and family radiated friendliness.

When the picture appeared in "Life" magazine it carried the erroneous caption "While the train stopped for water, Truman chatted with Indiana children." It was a diesel not in need of water and it had stopped for a change over.

The Tornado

The longest officially recorded tornado traveled 293 miles in Illinois and Indiana on May 26, 1917 and lasted 7 hours and 20 minutes. Its forward speed was 40 mph. which is about average. But tornado speed has varied from 5 to 139 mph. and this tornado found Kouts.

It was a hot May Saturday becoming sultry in the afternoon, the storm clouds began to gather, the winds shifted to the southeast and gained strength, the thunder rumbled faintly in the west and steadily grew more audible. The black clouds gathered to the northwest and hung heavy. As the thunder became ominous, the strong southeast wind suddenly stopped blowing and not a leaf moved. An observer noted that the black clouds had two funnels as they roared in from the west after devastating Hebron and countryside. It then struck a bewildered townspeople most of whom were gathered for supper for the hour was 6 p.m.

In the town it dipped and rose and on one dip it completely destroyed the Christian Church, and on another dip the Catholic Church, creamery, and roller mills. Not a business building nor home in town escaped undamaged. Accompanying the furious wind was a hail storm with some stones as large as hens' eggs and a torrential rain. The once beautiful trees in the Pennsylvania Park were felled or sheared off or were wrapped in corrugated metal roofing from the coal docks two miles west of town. Other trees throughout the town were uprooted, twisted and snapped off.

But the countryside near Kouts perhaps was the scene of the worst damage. The farm home of Joseph Cannon north of Kouts was twisted, torn away from the foundation, and the furnishings scattered to the four winds. All members of the family were more or less injured.

South of the Joseph Cannon home, the John Dunkle home was destroyed and the son injured. And on the road running east, south of the Cannon home, the power of the tornado seems to have bent all its energies. Here the homes were swept away completely. Since they had no basements, scarcely any mark of their whereabouts could be found. In this area the storm brought death to D. B. Resh, an aged farmer, and Julia Lane, fifteen, when their respective homes were swept away, and Wilbur Dunkle and the Lane baby were hospitalized.

Dr. Dittmer's home at Kouts was used as an emergency hospital. Here, those suffering with minor injuries, were treated and a comfortable home found for them.

The storm then proceeded northeastward toward Wanatah; here it turned and came back and struck Marshall Grove, causing heavy loss at the homes of John and Tom Hannon, John Welsh, George Koontz, Nelson Hughes, and Jerome Bartholomew.

Few of those in the stricken district were protected by tornado insurance for the great majority had never believed this protection necessary in this part of the state. After the storm the agents had all they could do to attend to the demands upon them for policies.

And a tornado of much lesser proportion did strike Kouts on May 28, 1935.

The Saga Of The Kankakee

The Kankakee River which rises near South Bend and flows languidly southwestward forms the southern boundary of Pleasant Township on its course to join the Illinois River. In fact it was called the eastern branch of the Illinois at one time.

Many tribes of Indians lived in this beautiful wilderness and the Kankakee was named by a band of Indians of the Mohican Tribe who called themselves the "Wolves." They were driven from their homes by the mighty Iroquois Tribe and took refuge at the headwaters of the Kankakee thus the name "The Ak" (wolf) and "A Ki" (land) meaning Wolf Land.

It was here also that the Pottawatomie Indians settled before the Civil War. Their first settlement was called Mayesville and was located across the road from the George Wilcox home (now the home of Clayton Reif). The large tree standing at the entrance of the Reif home was the first Indian Trading Post. Many arrowheads, human bones, and Indian beads have been found here through the years. Porter Childers whom many old timers remember had an uncle that once owned a general store in Mayesville.

The Kankakee River and Baum's Bridge which spans it are both very familiar to the people of the area. The bridge is located about five miles southwest of Kouts on the Baum's Bridge Road. The road still winds around and up and down just like the Indian Trail it was for centuries. The bridge was named for Enos Baum who came to that place in 1860, started a sawmill and went into the lumber business. Years before the bridge was built there was a ferry located there.

In early days this territory was known as "Hunters Paradise" because the natural wilderness was the home of all kinds of wild life and plentiful fishing. Two creeks added to the riches of the township: Crooked Creek on the east so called because of its very crooked course and Sandy Hook on the west, both emptying into the Kankakee.

Fox, wolves, rabbits, ducks, geese, jacksnipes, brants, plover, deer, mink, coon, skunk, beaver, and muskrat were all abundant. The ducks and geese stayed and nested all year round. The river and creeks yielded channel cat fish, dog fish, pickerel, bass, bull heads, carp, buffalo and suckers. The marsh was a blaze of color from wild flowers of all kinds with the golden rod a sea of yellow in the early fall. Huckleberries, wild black berries, dew berries and raspberries were plentiful.

No early settlers could enter Pleasant Township by road from the south but must follow a round about route to LaPorte where land was purchased and then south until they found the spot where they decided to settle. Others came up the Illinois River to the Kankakee and settled along its banks and lived in the land of game and plenty.

Land had to be cleared and homes built on the high spots because those were the only places not inundated in the spring. A boat could be rowed from the Pennsylvania Railroad to far below the river in Jasper County when the winter snows melted and spring rains came. And that is the reason the Erie Railroad has such a high road bed. The Pennsylvania was covered bywater in the '70's and '80's and the Erie was determined to be out of the water.

Two well known high spots are Lone Tree Island and Grape Island; the former is at the mouth of Crooked Creek and is better known as Hyde's Island as Hiram Hyde built his home there. He farmed and taught a few terms at the Bowman School. Three of his children died (presumably of diphtheria) and are buried on the island because the water was too high to take them farther away. Grape Island was covered with fox grapes, wild grapes about the size of the Concord variety, and the island would be entirely surrounded by water.

To this "Hunters Paradise" came not only the local hunters but affluent sportsmen from Chicago,

Louisville, Pittsburg and from cities in the then distant parts of our state as well as from Europe. These hunters formed clubs and had large club houses built near Baums Bridge. Perhaps the best known and most favorably remembered were the Louisville Gun Club (1878) which was located on the south corner of the Baum's Bridge Tavern property, and the Pittsburg Club which was owned by Harry and Joe Wainwright, brewers from Pittsburg. Tad Starkey, a pioneer of this vicinity, still living, pushed the hunters' boats, and also bottled the beer that was brought here in barrels by wagon from the depot in Kouts where it had been shipped from Pittsburg. Other names most easily recalled are Ira Brainerd, captain of the Pittsburg Gun Club, Ned and Jim Brainerd; John Streater and guest, Joe Gomez, who was superintendent of the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Leaders in the Louisville Club were Short, Thompson, Grissel and Garnet Munn.

Two other club houses built at this time were the White House Hunting Club Building built in 1878 and the Rockville, Terre Haute, and Indianapolis Club House built in 1879. Most of these men were millionaires and would bring with them their servants who did the cooking and other household chores. They bought bread (or baked it themselves), butter, milk and other food from nearby residents. The then "small fry" from Kouts remember how they caught frogs for fishermen's bait at night and sold them to the sportsmen for a dime a dozen.

Many times parties were given at the club houses to which local citizens were invited. There for the first time these early settlers saw the fine linens, gleaming cut glass, and silver and other appointments common to gracious living in the homes of these wealthy sportsmen.

It was during this time that one of our well known authors, General Lew Wallace, used to cruise the Kankakee on his houseboat. He made many journeys from his home in Crawfordsville, Indiana and anchored his houseboat with George Wilcox. These journeys were made in a luxurious stage coach which was imported from France. It is said that during one of these cruises on the Kankakee that Lew Wallace received the inspiration to write the novel "Ben Hur."

Years after his death in 1906 the old houseboat was dismantled and the better parts used to build a small home for Harry Neusbaum, an old timer who is still residing in it directly south of Reifs on the side road. The autobiography of General Lew Wallace, signed by him, is now in the possession of Clayton Reif.

Many people came to this beautiful area to make their homes. One of the better known families was that of Rolla and Bertha Morehouse. Mr. Morehouse was born in Dowlagic, Michigan and when 18 years old made the long journey with his brothers and sisters in a covered wagon drawn by a team of oxen. It was a long and tedious trek, and they had to bring cows along to furnish the children with milk. The Morehouses built three homes during their lifetime and the last home place still remains. They reared two daughters, Mrs. Mary Gibbs Thatcher and Mrs. Albertina Sprague. Mary was brought into this world with the aid of an old Indian doctor. She is now living in the old home place.

A granddaughter of the Morehouses, Mrs. Mary Sprague lives in Kouts.

Another old timer was Lafayette Clouse. He was a boy of nine when he came to Valparaiso from Ohio in 1857. He always enjoyed living near the river and his first home was a tent with a wooden front right by the river. He did much hunting and fishing and one of his greatest pleasures was in "stealing" a bee tree. The wild honey had superior flavor. Mr. Clouse known as "Lafe" spent the latter part of his life in that vicinity and reared a family of eight children. He died in 1938 at the age of 90. A daughter, Mrs. Nora Maxwell a grandson, James Upton, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Lowell Mansfield are Kouts residents.

Mr. Elwood Collier was another pioneer who came to Baum's Bridge from Brook, Indiana. He and his wife had a hotel known as Collier's Club House and earned their livelihood by lodging and serving meals to the many hunters and pleasure seekers. With the death of Mr. Collier and the draining of the swamp, the hotel was no longer needed, and the son, Jim, converted to a general store. In his spare time he turned to painting especially the beauty and wild life of the Kankakee. The old home is a landmark of the Baum's Bridge vicinity.

Directly across the road from Collier's place was another large club house which housed a tavern. Before the dredging of the river, many people came in their row boats right up to the bar to quench their thirst.

In those days as in ours, people sought some recreation from their working week and the first dance hall was built next to Rosenbaum's river cottage located just north of the tavern. Through the years this place changed hands many times and then a huge dance hall was built around a large oak tree. Many people well remember the fiddlers tuning up, the old time square dances, the children put to sleep on chairs or any other available space. The Fourth of July and Labor Day were always celebrated in a special manner and in addition to those days, the Saturday night dances were usually attended by the families of: Morrisons, Morehouses, Landfacts, Lipperts, Starkeys, Firebaughs, and bachelors George Bancroft, Frank Johnson, Sam Lane, and Frank Sims.

In 1908 a Jim Donley had the first licensed tavern at Baum's Bridge succeeded by Johnson, Carl Rehm, Jesse Smith, Dick Lane (dance caller also) and in 1933 George and Zina Coyer purchased the spot from Jesse Smith. They made their home there until 1947 when an overheated stove caused a fire that completely destroyed the building. Later they built a smaller tavern which they sold to Carl and Stella Klemz now deceased. From them it passed into the hands of Margaret and Harold Lang, then Sam Strong, and presently is owned and operated by Jim Tabler and his wife.

While the Baum's Bridge area of the Kankakee River was closer to Kouts and had most of the club houses, the river southeast of Kouts was also visited by the sportsmen. Prior to building their club houses at Baum's Bridge the Louisville Gun Club pitched a large tent in the woods on the edge of the marsh (now Chris Pfladderer's farm) and there, with a negro cook who did the kitchen work and baked for them at a neighbor's kitchen, enjoyed the fruits of "hunters paradise."

In 1875 President Grant's son, Fred Kent Grant, and the president's son-in-law, Algernon Sartoris (Nellie's husband), were on a hunting expedition detached from any club and came at the close of the day to the Peter Lauer home and asked for food and lodging.

Dunn's Bridge over the Kankakee River. (Built from part of the Ferris Wheel used in World's Fair in 1893).

Nellie's husband, a wealthy Englishman, who had hunted in the best known game areas of Europe, Canada and other parts of the United States, declared the Kankakee marsh was superior to any place he had ever been. Evidently board and lodging were satisfactory for they stayed several days.

Another special visitor got stuck on a sand bar in the same area and after being assisted to free his boat identified himself as President Benjamin Harrison. He asked the name and address of his helper and in appreciation, free seeds came for at least two decades from Wahington, D. C. President Harrison became a regular visitor of the Baum's Bridge district of the Kankakee.

In the late 1890's a gun club of Marion, Indiana hunters pitched a tent in the same place as used by the Louisville Club.

Of interest to these parts is Dunn's Bridge that spans the river on what used to be Dunn's farm which was on both sides of the river. The steel arches of the Ferris Wheel used in the 1893 Columbian Exposition (World's Fair) in Chicago, were used in 1894 to build a bridge 180 feet long and 16 feet wide. North of the bridge on the east side of the road was a large club house known as Burrows Camp. It was the scene of much revelry on weekends and holidays until it was destroyed by fire.

The drainage of the Kankakee by the Marble, Reeves, Cook and other ditches has in recent years been a controversial subject between those who claim that the construction of the vast network of ditches has resulted in thousands of acres of land being thrown open to cultivation, and those who claim that the destruction of wild animal life of the Kankakee territory for hunters and fisherman from all parts of the country removed one of nature's greatest works of art, and robbed Porter County of one of its greatest assets.

It all seems bleak and desolate by comparison. With the beauty vanished, the fishing, the celebrations, the dancing and roller skating all memories, it is ably stated by a poet:

Alas! No longer the old river flows,
 Long years have passed us by;
 And when the evening twilight grows,
 Old echoes wail and die.

The wilderness paradise completely wrecked and the friendships formed are put away in the corner of the heart to be cherished and recalled as a pleasant chapter of history.

"Gala Days"

In the early days in Kouts there was an abundant supply of entertainment and as an old timer once said, "Most of it was legal." It was entertainment of active participation and no one wanted to just sit back and be entertained. Fortunate were those citizens to have lived before the era of the debunking of the Fourth of July for that was the greatest of days and was looked forward to for months. By the time the last snow melted the girls and their mothers were planning their Fourth of July dresses and other finery. If it couldn't be made it would be purchased, for everyone in the family had something new to wear. With well filled picnic baskets and hard earned and long garnered nickels, dimes and perhaps even a whole dollar carefully pocketed in that new suit or purse, the entire township set forth for Kouts where the public spirited townspeople had everything in readiness.

The celebration opened with a parade which no one could afford to miss and while there were variations, a typical parade would be one led by Jim Hodgins riding a spirited horse or walking like a drum major. He would be followed by a band playing lustily. Some of the band members whose names you will recall are: Charlie Betterton, Sr., John Diskivich, Fred Rosenbaum, Gus Rosenbaum, George Richmond, Frand Tromble and Porter Childers.

Mr. Hodgins had also decorated a box hay rack with bunting and equipped it with benches. All the young teen age girls wearing new white dresses were given blue sashes and star spangled blue caps and a flag. As the parade moved grandly on its route the girls sang old favorites such as "America", "Hail Columbia", "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic" waving their flags in unison at appropriate times. An honored and envied position on this hay rack was that of the "Goddess of Liberty" who wore a crown and stood at the front of the rack with the ladder as a support. Two girls who had that honor were Tillie Hofferth (John's daughter) and Amanda Wandrey (August's daughter). Some of the singers were: Cecelia (Biggart), Kate and Bertha Mishnick, Emma Honehouse, Grace Herring (Wise), Minnie Chael Schreiner, Bertha and Agnes O'Brien, Anna, Cecelia and Josephine Radilyack O'Brien. In later parades Abraham Lincoln Arnold (Link) dressed as Uncle Sam added color to the parade. Other patriotic citizens decorated their buggies, hay racks and surreys and joined in the procession. It wended its way to Hodgins Park, a shady wooded area where a temporary rostrum had been erected. After much effort peace and quiet reigned and the Declaration of Independence would be read followed by a speech that extolled the price and value of our liberty. From this same rostrum the fireworks would be shot off as soon as it was dark.

At noon those well filled picnic baskets were soon devastated and the young patriots hastened to supplement their meal with lemonade which was mixed up in tubs, and ice cream (by the gallon) as well as all kinds of candy and such rare fruits as oranges and bananas.

Then the races were next, sack races, foot races and horse races. Where the horses did their paces in the late 19th and early 20th century, the high school track boys are put through their paces today. Besides horses owned by local citizens horses were entered from Hebron, LaPorte, Wanatah and other neighboring towns. There were pacers, trotters, and running horses with names such as Betty Bea, Buckskin, Onward, Henry Pryor and Fanny Willgo, but Fanny should have been called Fanny Won'tgo, because she always broke track.

While the sports minded watched the ball game, those with dancing feet could be found at the bowery, an open dance floor built up three or four feet high on the sides with seats around the outside, and a dais for the orchestra in an offset resembling a bay window. The musicians were Leon Kouts, first violin; Steve True, second violin; Porter Childers, bass horn and Charlie

SOCIAL LIFE

A common and most enjoyable evening was afforded by the so called "calico necktie party" when the young ladies of the town and outlying community would make a new calico dress and a man's necktie of the same material. The tie was sent to a young man of the lady's choosing.

Imagine, the night of the party, how anxious the gentleman must have been to find the wearer of the dress, matching the tie he was wearing. And then imagine the consternation when a popular young man got a tie and gave it to an undersirable fellow who arrived inebriated. Due to his size and strength it required muscle to eject him after stratagem failed and not until he had done some solo dancing and yip-yipping-hi-yi in true cowboy style for he was a cow puncher from the Burke Ranch.

Betterton, Sr., drums. Jim True and Lew Goodpasture fiddled, and besides square dances, the waltz, polka and schottische were popular. The Fourth of July dance ended when everyone became too exhausted to go on. The bowery was built just east of the present elementary school playground.

This bowery was bought by St. Mary's Church and in 1921 moved to the lot across the street from the old school house. Here it was reroofed, cloak rooms and a kitchen built on and it served as a social center. As such it witnessed card parties every two weeks at which Five Hundred, Pedro, and Euchre were played. A lunch was served and then the tables and chairs were cleared from the floor and Paul Titus and daughter Marion (Newsom) furnished music that urged everyone to dance. These card parties were well attended by the townspeople and friends from adjacent towns. Since the admission was a free will offering they were indulged in even during the Depression. Like many other Kouts buildings the hall was destroyed by fire in October 1941.

While the bowery you've just read about served the longest time, perhaps the first one was an open air floor (no roof - no sides) built at the end of the street going west from Fritz's Tavern where Church's Asphalt Paving business is located. It was on the edge of a heavily wooded area.

Dancing was not just a Fourth of July event. O'Brien's Hall was the center of activity when it was too cold or disagreeable to be outdoors. Besides the musicians already mentioned Rhoda Coleman Callahan played the organ accompaniment where a dais was built for the musicians.

Other entertainment perhaps less exciting but no less enjoyable were house warmings, barn warmings, charivaris, quilting and carpet rag bees, spell downs when one district school challenged another, and box socials held annually at all the district schools - entertainment for young and old.

Labor Day was celebrated too in much the same manner as the Fourth of July. The most memorable one occurred around 1914 when a balloon ascension was the big attraction. The big cloth bag was tied securely to stakes driven in the ground and it lay limp like a rag. At the appointed time a fire was built which heated the air that filled the balloon causing it to rise. When it was completely inflated the basket holding the man was attached and readied. The ropes were cut and away he went leaving the gaping crowd admiring his skill and bravery. When he reached the desired height, he bailed out of the balloon and with parachute landed on a garage a couple blocks from the point of ascension. As the balloon lost gas it came down and was retrieved from a tree a couple miles away. Then on with the ball game and the dance.

The town of Kouts consistently had a first class baseball team chosen from the boys in the community.

The Kouts Athletics of 1903 played against teams from Hebron, LaCrosse, North Judson, Crown Point, Chicago, in fact any team that challenged them to a game. Railroad transportation, as it was then, permitted teams to travel here in the morning from east and west on accommodation trains on both the Erie and Pennsylvania, and return home at a convenient time in the late afternoon the same way. Excursion trains from Chicago brought passengers at 50¢ a round trip and the train would discharge a team and their fans who came on what was a gala picnic to the "small" town. The old ball park hummed with activity, the ball game was the high light and it was a weary but happy crowd that entrained at the close of day. The Athletics won their share of games and furnished first class entertainment for their enthusiastic fans.

The motorcycle races displaced the horse races and with Indian, Harley Davidson, and Flying Merkle machines, the racers, Otto and Emil Lippert, Fred Kosanke, Martin Radilyack, and others, roared around the track to the amazement of interested spectators. And great was the shock when Otto Lippert's cycle left the track and plowed through the dense brush with the emerging hero looking as if he had encountered a lair of tigers.

Another contest was known as the slow races. Its purpose was to see who could drive the track slowest in high gear and not kill the engine. Bill Rosenbaum usually won that in his Lexington.

A favorite spot for winter enjoyment was Smith's Pond (on Simic property today) where all the young and old hiked to skate when conditions were favorable. It was physical fitness at its best, the hike out, the large area on which to exercise, and the hike home in the brisk air.

In a decade beginning in the 20's, the Kouts Bull Dogs played a superior brand of baseball for their own enjoyment as well as for the pleasure of their fans. The admission was 50¢ and the gate receipts were usually several hundred dollars a game, the highest being $460.

Lowell, Crown Point, Chesterton, Valparaiso, Waukegan, LaCrosse, Hebron and Kouts formed a league and in 1925 Kouts won the northwestern Indiana pennant. With that claim to fame they challenged Argos who had won the pennant in that section of the state. In October Kouts won the first game on the home diamond and lost the second game at Argos. Enthusiasm was at a high pitch so the umpires recommended that the tie be played off on a neutral field.

Accordingly the two determined teams met on the Plymouth diamond and in a rugged hard fought game the score was tied five times and the final score was 14 to 13 in favor of Argos.

With only the manager, the bat boy, and one player deceased, this club can reminisce of their prowess in America's favorite sport.

An attempt will be made to list some of the clubs of the present; Kouts Neighbors, Kouts Lamplighters, Kouts Starlighters (all Home Demonstration Clubs), American Legion Auxiliary, Band Boosters, 4-H Clubs, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Lions Club, Chamber of Commerce, Guys and Dolls Dance Club, Farm Bureau, and several neighborhood Bunco and Card Clubs. In addition to these each church has its own activities listed under their respective church histories.

The Kouts Volunteer Fire Department which it seems is all work and no play, deserve special mention for their splendid work.

Other worthwhile activities are band concerts and Junior and Senior class plays. The school field is lighted for night games and several nights a week games are played with rivalry gaining momentum as the close of the season approaches. Basketball engulfs the entire community from the opening till the closing of the season.

An old, old skill, pitching horseshoes, was revived in 1961, members forming the Kouts Horseshoe Club. It is open to anyone wishing to participate. The six courts are on the school grounds and lighted for night games. Enoch Edwards is president and Roger Adams secretary. The club is affiliated with the National Horseshoe Pitchers Association and in Indiana the sport ranks second to basketball. In tournaments the players are classified and a participant is matched with one of his own rank and our local men rate at these contests.

On November 6, 1964 a youth center was opened in the O'Brien building on the east side of Main Street. Future history can appraise its value.

Two Fourth of July celebrations stand out from all the rest.

In 1876 which was the centennial of the Declaration of Independence, was the first time within anyone's memory that Kouts celebrated the important day. Adding to the glamour for those in attendance was the fact that every engine that pulled a train through town was cleaned up spick and span and was gaily decorated with bunting.

They whistled their way merrily through the town. Fireworks climaxed the day.

Then on July 4, 1883 the celebration was staged on Main Street with bunting decorated stands up and down the streets selling ice cream, pop corn, exotic fruit (for then), lemonade and candy of all kinds. O'Briens store was just finished but not stocked and was thrown open for dancing both upstairs and downstairs.

THE LITTLE LEAGUE

Kouts had two teams entered among the eight charter members. By 1956 the league had grown to 16 teams and was divided into north and south division with highway 30 as dividing line. The winner in each division played a three game series to determine the league championship.

The Kouts Giants were very small in size and very young but had big hearts and big ideas. They loved the game and thrived on competition. They had no big home run hitters or boys with big batting averages although they played against some in every game. They depended on good pitching and a very good defense and always managed to get a run or two one way or another. These boys had a lot of confidence in themselves and each other and were seldom under pressure and enjoyed every minute of it. No admission was charged and they played to large crowds both at home and away.

In 1955 they won sixteen games and lost two -- this was the year they won the championship by several games. Members of that team were: Curt Simic - C, Ron Dye - P, Tom Sommers - 1B, Larry Hamann - 2B, Jim Upton - SS, Fred Simic - 3B, Paul Martin - LF, Tom Simic - CF, Stan Fox - RF. Reserves were; Bob Bailey, Roy Martin, Dennis Cannon and Tom Upton.

In 1957 they won the Southern Division title in typical Giant fashion against Hebron the last game of the season. The teams were tied for first place with 11-2 records. Ted Wienke scored from third and Fred Simic from second in the second inning on a two out 3-2 single by Paul Martin batting eighth in the line up for the only hit off Hebron pitcher Kaysen. The final score was 2 to 1. The Giants went on to win the Play-off games with Kingsford Heights by 9-0 win -- a 2-0 loss and 2-1 win. Roster for this team was; Larry Hamann - C, Tom Sommers - P, Paul Martin - 2B, Phil Gingerich - 1B, Jim Upton - SS, Tom Simic - 3B,

Fred Simic - LF, Ted Wienke - CF, Tom Upton - RF.

The Little League was coached by Ben Martin whose guidance and inspiration prompted the boys to always do their best. For all those years of unselfish service history now records a commendation to a most worthy citizen.

Communication

Preceding telephone service Kouts was served by the Western Union Telegraph for over a half century. Telegrams were sent and received at the Pennsylvania Depot during the hours it was open and 24 hour service from the Tower. With improved telephone service they are no longer used, but there is still the possibility of calling and sending a telegram from Westville where Western Union has their station nearest Kouts.

Transportation

Up until 1912 very little macadamized road had been built in Pleasant Township but during that summer there were some 16 miles under construction. With the increased use of automobiles more gravel roads were built - the gravel roads gave way to black top of which there is considerable mileage in the township.

But not until June 1956 was work begun on paved road between Kouts and Valparaiso as well as Kouts and Hebron and by September 1956 they completed pouring concrete. The three hazardous narrow bridges on the Hebron road were displaced with bridges for two way traffic and the circuitous route to Valparaiso with its right angled turns was straightened, which makes motor transportation faster if not safer.

Kouts Churches

Old Kouts Christian Church, facing North on Highway 8.

Christian Church

In the spring of 1885 Ellis B. Cross, an evangelist and singer of the Christian Church, came to Kouts and in cooperation with the Lyman Adtkins family, the town doctor and druggist who was a staunch member, held a four week meeting in the O'Brien Hall. Mr. Cross, a forceful and consecrated preacher, aided by Mrs. Adda Adtkins Betterton, a good singer, was successful in bringing more than a dozen people to Christ. The following June these members were baptized in the waters of the Kankakee near Baum's Bridge.

Soon afterward, Messrs. Cross, Adtkins, and Joseph Barnes with the latter's horse and buggy rode through the township as well as the town explaining the urgent need of a Christian Church in the community. A piece of ground was donated by Mrs. Rose Yoder and construction was begun on a frame church which was finished and dedicated in 1887 with Rev. Carpenter officiating at the dedicatory services. This church faced north on the site of the present church.

Some of the early members were: Mrs. Rose

Yoder, Mrs. Margaret Williamson, Mrs. Loey Aylesworth Unruh, and the families of Johnny Spencer, Rhyne Blachly, Jack Shea, James (Buck) Jones, George Taylor, Jay Kilday, Fishers and Isminger.

From the first the church grew and prospered with various pastors officiating and among them Mr. Martin and Mr. Harrington who were both capable and forceful ministers of the gospel.

On May 26, 1917, a cyclone which struck Kouts doing extensive damage to the town and surrounding area, leveled the Christian Church.

About this time, Pastor John Whitt came to Kouts to visit in the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Meyers, and to recuperate from a recent illness. With improved health Mr. Whitt consented to hold Sunday services in the hall meanwhile planning with the congregation to rebuild the church.

Immediately the members began salvaging as much of the old material as possible that might be used in the new building. Likewise Mr. Whitt sent for his cement mixing machine that he had used in making blocks for another church and with perseverance and effort, had the present building completed and ready for dedication on March 17, 1919. Mr. Whitt was assisted in the dedication services by two other ministers, J. H. Smith and Mr. Carpenter. A few years later a belfry was added and the bell from the original building was installed. Mr. Whitt continued as pastor, with the exception of two years at the Hobart church, until the summer of 1928 when an illness resulted in his death.

As it had no minister, the church remained closed and later it was rented to the Reformed Mennonite congregation.

In May of 1943 the Christian congregation took over and the following have served as ministers: Mr. Brewer - 1943; Mr. Hartlipp - 1944; Mr. J. K. Woerner - 1944-45; Don Johnson 1945-47; G. B. Gordon - 1947-8; Gene Dye - 1948-9; James Cline 1949-50; Robert Rowe - 1950-52; Charles E. Johnson - 1953-55; Marple Lawson - 1955-57; Mr. Dunkleberger - 1957-58 and

Mr. Lamb Aug. 1958 until his death in November 1958. Mrs. Lamb continued on with Mr. Leeper preaching to the end of May 1959. Mr. Schreiber served from June 1959 until February 1965.

During his time the congregation has grown and property improvements have been completed. The major project was the interior repair and redecorating, the building of a new pulpit, communion table and choir rail. New seats had been purchased and installed during the time Marple Lawson served the church.

With the demolition of the Gem Theatre the materials were salvaged and a Christian Church parsonage was built at the present location south of the church under the direction of Mrs. Unruh who donated it for that purpose.

The church participates in the Chicago District Evangelistic Association and actively supports the Lincoln Christian College in Illinois and the summer camp program at Cedar Lake.

The regular services are Sunday School with usually a hundred in attendance, church with eighty to ninety, and at various times throughout the year there are Sunday evening services.

The church operates under the guidance of the elders who are elected for three year terms. All the active members of the church are eligible to participate in the annual church election.

The elders elected in January 1965 were Neil and Edward Pumroy, Harold Walter, Jerry Hitz, Fred SturGIS and Herbert Nichols.

The deacons elected were: Ted Hitz, Lloyd Berndt, George Taylor, Dale Eichelberger, James Yergler, Marion Fleming, and Kenneth Theis.

The trustees are Ed. Pumroy, Bob Arnold and Herbert Nichols.

The Sunday School Superintendent is Lloyd Berndt, Assistant Superintendent Jerry Hitz, Secretary Gloria McCrum, Assistant Secretary Carolyn Taylor, and Treasurer Herbert Nichols.

First Baptist Church

The original idea of establishing a Baptist church in Kouts was that of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spohn who reside in the southern part of Pleasant Township and who for years attended the Calvary Baptist Church of Valparaiso. Shortly later in about 1958 other people in the general area, namely: Supt. and Mrs. Ernest Francis who had established the Indiana Baptist Children's Home, also had a desire to see a church started in Kouts.

The final realization of a church materialized in January of 1960 when the First Baptist Church of Hobart offered assistance, and one of their members who had just finished schooling came to be the pastor of this new work.

Rev. Clifford Boessel led the first meeting which was a midweek service, in the parsonage on January 27, 1960 with thirty-two persons present. Final organization took place on March 24th at which time a constitution and articles of faith were approved, a board of deacons was established, and Rev. Boessel was formally called as the first pastor.

Through the generosity of Harold Heinold and Pete Hudson the church services were held in their offices until the first phase of construction was initiated and completed.

Four lots were purchased in the southeast corner of Pleasant View Subdivision and a ranch type building was constructed during the summer of 1960. The congregation met in this structure for nearly four years. During July of 1964 this same building was converted into the parsonage. Construction followed shortly on the first main unit of the church proper. This was completed in February of 1965, and will be the place of worship for an indefinite length of time until the main sanctuary can be built.

Present membership is seventy with an average Sunday School attendance of approximately eighty-five to ninety. The church is affiliated with the General Association of Regular Baptist Churches. This fellowship of nearly eleven hundred churches is conservative in doctrine and theology, dedicated to the historic Christian faith as found in the Bible, the inspired Word of God.

Hopewell Mennonite Church

Old Mennonite Church

The first Mennonites to purchase land in this vicinity were Dan Litwiller and Lewis Birky of Hopedale, Illinois, a farm near Wilders.

Sometime later, Samuel Litwiller, a minister at Hopedale, purchased the farm where Allen Good now lives.

In 1916 the John Reinhardt family also from Hopedale moved to the farm that Samuel Litwiller had purchased and Lee and Iva Sutter moved on the farm that Lewis Birky owned.

In 1917, William Martin and family likewise from Hopedale moved to the 160 acre farm which he had purchased. The Ivan Sutter family lives there now.

Worship services were held each Sunday in the homes or in the Lauer School. Others attending services with this group were the families of Alva Baughman, Louis Lampl, Aaron Egli and Sommer Smith.

In 1918, Andrew Good of Cowden, Illinois, Andrew Gingerich of Beaver Crossing, Nebraska, Dean Birky of Beemer, Nebraska, William and Lewis Birky and their families joined the group at Kouts.

Bishop John C. Birky of Hopedale, Illinois accepted the responsibility of the oversight of this new colony and guided them in establishing the Hopewell Mennonite Church. In naming it Hopewell he said, "We Hope Well for the new church."

The following eighteen people were charter members: John, Lizzie and Mabel Reinhardt; Lee and Iva Sutter; William and Anna Birky; Dean and Hazel Birky; William and Amelia Martin; Andrew and Emma Good; Lewis and Bertha Birky; Andrew, Mary and Nellie Gingerich.

During the year 1918 services were held in the Cook School each Sunday with preaching services once a month by a visiting minister.

The first Sunday School superintendents were William Martin and Dean Birky. The first trustees were William Martin, John Reinhardt and Lewis Birky. The attendance grew from 46 in 1918 to over 300 in 1964.

In September 1918 the church was united to the Indiana-Michigan Conference District with J. K. Bixler as Bishop.

On February 4, 1919 the land where the large communications tower stands one mile south of Kouts was purchased for a site for a new church with the church being built that summer and dedicated on September 28, 1919. Many visitors from Illinois and Indiana as well as people from the town of Kouts filled the church to overflowing on this day.

It was also during this year that Ben, Leah and Lulu Birky of Hopedale, Dick and Emma Fleenor and family of Iowa, and Amos, Mary and Orville Birky of Beemer, Nebraska came to make Kouts their home.

The first converts to this new church were Joe and Ed Gingerich, Olen and Ora Reinhardt, Clifford Gibson and Roy Birky.

Others locating in the vicinity at this time were the Chris Goods, Jonas Birkys, Reuben Birkys, J. Z. Birkys, Lloyd Yoders and the James Buchers.

In March 1920 James Bucher was ordained as minister to this church. He served with J. D. Birky who was a Bishop at this time and came here in 1922. James Bucher moved to Daviess County, Indiana two years later.

In 1923 J. Z. Birky was ordained a Deacon and he worked with J. D. Birky until the latter's death on July 12, 1926.

The following men have served as ministers to this church: Dean Birky, Millard Lind and Chester Osborne.

Other families settling here during this time were the Eichelbergers, Chris Sutters, Art and Anna Martins, Levi Birkys, and the Ed Bechlers.

The first church building became over crowded and in 1952 plans were made for a new building. The present church was located on State Road 49 on the north edge of Kouts on land donated by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Birky and was dedicated on October 26, 1952.

In 1953 Rev. Samuel Miller moved with his family from Topeka, Indiana to take oversight of this congregation as pastor and bishop and he is still with them.

In April of 1961 John Murray was installed as a licensed minister to assist Rev. Samuel Miller in the duties of the Hopewell congregation. Then in 1962 John Murray was ordained to the ministry and is serving as assistant pastor.

During 1949 a survey was taken in the area about the needs of a church and it was disclosed that the English Lake vicinity had no church of any kind. The Hopewell congregation decided to start a Sunday School service there and obtained the English Lake School for that purpose.

After several years of voluntary service by different families to this cause and the increased growth of the Sunday School there, it was decided by the Kouts Hopewell congregation to build a new church building at English Lake.

Emanuel Birky was licensed as minister to this place and ordained the following year. He has been serving this church since that time.

Presbyterian Church

The Presbyterians were the first to organize a congregation and build a church in the southern part of the county. At the first session recorded August 24, 1848 Rev. Spencer Baker presided with Elders George Biggart and John Freer who laid plans. Meetings had been held in the various homes in the community and later in a school house. Enough interest was shown to warrant the building of a church and in 1855 construction was begun. Joseph Bartholomew and George Biggart each gave $150 toward the building while other members assisted in the construction of a church costing $800 in the town of Tassinong. It was built with the understanding that other denominations should have free use of the house of worship at times when the Presbyterians were not using it. Rev. James C. Brown was a liberal contributor to the cause and for some time acted as pastor, holding services in the morning at Valparaiso and in the afternoon at Tassinong. Other ministers who preached in this church were S. C. Logan, Robert Williams, S. R. Baker, Henry Cullom, Frank Ferguson, and two men named Kinney and Moore.

As the town of Tassinong was gradually abandoned, the old church was closed and the congregation reorganized in Kouts. The building itself was moved here and later used as a family dwelling.

The Presbyterians then held services in O'Brien's Hall. Following the death of one of the members, funeral services were of necessity held in the hall and immediately the group began a fund raising campaign, the proceeds to be used in building a new Kouts Presbyterian Church.

Ed Snodgrass was engaged as carpenter to build a church and with the help of interested members the new house of worship was ready for services in February 1904.

Members of the congregation at that time were the families of J. N. Anderson, Sam Anderson, Joseph, John and William Bartholomew, Robert Biggart, J. T. Cannon, James Jones, Dr. P. D. Noland, H. A. Wright, and Norval Smith.

Some of the ministers who have served this church are: The Reverends Roy Brown, James Baroda (a Syrian), Samuel Bauer, J. Finn, John Dunkel, Richard Archer, and Ernest Armstrong, who married a local girl, Louise Kosanke, a church member. During his pastorate the church was reroofed and sided with brown shingles.

In 1936 the need for more room was felt and a house was moved in and added on the north side. A big cookstove was installed and a social center was then available to the members. Rev. Williams of Hebron was minister at this time.

For lack of attendance the church closed during the early 40's and due to the efforts of Howard Corson and Richard Anderson, the church was reorganized and opened for services in 1948 with Rev. Robert Vander Hart as minister.

He was succeeded by Paul Chalfant, a student Pastor, and during his time a large addition 30' x 48' called the Annex was built on the north side. This addition houses a kitchen, rest rooms, and Sunday School rooms.

When Desilver Lyon remodeled the old Kouts School he kindly donated the school bell to the Presbyterian Church.

In 1957 after extensive remodeling and redecorating of the interior, new draperies were installed in the chancel, a new organ, doors, and a canopy over the entrance, again with all the work done by the men of the church. Rev. William Edelen was pastor when these improvements were made.

In 1960 the present pastor Rev. Donald Darling took charge.

Serving as Elders of the church are: Richard Anderson, Mary Hamann, Melvin Taylor, H. P. Hudson, and Myrna Tuesberg. The Trustees are: Melvin Colton, Clayton Reif, Phillip Reif, David Rogers, and Art Trede, with Louise Benkie as treasurer.

There are 52 families and 104 members on the Prebyterian records now.

Kouts Presbyterian Church has given one son to the ministry. Allen Gene Hamann, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Fred Hamann, was ordained to the ministry on June 30, 1963 at the local church. He was installed as pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Forest, Ohio on July 7, 1963 where he is now serving.

St. Mary's Catholic Church

According to the recollection of the oldest living Catholic in 1903 at Kouts, Father Stephan, later Rt. Rev. Msgr. Stephan, Director of Indian Missions, who died in September 1901 at Washington, D.C., was the first priest who administered to the then few Catholics at Kouts and said Mass a few times in the old log house of Anthony Dyszkiewicz (Diskavish). This log house stood just across the alley from the Thomas Quirk home.

Father Michael O'Reilly, pastor at Valparaiso, took charge of the Kouts mission in August 1864. Between 1864 and 1883 he came once in two months and then up to May 1887, once a month. As the few Catholics were too poor to build a church the services were held in different residences, but mostly in the home of Jerry McCarthy, one mile east of town (the Sam Birky home now).

In 1883 a meeting was called to build a church and about $700 was subscribed. A church dinner was held for the same purpose July 24, 1884. Father O'Reilly then bought the present church lots from Hilary A. Wright with the deed for Lots 3 and 4 in Block Two in Wright's Addition dated September 5, 1885. Soon afterward the frame church was built where the rectory is now. Since Kouts then had two railroads, Father

St. Mary's Catholic Church - 1885

O'Reilly entertained great hopes that the congregation would soon be large enough to have a resident pastor, therefore the church was built in such a manner that it could easily be converted to a schoolhouse.

The charter members of the parish included the names of: Baranowski, Barry, Best, Burke, Callahan, Casey, Cincoski, Czyzewski, Deegan, Diskavish, Drazer, Dwyer, Feeley, Flavin, Griffith, Hannon, Kee, Keil, Kneifel, Lauer, Lukoski, McNeff, McGrath, McCarthy, Mishnich, O'Brien, Quirk, Radilyack, Ryan, Shutske, Schoepp, Smith, Tromblee and Welsh.

From then on Father O'Reilly administered spiritual care and held services for the members once a month until May of 1887.

Father Kobylinski of North Judson was given charge for the next three years and came by train twice a month from there.

In 1890 Father Frericks, C.P.P.S., of Pulaski, was appointed to serve the parish for two years. He was succeeded in 1892 by Father Dominic Shunk, C.P.P.S. of Wanatah. During his two year tenure, a belfry was built beside the church and a thousand pound bell purchased August 26, 1893 at a total cost of $257.00. This bell was transferred to the new church. The bell bears the inscription:

In 1894 the Kouts parish became a mission of Monterey and was attended by Fathers: Charles Thiele for four years; Gregory Zern for three; and Joseph Bilstein from October 1900 till October 1913. At that time the parish consisted of 31 families numbering 165 souls. There was no debt whatever on the church property.

Father Bruno Soengen of Monterey succeeded Father Bilstein and served as pastor until June 1921. Father Soengen, a Capuchin, had served in the mission field in India.

The tornado of May 26, 1917 completely destroyed the church; services were held for nearly a year in the old Kouts High School.

A building committee was chosen consisting of Messrs. Max Cincoski, William Drazer, Charles Lauer and J. J. Overmeyer, and plans were made to rebuild at once - a basement that would serve as a church until more funds accumulated. C. Weatherhogg of Ft. Wayne was employed as architect and the lone bidder, William Wiley of Chicago, was awarded the contract with Ed O'Brien and Thomas Britton appointed supervisors over the construction work. Ground was broken in the fall of 1917 and the basement was ready for use April 21, 1918 and had cost about $7000.

In June 1921 Father Joseph Suelzer was appointed as first resident pastor with Wheatfield and Kniman as missions. He enjoyed the hospitality of the Edward O'Brien home during the building of the rectory which was completed in November 1921. Then in 1923 the Catholic families of Hebron who had formerly attended St. Mary's in Crown Point, were transferred to this parish for church attendance.

Services were held in the old Community Hall during the building of the superstructure which was begun in February 1926. The new church costing approximately $25,000 was dedicated on October 31, 1926 by Bishop John F. Noll of Ft. Wayne. The last Sunday of October had been established that year as the Feast of Christ the King. Father Charles Thiele, who had served as pastor of Kouts from 1894 to 1898, was celebrant of the Mass and was assisted by Father James Nickels as deacon and Father Augustyn Kondziela as sub-deacon. The men's choir of St. Peter's Church, Ft. Wayne, furnished the music.

In June 1928 Father James Nickels succeeded Father Suelzer and guided the Kouts parish until April 1932 when Father Augustyn Kondziela was appointed.

During his nineteen years as pastor many improvements were made - a pipe organ, a gift of Mrs. James Dwyer was installed and readied for dedication on June 24, 1934.

Kouts was again struck by a cyclone on May 28, 1935 which did minor damage to the church when a tree toppled against the west side of the building necessitating repair work.

Over twenty-five years ago Our Lady of Victory Missionary Sisters were introduced to take charge of religious instruction of the youth.

On the material side the most important event was the retiring of the debt which had been heavy for a small congregation. The mortgage was burned on December 19, 1948 at a parish party. After placing the mortgage on a tray held by Robert Danielson, Charles Lauer, the oldest member of the parish, placed a lighted match to the mortgage. Other needed improvements were made to both church and rectory and the present parking lot was purchased from the Hollandsworth estate.

Father Bernard Shank 1953-1959
Father Raymond Derrick 1959-1962
Father Thaddeus Popek, O.F.M. 1962-1963
Father Paschal Wodek, O.F.M. 1963-1964

Each pastor in his turn exercised spiritual solicitude for the members of his parish. They also made necessary improvements too numerous to mention in the physical plant thus keeping St. Mary's in first rate condition.

On July 10, 1964 Father Ambrose McGinnity was appointed to Kouts, his first pastorate. The Dawson property was bought in October and the house razed in January.

As the history goes to press there are 80 families and 390 souls in the parish with 88 children in the grade school and 36 in High School.

Three organizations are active in the parish.

The Holy Name Society with Paul Drazer, President, Roger Adams, Vice President, and Joseph L. Vogel Secretary-Treasurer. They hold a monthly meeting on the second Wednesday night of each month September through May.

The Altar and Rosary Society meets the first Wednesday night of the month. Mrs. John Dwornik is President, Mrs. John Cowger, Vice-President, Mrs. Thomas Quirk, Secretary, and Miss Ann Lauer, Treasurer. Over fifty dues paying members belong to the organization whose chief aim is care of the altar and sanctuary.

The Catholic Youth Organization includes all young people of high school age and meets the third Wednesday of every month with spiritual, cultural and social objectives. The President is Mary Drazer, Vice-President, Judy Higgins; Secretary, Ava Vogel; Treasurer, Larry Shutske.

The following men are Trustees of the parish: Paul Drazer, Rudy Dolezal, Roland Graham, Thomas Quirk, and Joseph L. Vogel.

Organists who have served through the years are: Mrs. Louis Rivet, Kate Lauer, Bertha O'Brien, Mame Hannon O'Brien, Marie Quirk Lauer, Evelyn Childers, Mary Ketchmark, Helen Hannon, Cecelia Shutske, and Joseph and Judy Vogel. Our present organists are: Mrs. Richard Hannon, Mrs. Russell Girton, Ava Vogel and Brenda Mendel.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church

The first Lutheran worship service in Kouts was conducted August 1873, in the old one room school building in the east end of town on Road 8. Services were often held in the homes of the various members, usually on a Sunday afternoon. Among the first German members were: Gottlieb Pontow, August Steinke, Frederick Tight, Ludwig Pahl, John Hofferth, F. Wolbrandt, Stephen Bed, Gottlieb Wandrey, William Klemm, Ludwig Schultz, and John Guelow.

During this period until 1880 there was no resident pastor. The following pastors traveled from nearby towns to conduct the services: Rev. Phillip Schmidt, Rev. W. J. Lange, Rev. Adolph Dunzing, and Rev. George Heintz. The first child baptized was Carl August Huebner, July 15, 1873.

On the first Sunday in September 1880, the first Lutheran church - the first church in Pleasant Township - was dedicated to the glory of God and the welfare of the congregation at a cost of $600. This frame building built by men of the congregation, still serves as the Parish Hall. Mrs. John Kneifel had donated an oak tree from their yard for lumber from which Sam Steiner (carpenter) built the altar and pulpit.

The first confirmation class (1880) was the following: Frederick Wandrey, Edward Steinke, Emma Rosenbaum, Mathilda Rosenbaum, Catherine Wolbrandt, Anna

Wolbrandt, Wilhelmina Kruell, Anna Rohr, and Therese Wittenberg (Mrs. August Hofferth). The first marriage was that of Ferdinand Wittenberg and Irene Rosenbaum, who established one of the first general stores and post office at Boone Grove.

In 1894 Rev. Albert Bauman was called to be the first resident pastor and served until 1899. The congregation began its growth with regular services and confirmation classes. He organized and directed the first choir in 1895. The members were: William Hofferth, Gus Krueger, William Rosenbaum, Fred Rosenbaum, Gust Rosenbaum, Otto Kosanke, John Wandrey, Chris Reinke, Bertha Klemm (Mrs. Fred Rosenbaum, Sr.), Tena Rosenbaum (Mrs. George Schults), Lena Wiesjahn (Mrs. William Wandrey), Minnie Chael (Mrs. Shreiner), Julia Steiner (Mrs. Gust Rosenbaum), Emma Steiner (Mrs. Rombolt), Adeline Rosenbaum, Tillie Wojahn, Anna Wolbrandt (Mrs. John Wandrey), Emma Wandrey (Mrs. J. Young). Adeline Rosenbaum was the organist and served from 1880 to 1906.

Rev. Otto Schumm was the pastor from 1899 to 1905. During his pastorate a steeple was built on the church to house a bell donated by Mrs. Thielen which she purchased from the old Lutheran church at North Judson.

During the pastorate of Rev. Both (1905-1906) the first English services were conducted every third Sunday of the month. German services were conducted all other Sundays and holidays.

English services were likewise conducted with the German by Rev. Hicken who loyally served the congregation for forty years (1907-1947). Rev. Hicken saw the need for a larger church. The present brick church was dedicated December 13, 1908. It was built by the Foster Lumber Company under Charles Leidel, Chief Carpenter. The cost was $3500.

The first class confirmed in the new church (1909) was: Edward Wandrey, Albert Honehouse, Arthur Heimberg, Arthur Bandemer, Martin Walters, William Walters, Delbert Hicken, Henry Kechel, William Kechel, William Schultz, Idalene Trinkle, Alvina Schultz, Metha Miller, Mabel Kneifel, Mabelle Salzer, Bertha Wandrey, Tillie Wandrey. The first baby baptized was William Salzer. The first wedding was Metha Walters to Mr. Grose.

Rev. Hicken organized the first Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's, with twenty members. The officers were: President, Mrs. Ernestine Rosenbaum; Vice President, Mrs. Charlotte Heimberg; Secretary, Mrs. Marie Hicken; Treasurer, Mrs. Minnie Denzine, the last two serving for approximately thirty years. Each member served as hostess for the monthly Thursday afternoon meetings at her home. Occasionally members were treated to a Sunday chicken dinner. The last ones were given by Mrs. Edwina Salzer (age 91), Mrs. Emil Grieger (87) and Mrs. Laura Weise (82). Other first members still living are: Mrs. Minnie Schreiner, Mrs. William Denzine, Mrs. Mary Cunningham (age 91), and Emma Honehouse.

Through diligent effort this organization paid many of the congregation's financial expenses, such as carpeting, decorating, and organ donations, as well as the mission work. In 1938, $1408 was paid for the kitchen addition; purchase of lots north of the church (1941); Parish Hall rest rooms $800 (1953); carpeting $1200 (1955); and $500 toward the new electric organ (1965). The only public help came from the former Mission Daychickendinners and the recent turkey suppers and bazaars. Present membership is 65.

Also, Rev. Hicken organized the St. Paul's Lutheran Choir of 30 members in 1924. In addition to the choral sheet music, the advanced book "Festival Anthem Gems for Mixed Voices" by Geo. Kessel was utilized. Three Easter and Lenten Cantatas (the first was directed by R. F. Boening) were given. Ruth Wandrey was organist and director. Previously, Martha Chael (Mrs. William Denzine) was the regular organist after 1906 and served for several years directing a small choir for special occasions. Herman Heimberg became organist in 1908 and organized the Men's Choir. In 1932 Mrs. Lulu Schnekenburger became the organist and choir director. Estrella Hofferth served as organist from 1935 to 1939. A Junior Choir of 12 members was organized and directed by Mrs. Emil Hofferth for a few years. In 1954 Mrs. Minnie Koepke became organist and with Mrs. Robert Bodamer organized the Young People's Choir.

Because of the growing number of children, Mrs. Hofferth was instrumental in organizing the Lutheran Sunday School. Together with the Church Council - Emil Grieger, Emil Hofferth, and Gust Lippert - and the Voters' Assembly with Rev. Hicken, the Sunday School was sanctioned and opened, May 12, 1931, with an attendance of 81. Mrs. Hofferth was the first superintendent and also taught for 19 years. Other first Sunday School teachers were: Alma Rosenbaum, Henrietta Denzine, Doris Miller, and Margaret Rosenbaum. Wilbur Lippert served as superintendent from 1947 to 1952; William Roeske 1953; Ted Schroeder 1954; Merle Schoon carried on after the latter's death. The present superintendent is Paul Rommelmann, with a staff of 16 teachers.

The first Young People's Society was also organized by Pastor Hicken. Meetings and parties were held at the various homes for many years. Because of the dwindling group Mrs. Emil Hofferth conferred with him as to the wider social benefits of the Lutheran Walther League. Hilbert Roeske, then president of the Valparaiso Immanuel Walther League, was invited to discuss such organization. The Kouts St. Paul's Walther League was then established (1946).

Following the resignation of Pastor Hicken, Rev. Schwane became pastor. During his pastorate (1947-1954) the congregation was incorporated and the modern system of church officers was instituted. The parsonage was remodeled, the church redecorated, new altar cloths and an electric organ purchased, and new furnaces were installed in the parish hall and church. The Lutheran Women's Missionary League was organized (1948) for the purpose of discussing and contributing to the work of missions throughout the world. The first officers were: President, Mrs. Wilbur Lippert; Vice President, Mrs. Ella Williams (later served as Zone Officer); Secretary, Mrs. Herbert Roeske; Treasurer, Mrs. Robert Haman.

During a six-month vacancy, Rev. Koch of La-Crosse acted as pastor. Later Rev. Dr. Luther P.

Koepke, Dean of Men at Valparaiso University, conducted the church affairs. His services were so satisfactory that the congregation called him as the regular pastor. He was installed on September 5, 1954 by Rev. H. H. Kunnick of Valparaiso University.

Under Pastor Koepke's pastorate many material improvements were made, such as the landscaping, selling of the parsonage and purchase of the Wandrey house for the Sunday School annex, new cement steps and walk, and cleaning of the church brick, redecoration of the parish hall and church, installation of new pews, carpeting, and a new Hammond organ, besides a projector, slides, and other modern materials for dissemination of the Gospel.

The Sunday Evening Social Group has been organized and meets once a month with an average membership of 25.

Greatest of all has been the growth of membership souls of the congregation which has risen from 394 to 463 with a voting membership of approximately 65. Since 1954 communicant growth has been from 273 to 327. Rev. Koepke has had 92 baptisms to date, totaling 381 of the St. Paul's church history; 103 confirmations, totaling 446; 41 marriages, totaling 173; and 69 funerals, totaling 224.

Schools Of Pleasant Township

Kouts High School opened in September, 1937 (on right)
Kouts Elementary School opened in November, 1959 (on left)

Since schools touch most lives and most pocketbooks in a community it is apropos it should take much space in a history.

EARLY SCHOOLS

As most of the very early settlers located in the eastern part of Pleasant Township between the county line and Crooked Creek, it was a natural sequence that the first school would be in that area. In 1838 a small log school house was erected on section 13, township 33, range 5, a short distance south of where the Pennsylvania railroad entered Porter County in 1864. It was built by the patrons of the school and had the customary clay fireplace and greased paper windows. A pioneer teacher said that these windows possessed a great advantage over glass ones, in that they admitted light but prevented lazy pupils from gazing out the windows instead of studying. A larger school house was erected upon the same section a little later. Several years later the first frame school house in the township was built on the north-side road (Dunn's Bridge Road) running past the Raymond Sommers and Mrs. Helen Olson's home across the road and midway between. It was called the Bowman School since the Thornton Bowman family lived in a house directly across the road from it. The first teachers were men and "boarded round" but had a way of lingering in the homes where the cuisine was best. Two men that taught the Bowman School were Hiram Hyde and Florence McAuliffe in the late 1870's and early '80's. A Miss Mary Grimes and Jennie Wells succeeded them and the last teachers in the Bowman School were Sadie Breyfogle (Mrs. Clyde Aylesworth), Margaret Anderson (Steinke) and Nora McNeff (Tracy). Patrons of that era were the families of Ben Anderson, John Kneifel, Peter Lauer, Thornton Bowman and Abigail Burke.

Another log school house was erected the same year 1838 on section 13, township 33, range 6 about a mile and a half west of the present town of Kouts. It was built by the cooperative labor of the patrons and at the first term in the fall of that year eleven scholars were enrolled. Perhaps this was the Spencer School. No record of the early patrons could be found.

DISTRICT SCHOOLS

From studying district school locations in 1876 and 1895 county atlases, Pleasant Township must have experienced population shifts or population explosions or both. Only four districts maintained the same number and name throughout their long history.

The following schools show on the 1876 map:

(a) Marshall Grove School built on the Robert Anderson property has always been District 1 and built on the same spot. The first school burned and the second one was built on the same site with Charles Lembke as architect. Early patrons were the families of Robert Anderson, Michael Hannon, John Welsh, William Bartholomew, and George Biggart, Sr.

(b) Kouts School as District 2

(c) Spencer School District 3 - this school was just north of State Road 8 on the northwest corner of the Baum's Bridge Road.

(d) Five Points, District 4, was built on the George Brown land.

(e) Bowman School as District 5.

(f) Morrison School, District 6, diagonally across from the block stone school within the memory of many people today. The first two frame buildings were, too, destroyed by fire.

MORRISON

In the early 1880's the old Morrison School became overcrowded so the patrons bought the Ellis School which was not being used due to lack of pupils. It was located on the corner of the Ed Ellis farm, a mile east and a mile north of Kouts across the road from the Harley Birky home. They moved it on skids to a site on the east-west road near the Wilcox farm and southeast of the Morrison School.

While there is no record of early teachers at this school, three early men teachers at Morrison were the Messrs. Wiley, Huffman and Boomershine who "boarded round". The early patrons were the families of John Coleman, William Betterton, Rhinear Blachly, William C. Wells, Eleazer Starkey, the Lindys, Featherlings, Wagners and Duttons. Two women teachers of the early days were Angie Downs and Ida Winslow, the former from Valparaiso.

The block stone school was built during the trusteeship of Stanton Dillingham.

Alta Coleman Falls and E. E. Starkey of Kouts and Mary Betterton Glass of Florida are pupils of the early days that are still with us.

(g) Brumbaugh School, District 7, a school on the northwest corner of the Conrad Shutske farm.

Then by 1895 the Spencer School wasn't shown and District 8 had been established with Stowell School built on the southwest corner of Sam Stowell's farm.

District 9 was a school on the Betterton land just north of and bordering on the Kankakee River.

STOWELL SCHOOL

the fall of 1880 a frame building was readied for school on the southwest corner of the Stowell farm. The site is diagonally across from the Baptist Children's Home.

The first pupils in the school were Billy Miller, Herman Heimberg, Martha, Annie and Sarah Smith, Elizabeth and Star Stowell, Olie and Jessie Posten, Louise and Edwina Hamann - eleven in all. Of these only Mrs. Edwina Hamann Salzer, 91, is still living.

The first teachers were Flora Wilcox, Mina Vosburch, Delia Sargent, Breck Sherman, Mr. Small, Star Stowell and Mattie Bowman.

Through the years Stowell was the school to which beginning teachers always were sent to work out their apprenticeship. Practice teaching was unheard of prior to 1927 and to be teacher, principal, janitor and arbiter in a country school really tested the mettle of an aspiring candidate for teaching. The enrollment averaged in the 30's and 40's in all eight grades.

Three present elementary teachers taught at Stowell School: Hazel Watson Filer, Mabelle Salzer Hofferth and Loretta Lauer.

FIVE POINTS

While several school buildings in the township burned out of existence, the old Five Points School was so badly damaged in the cyclone of May 26, 1917 that it was necessary to build a new one. The old frame structure was moved and a brick structure replaced it on a site diagonally across the road. Some of the early settlers in that area were: William Arnold, William Henderson, George Alles, John Barry, Edward Maxwell, and William Welch, Joseph Cannon and Homer Porter.

FIVE POINTS SCHOOL

LAUER SCHOOL

LAUER

Due to the dilapidated condition of the Bowman School and a change in population (the marsh became farm land) a new block stone school was built in 1904 on land leased from the McWilliams Land Company. It had a large room that often accommodated forty or more pupils in all the grades. The first teacher when the school opened was Grace Cannon followed by Kathryn Kring, the former now living in Kouts.

It was located just across the road from Chris Pfledderer's home and was called Lauer School because Peter Lauer was the earliest settler in that community. The first pupils were third generation Kneifels and Lauers, newcomers named Deyos, with Larsens, Olds, Meadows, Mattocks, and Sommers, Watsons prior to 1910.

STOWELL

In 1880 a committee composed of Abraham Stowell, Chairman; Fred Hamann, Sr., Henry Smith, and William Miller drove to the Court House in Valparaiso to petition for a school in their area. Since this was in the far southeast corner of Pleasant Township it necessitated a journey of over twenty miles over dirt roads and a long days time.

Chairman Stowell agreed to donate the land and by

COOK SCHOOL

COOK

With further settling of the Kankakee marsh land a new school was needed 2 miles south of Kouts which was built of brick and ready for use in the fall of 1917. It was called Cook since the Cook Brothers took over the McWilliam Land Company and developed the area.

The Aaron Egli; J. Z. Louis, and Rueben Birky; Andrew Heiniger; John, Joseph, and Matt Heinold; Ben Kaufmann; Andrew Gingerich and John Reinhardt families were some patrons of the school in the 1920's.

Prior to 1894 the schools were in the hands of a school board composed of patrons of their respective schools. This board was in complete charge of the school, hiring and firing the teacher, keeping the building in repair, furnishing the fuel, etc. One of the conservative members replaced broken window panes with sheets of galvanized steel because the children could not break them. Eyestrain was unheard of.

In 1894 the trustee and advisory board system came into being. The trustees of Pleasant Township since then are:

1894-1896	William Trinkle
1896-1900	Parmenius (Pete) Lyons
1900-1904	John G. Benkie
1904-1908	Stanton Dillingham died in office and his term was finished by son, Clarence.
1908-1914	W. N. Anderson (a change in the law so that the township, county, state and national elections would not be at the same time gave Mr. Anderson a 6 year tenure.)
1914-1918	William Betterton
1918-1922	Verner Blachly
1922-1926	Dr. P. D. Noland
1926-1934	Jerome Bartholomew - Mr. Bartholomew died in a traffic accident in 1931 and Mrs. Bartholomew finished his term.
1934-1938	Albert Honehouse - due to ill health

MARSHAL GROVE SCHOOL

Mr. Honehouse resigned - Mr. Lippert was appointed to finish his term.

1938-1946	Gust Lippert
1946-1954	Chris Pfladderer
1954-1962	William Salzer
1962-	William R. Reinke

With consolidation in 1937 the Stowell School was moved and made into a residence occupied by the Lloyd Miller family. Marshall Grove and Five Points were converted into residences on their original sites; Harry Railings live in the former and Francis Hawbrook in the latter. Lauer, Morrison and Cook were razed and the sites reverted to the owner on whose land they were located. The old Kouts School was purchased by Desilver Lyon and used as a storage space. Through the years with much effort and determination apartments have been and are still being built in the building.

Despite all the seeming deprivation of the district schools those pupils enjoyed a privilege from 1914 to 1918 not offered today. There was a music and art teacher who visited every school on a regular schedule, teaching music one day a week and art on another day. In the art course such mediums as scissors and paste, crayon, charcoal and water color were used. The work was all free hand and was directed according to the best art practices.

Miss Fannie Hannon held this position and traveled by horse and buggy from school to school. She is an aunt of Richard Hannon and resides in Gary.

EARLY SCHOOLS IN TOWN

There have been two wooden frame school houses in the town of Kouts. The first of these was built on the south side of what is now State Road 8 where Rocks reside. It was a two story two room building with an enclosed stairway. The two teachers within anyone's memory in that building were Nell Donahue and Loey Aylesworth who taught there in the early 1880's. Teaching is a family tradition for today Nell Donahue has a granddaughter teaching in Kouts High School. Nell married Tom Hannon in 1885 and Mary Hannon Drazer inherited the yearn to teach.

When the Chicago and Atlantic Railroad was built in 1881 the patrons feared for the safety of their children so close to the "Iron horse". Their anxiety over a period of years resulted in the second school building in the town of Kouts. It was a two story four room building and stood on the southwest corner of State Road 49 and Elizabeth Street where Krugs live. The first building was moved across the Erie Railroad to the present site of the water tower. Her it was added to and made into the "Hunters Home" a hotel that accommodated some of the many hunters that invaded the Kankakee area during the hunting season.

Gird Bartholomew was principal of this school for a time and some of the teachers during its short period of usefulness were Gerald Stoner, Eugene Skinkle, Liza Anderson and Flora Massey. It was the latter's brother Joe that kept the general store in the first brick building in Kouts. Birdella Anderson, Leon Kouts and Ned Jones were graduates of this school in 1895. And Kouts School today has a relative of Eugene Skinkle teaching in the High School in the person of Karen Fritz whose mother was a Skinkle.

This second building was destroyed by fire on March 9, 1896, a fire that threatened to destroy all the buildings in the block. People had their belongings packed ready to go but by throwing water on their roofs with buckets managed to save them. The classes that term were finished in O'Brien's Hall for the older children while the first and second grades attended school in the old Catholic Church. Miss Witham, who influenced and molded the lives of Kouts children for 43 years was the primary teacher then.

The first brick school building was completed in time for school in the fall of 1896. It had four large rooms, two upstairs and two downstairs. The architects were Krutsch and Laycock while George T. Pallisson was the contractor and the building was constructed at a cost of $5000. It was built to house the first eight grades and was soon inadequate. In 1906 an addition of two rooms and two hallways was made. In 1910 it became a commissioned high school. In 1914 a domestic science room was built in the basement.

With the large rooms upstairs divided and the office used as a classroom this building served the pupils of District 2 as a grade school and the entire township as a high school until 1937. High school pupils from the southern part of Morgan Township also attended high school in Kouts until their own building was completed in 1922.

Since 1920 pre-dates the era of busses and many automobiles, those living too far to walk drove horses and kept them in Mason's hitch barn during the day. It stood just west of John Stark's home.

The history of the attempts of the people of Pleasant Township to modernize their plant was for many years that of failure and disappointment one after another. With each new attempt, always something conspired to block it. A bank failure in 1927 impounding township funds, loss of interest during the depression, and the death through accident of a trustee and advisory board member followed by an advisory board unfavorable to building a new school were the leading adverse factors.

The first successful step in the direction of a new school plant was taken in 1929 by Trustee Jerome Bartholomew when he purchased a twenty-one acre tract of land in the southeast part of town in the Hodgins Division.

Since funds were not available for an entire grade and high school plant and by constitutional limitation the township could not be bonded in excess of two percent of its taxable property, plans were pushed forward for the erection of just a high school. The elementary grades were still to be housed in the old building.

An architect was employed and plans prepared for the new high school. With these plans in hand Architect Brook, Trustee Jerome Bartholomew, and Eli Kruell, Chairman of the Advisory Board, motored to Indianapolis to confer with state department officials relative to the new building. While driving through Indianapolis the architect's car had a collision with a street car resulting in the death of Mr. Bartholomew and Mr. Kruell and the end of the proposed building program. For when the advisory board was reorganized as the result of Mr. Kruell's death, a majority of the new board were opposed to the erection of a new building.

In the fall of 1934 Albert Honehouse became the trustee with Ed Kosanke, Gust Lippert, and Nelson Metherd on the advisory board, all of whom were in perfect agreement on the necessity of a new school plant. The newly organized Public Works Administration came into being at this time with its offer of 45 per cent grants to communities that wished to take advantage of them.

The township under the administration of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew not only had purchased the school site but also had provided a surplus fund to aid in financing a new building.

Again an architect was employed because the Public Works Administration would not consider an application for a grant of funds until pencil sketches of the proposed project were submitted by a licensed architect. Accordingly Callix Miller of South Bend was awarded the architect's contract contingent on the grant of federal funds.

After many surveys, reports, communications, and conferences the application for funds was granted.

In the meantime, Albert Honehouse, Trustee, resigned because of poor health. The Board of County Commissioners appointed Gust Lippert to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Honehouse and at the same time appointed Burney Maxwell to the advisory board.

This was followed by many and seemingly interminable legal proceedings in the fixing of tax levies, advertisement and sale of bonds, letting contracts, conducting of public hearings, etc., each step of which met the organized opposition of groups of taxpayers.

Finally, in March 1936, the general construction contract was awarded to the J. I. Barnes Construction Company of Logansport, Ind., with Russel Easterday of Culver in charge. Edmund J. Wiczorek of South Bend was the architect's inspector on the job. Construction was begun on May 1, 1936 and completed in August 1937. When it opened in September 1937, a combination grade and high school, the enrollment was 402 with 209 in the first six grades and 193 in the upper six. Brick, concrete and steel were used to produce a fire resistant building. Unlike so many school buildings of this era with a combination auditorium and gymnasium, the new school provided them separately. The auditorium is at the center front, the gymnasium at the center rear with a beautiful corridor between, with its cathedral arches and appropriate lighting. The auditorium had a seating capacity of 460. The gymnasium had a seating capacity of 405 in the balcony and space for several hundred more by the use of movable bleachers on the main floor.

The building of modified English-Gothic architecture was built of tan brick with Indiana limestone trim and had 14 rooms exclusive of auditorium and gymnasium. The total cost was $190,000.

Very great credit is due to Mr. Lippert and his advisory board who assumed responsibility for this community project. It required both courage and character to meet successfully responsibilities of this kind.

Upon the completion of the school term in May 1937 all the district schools were closed and the pupils were brought by busses to the newly consolidated school whose faculty consisted of 6 grade teachers and 6 high school teachers with Mr. Charles McMurry as principal.

As such it served Kouts and Pleasant Township until 1951 when a new shop and two classrooms were constructed in a separate building southeast of the main building, costing $68,000. The original shop was converted into a kitchen and cafeteria.

By 1958 overcrowded conditions in the 1937 building were acute and caused the polling of public opinion concerning more building. Open meetings were held with Trustee William Salzer and Advisory Board members Edward Kosanke, Carl Hefner, and Kenneth Temple. Most everyone was in agreement that more classroom space was sorely needed.

Bids were submitted and again J. I. Barnes Construction Company of Logansport was awarded the contract for a twelve classroom, all purpose room and kitchen, lounge, boiler room and janitor's room and storage space. It was of modern design one story and joined the shop and original building with closed corridors. Work was begun in May 1959 and it was ready for occupancy the following November. It cost approximately $220,000.

In 1961 with the national emphasis on science Kouts science department needed up-dating to measure up to specifications. The 1937 science room was remodeled into a modern office and the commerce room renovated and equipped as a science room at an approximate cost of $28,000. Of this $13,000 was supplied by federal funds.

Constant state inspection and checking of our school plant necessitated further change in 1962 and '63. Two Home Economics rooms (one for sewing and one for cooking), a Physics room and a Guidance room were remodeled and equipped in the original building at a cost of $18,000 of which $4,000 was reimbursed from federal funds.

In 1964 overcrowded conditions in the cafeteria necessitated expansion of the existing room and while building a band room was added on the second floor. Construction was begun in September 1964 and opened for use.

Owen Sommers was awarded the contract for approximately $90,000. Three full time employees, one part time and student help is needed to man the cafeteria.

At the present time Kouts is a fully accredited school in the North Central Association that offers five curricula (a) Academic (b) Commercial (c) Vocational Home Economics (d) Vocational Agriculture (e) Industrial Arts.

There are 30 teachers including Mr. Taylor, the principal, all experienced and trained, many with advanced degrees. The school is operated on the 6 - 6 plan with 11 full time elementary teachers, 2 part time, a county speech therapist and county nurse on certain days, music teacher and grade principal. There are 30 classrooms, 18-1/2 acres in playground, track, and a ball field lighted for night games.

With the School Corporation Reorganization Act passed by the Indiana Legislature in 1959 and amended in both the 1961 and 1963 General Assemblies the problem is with us. What should we do? The plan offered to the South County has been defeated twice in general elections by the voters of Kouts and Pleasant Township.

A bigger school does not necessarily mean a better school. But with a new rash of growing pains it is fitting to close this chapter with "Kouts School, Quo Vadis?" And it remains for the historian of the next hundred years to answer it adequately.

sen, John Bell, R. A. Roberts, Franklin Burrus, J. H. Baker, Guy O. Vaughn, Kirby Payne, Frank O. Null, Charles McMurtry, Orrin Farris, Merritt Hague, Floyd Oberholtzer, Melvin Taylor.

Of all these principals three deserve citations for ability and length of tenure.

S. P. Shull is remembered for his tireless efforts and devotion to furthering the young people's education. With his coming in 1902 he established a three year course of study for the high school. The first graduates in 1905 were Lulu Mae Benkie, Claire Hannon, Nyle Pierce and Florence Young and in 1906 Marie Beckwith and Anna D. Propp. Likewise he encouraged the young graduates to teach and of the first six graduates five became teachers.

In 1930 a young man, Charles McMurtry, came to teach in Kouts High School. He had a gift for imparting knowledge and inspiring a thirst for it. After teaching three years Mr. McMurtry succeeded Mr. Null as principal and his administrative ability was on the same plane as his teaching ability. The consolidation of the seven district schools and the move from the old school to the new was so well planned and executed that the days' work moved so smoothly it seemed everyone had always been in the spacious new building. And when he left Kouts in 1944 the new building and equipment had been so well cared for under his constant supervision it seemed still a new building. Mr. McMurtry returned in 1948 and served three more years but resigned in 1951 to become supervisor of elementary education of the Porter County Schools a position in which he coordinated elementary effort in the county. Now he is county superintendent.

Kouts School has kept abreast during the past twelve years in the educational world through the direction of Mr. Taylor, who is a native of Wheeler. He received his A.B. degree from Valparaiso University in 1943 and completed his Master's degree at Indiana University in 1952. This educational background, plus three years in the U. S. Marines, and seven years in the Portage School system, where he served as coach and assistant principal in addition to his teaching duties, made him well qualified for the principalship here at Kouts.

Under Mr. Taylor's administration, enrollment has increased from 383 in 1952 to 620 during the past school year. To keep pace with the increasing enrollment and curriculum, the faculty has increased in size from 16 to 30, a faculty to which he is intensely loyal and considerate of all their problems. With all the improvements you have read about in the physical plant, it is obvious that Mr. Taylor's objective has been quality education. Mr. Taylor would be the last one to lay any claims to being wholly responsible for all those improvements in our educational facilities and opportunities, but we are indebted to him for his leadership, without which, many of them would have been more difficult if not impossible.

MISS FREDERICA WITHAM

To Miss Frederica Witham goes an honor never before nor since attained by any Kouts teacher, for she taught 40 of her 43 years in the same room in Kouts School. The other 3 years were spent in country schools - the first at Marshall Grove and two at Five Points. Her largest class during all that time was 64 in second and third grade. Her average was 40. Her starting salary was $1.25 a day and after three years experience it was $2.00 a day. Not until Indiana Legislature passed the minimum wage law in 1920 did Miss Witham earn the fabulous minimum of $800 a year. And when she retired in 1935 it had not doubled that figure.

But the salary was secondary to this truly dedicated teacher who taught boys and girls, saw them grow up and marry and happily send sons and daughters back to her to be taught not only the 3 R's but good sound principles both by word and example. Miss Witham's nobility of spirit inspired all who were privileged to have been in her classes.

Tale Of The Bottle Of Ink

In the good old days (?) every pupil had an ink well in the upper right hand corner of his desk. (Remember how we dunked the ends of the girls' braids regularly.) The school furnished the ink which was bought in quart bottles that had a pouring spout. A penny wise school official observed that a great deal of money could be saved by buying ink by the barrel and ordered it. In due time it arrived at the Pennsylvania depot. Draying charges were another enemy of thrift.

To circumvent that, the school official wrestled the barrel of ink onto his wheelbarrow and began the trek from depot platform to the school. In jostling across the four sets of tracks the barrel rolled off the wheelbarrow and broke, furnishing a lot of merriment to onlookers and later to school personnel when the tale of the barrel of ink reached their ears. They were waiting for ink but with no joyful expectation as they dreaded the mess in transferring from barrel to bottle.

No history of Kouts School would be complete without the record of its athletes.

Athletics play a great part in a boy's life. Many a boy has gone astray who might have turned out well if only the coach, father, or some civic minded person had taken him by the hand and gotten him interested in sports. The athletes know from experience what it means to play the game for all its worth giving 100% all the time. To achieve this an athlete must:

- A. obey training rules
- B. eat the right foods
- C. get plenty of rest every night
- D. concentrate on studies to keep grades high
- E. develop good sportsmanship
- F. learn to obey instructions implicitly
- G. develop character
- H. prepare for a fuller post school life through experience gained as an athlete

The Kouts School has produced many fine athletes. It would be impossible to name them all and no attempt would be made at the risk of leaving someone out. But certainly a few should be mentioned and at the top of the list there should be one name and that is:

Stewart Hofferth - the greatest baseball player ever to come out of Kouts School, who became a catcher for the Boston Braves and then the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League. Few towns the size of Kouts can claim such an accomplishment.

Prior to building the present high school in 1936-37 no records of athletes were kept or no one knows of their whereabouts.

Not having a gymnasium in those days the boys were at a disadvantage. In order to prepare for a basketball game they were forced to practice on their outside court, come wind, snow, sleet or rain. How would present day athletes react to such conditions?

Upon moving into the new school all of this changed as did the boys. They became interested in basketball.

Prior to this Kouts had been noted only for their baseball superiority.

With Charles McMurtry as principal a complete athletic program was introduced and it could not have been in more capable hands as everyone highly respected his ability.

The most important single innovation of the whole program was the plan of the 5th and 6th grade boys having practice one night a week to teach them the fundamentals of basketball. The 7th and 8th graders had another night as did the high school, all in the same gym. This was the beginning of a winning team. The boys liked the new gym and had as coach Bill Eader, the 5th grade teacher, a good reliable instructor who had played the game. He worked hard at fundamentals and the boys worked hard to measure up.

The first few years in the new building were "lean" ones. Although the facilities were there, time was against them. Coach Tom Eader who had worked so earnestly, moved on to a better position and Coach Luis French took over in 1940-41.

"Louie" as everyone called him, was a very congenial type of person and had a way of making every member do his utmost to please. His first two years were average but after that the hard work begun down in the grades began to pay dividends.

Kouts won the 1943 South County Tourney and ended the season with a respectable 13-8 record. In 1944 the Mustangs had a 16 to 5 rating. And it was in the 1943-44 year that Coach French led the boys to the baseball championship.

The year 1944-45 was a banner year for all concerned for the boys reigned as county champions in both baseball and basketball. And when our baseball team met Chesterton in the final clash, Roger Adams pitched a no-hit game defeating Chesterton 16 to 0 for his greatest effort.

The basketball team followed the same pattern and went undefeated for the entire season. They defeated a strong Morgan team in the South County Tourney

After finishing the season undefeated, then came the Gary Sectionals with 10 teams from Lake County and 10 from Porter County, and Kouts advanced to the final game by defeating Gary Tolleston. But in this game Kouts got off to a poor start, couldn't recover, and thus ended the dream of going down state for a gallant group of cagers. Balm for their wounded spirits was defeating Portage (that school who had a habit of pouring it on smaller schools) 36 to 7.

In 1946 the team won the South County Tourney, then on to defeat the Tourney favorite, Portage, but were stopped in the Gary Sectionals by Edison.

This team wasn't supposed to win after losing seven who graduated in 1945, another gone to the Navy, taking eight in all from the first ten of 1945 once defeated team. But what was lacking in experience and ability was more than replaced with desire and will to win.

By 1959 Coach Floyd Johnson took the Mustangs to a second place finish in the baseball season.

But the greatest team to come out of Kouts High School was that of Cross Country coached by Bob Gray, who won 10 and lost 2 meets. Phil Gingerich and Fred Pumroy took the first two places. The team placed second in Sectional among 23 teams entered, and earned the right to participate in the State Meet.

In the State Meet the Mustangs tied for 9th place. It marked the first time a small school of 130 pupils in high school were ever known to break into the top 10 teams in the state.

A resume of athletic accomplishments in the last decade include:

Five Dedicated Teachers

One of the greatest stories told and one of the finest lessons taught in American Literature is found in Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Great Stone Face."

As most of you remember, Ernest, the story's hero, spends most of his life waiting for a hero to return home and fulfill the legend of the Great Stone Face. And you also remember that Ernest himself was finally recognized as the likeness. Ernest earned this recognition through faithful devotion and dedication to his home community.

Five dedicated teachers who were born, reared, lived, and served in the Kouts community, deserve recognition equal to that received by Ernest.

These five persons are Miss Frederica Witham, Mrs. Vera Kruell Pfeiffer, Mrs. Anita Rosenbaum Wiencken, Miss Loretta Lauer and Miss Jane Dittmer.

Vera Kruell Pfeiffer

Vera Kruell Pfeiffer attended elementary and high school in Kouts and graduated in 1912. Vera first attended Valparaiso University, then Chicago University and Lewis Institute in Chicago where she received her Bachelor of Science degree. In the fall of 1917 she began teaching Home Economics in Kouts High School, a position she held until her marriage. Always interested in professional improvement she took refresher courses at Columbia University, Purdue University, and Ball State.

Anita Rosenbaum Wiencken

Anita Rosenbaum Wiencken, too, received all her elementary and high school training in Kouts, graduating in 1918. After the 12 week summer course in Valparaiso University she began teaching in Morrison School where she taught two years. She transferred to Cook for another two years and then to Kouts School where she taught third and fourth grades for twenty-two years until her marriage in 1944. During the summers Miss Rosenbaum continued her training at Indiana University and Boulder, Colorado.

Jane Dittmer

Miss Jane Dittmer was born in Kouts just a few months after her family moved to the Kouts community. She received her elementary and high school education in Kouts graduating from High School in 1930. She received her A.B. degree from Indiana University in 1934 and returned to Kouts to teach. She has been teaching continuously since 1934 and has shown the same professional zeal in serving the community that her father and brother have shown in their profession. In the course of time, Miss Dittmer has received her Master's Degree from Chicago University and presently serves Kouts High School in the capacity of Director of Guidance.

Loretta Lauer

Loretta Lauer attended elementary school at Lauer School, graduated from Kouts High School in 1920 and after completing a twelve week summer term at Valparaiso University, she began her teaching career at Stowell School. Miss Lauer also taught at Lauer School for four years and two at Cook School, and came to Kouts in 1927 and taught here until 1944. Miss Lauer continued her education during summers, and through extension work received her Bachelor's degree from Ball State in 1940. After having taught in Mishawaka City Schools for sixteen years, Miss Lauer returned to Kouts in 1960 and has been teaching in the school since. All told she has served Pleasant Township schools for 29 years.

Hazel Watson Filer

Mrs. Hazel Watson Filer does not bear the similarity to our hero Ernest that the other five do, because she was neither born in the community nor did she live here as long as the others. However, it is note worthy that Mrs. Filer has served Pleasant Township for a total of twenty-eight years, at Stowell two years, Lauer two years, and three at Cook School, with twenty-one years in Kouts School. Mrs. Filer received her Bachelor's degree from Indiana State in 1954.

Kouts Future Farmers of America

"Learning to do, Doing to learn Earning to live, Living to serve."

The Future Farmer of America Organization is truly American. The keen desire to develop skills, necessary in Agriculture, to develop leadership necessary in our democracy, and to develop methods of earning in this capitalistic system, are basic in this youth activity. Thus the above creed is most sincere when repeated by a Kouts F.F.A. member.

Future Farmer of America membership is limited to boys studying Vocational Agriculture in High School. It is a part of Agriculture, which is this nation's largest single industry. The production, processing, and distribution of agricultural products employs more than a third of America's working force. In turn, farmers are a $14 billion-a-year customer of industry and labor in addition to the billions farmers spend for consumer goods. Vocational agriculture and the F.F.A. members make the most effective program yet developed for training boys to become established in the agricultural occupation of their choice and to be good citizens.

The Kouts F.F.A. Chapter was organized in the first semester of the 1955-56 school year. Considerable planning, visiting of other Chapters, and the attending of district and state meetings preceded. A short, but complete constitution was drawn up by the members. This along with necessary applications resulted in Charter No. 395 of the Indiana F.F.A. Association to be given to the Kouts Chapter of Kouts High School, dated Dec. 31, 1955.

The early activities were limited, but the enthusiasm began to increase under the direction of Ron Sommers, our Chapters' first president, and Wilbur Lippert our advisor.

In 1956-57, the chapter began to take an active part in district and state meetings, as well as expanding our local program with Marshall Heinold as president. That year resulted in the Chapter organizing a "Land Rental Committee" with Barry Fritz as chairman. Thirty-two acres of poor land were rented, and fortunately a profit was made. This was divided equally between the chapter treasury and the members.

In 1957-58 our chapter was honored by Barry Fritz as chapter president. The land rental jumped to 120 tillable acres. This was the first year the Kouts Chapter earned honors by receiving banners in District competition placing 1st in crops judging and 2nd in shop. Marvin Heinold received a "Hoosier Farmer Degree", the 1st ever received by a Porter County student.

The 1958-59 year found Marvin Heinold at the wheel. More activities were included, but the land renting of 120 tillable acres continued to be our source of income. Our grain team placed second in the district. The highlight of achievements was the honor given to Marvin Heinold, for he was chosen President of District I, and became one of the State directors. That year Tom Sommers and Dennis Gesse received "Hoosier Farmer Degrees".

In 1959-60 year, Tom Tucker headed our chapter as president. We continued to gain experience in farming by renting 110 acres and shared the profits with our members. This was one of our better years because we added 3 banners in District activities. This included Grain judging, our secretary's book, and our shop team. Dennis Gesse was honored to serve as District I treasurer.

Dennis Gesse continued to lead our chapter in achievements as president in 1960-61. That year our chapter continued to learn by actual farming but with more fertile land. We rented 2 tracts of land (and have to date) totaling 115 acres from Harold Heinold and Virgil Heinold. That year Roger Timm was elected District I treasurer. This was a "Banner" year for our chapter earned 5 more banners. Grain judging, treasurer's book and reporter's book, essay and most difficult of all, we placed first in the Chapter meeting contest. Even though we were beaten in Sectional competition, we were one of the top 12 in Indiana. Our new activity was our "Chicken Barbecue" for all F.F.A. families.

In 1961-62 our Chapter held its own with Roger Timm as president. We again shared a profit with our members from actual farming. Three banners were added by our members, in Grain judging, reporter's book and treasurer's book. Our new activity was 6 members taking part in a 3 day leadership school at Camp Limberlost at Lake Oliver. In this year the Kouts Chapter had the state champion Poultry and Egg Judging Team. The team members were Richard Hall, Vernon Nuest, Larry Nuest and Tom Sommers. They traveled to Kansas City, Mo. to the National Convention, placing in the Silver Emblem group.

In 1962-63 we learned to cooperate more efficiently by sharing farm profits with our members at the rate of $3.05 per hour of actual labor. This "Banner Year" found Brian Gesse as president. Our chapter added 5 banners, 4 District firsts namely in Grain judging, Treasurers Book, Reporters Book, and Shop team. Our exhibit was 2nd. Tom Heiniger received his Hoosier Farmer Degree. Our most memorable speaker at the "Chicken Barbeque" last June was Nels Ackerson who now is the National F.F.A. President.

Our 1963-64 president was Darl Jarnecke. The program of work was similar with the Land rental continuing with practical experiences and a profit to members of over $3 per hour. The Indiana State Fair was again visited with a Crops and a Poultry & Egg judging team. Five more District banners were earned, namely: 1st in Exhibit and Treasurers book and 2nd in Crops judging, shop and reporters book. District leadership meetings, sectional camp, State convention and a "Smorgasbord" styled Family nite at the Valparaiso Union were the highlights of the years activities.

During 1964-65, Ron Miller has continued to lead our Chapter at the same pace of the past. The Chapter will be represented in even more activities throughout this year. The keen desire to prepare for life, with rounded basics of human skills and talents, will again make this year one to be noteworthy as the beginning of the second century of Life at Kouts, Indiana, U.S.A.

Kouts Music Boosters

On January 12, 1938 Miss Louise Schueffner, Music Director for the Kouts School, called a meeting of all the mothers of Kouts band members.

Eighteen mothers attended this meeting and formed the "Kouts Band Boosters" organization (not wanting to limit the membership to Band Mothers but open to anyone interested.) Mrs. Emil Hofferth was elected President, Mrs. Aaron Egli Vice-President, and Mrs. Joseph Vogel, Sr. Sec'y.-Treasurer. Meetings were to be held twice monthly.

At the January 26, 1938 meeting a Constitution and By-Laws prepared by Mrs. Ashby, Mrs. Wolf, and Mrs. Schreiner, were presented and approved.

Due to gasoline rationing during World War II the Constitution was amended on January 27, 1943 to have only one meeting a month.

It was at the March 9, 1956 meeting that a new Constitution prepared by Mrs. Roderick was adopted that changed the name of the organization to the Kouts Music Boosters. This name more accurately described the function of the group: to support all music activities, not just the band. The present officers are President Eugene Vogel, Vice-President Enoch Edwards, Secretary Mrs. Hollandsworth, and Treasurer Mrs. Joseph Simic.

Pleasant Township Clubs

Lodges were formed in Kouts to satisfy the needs of many for fraternizing with friends as well as carrying an insurance feature.

The Modern Woodmen of America Camp 4572 was formed in the 1890's and the Odd Fellows Lodge of Kouts No. 822 in 1905 with Fred Albright as Noble Grand. In 1912 there were fifty members in the latter.

In July 1905 Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 691 was instituted with sixty-three charter members and Lettie Turner as Noble Grand. The Foresters of America Court No. 8 was listed at this time, too. The Royal Neighbors were formed in 1908 with twenty-one charter members and of all the lodges they are the only one still functioning.

American Legion Hall

American Legion Post No. 301

After World War I the American Legion was organized in 1920 under the leadership of Luther B. Wise who served as first Commander with J. Raymond Benkie as Adjutant. In 1921 under the commandship of Dr. S. E. Dittmer the membership increased to 52 members. It was named the William Radilyack Post since he was the first veteran that Kouts lost from its ranks - not in active duty but the result of a traffic accident near Kouts.

As the town approaches its centennial there is a prodigious number of clubs, some service, some social, some both, but in the words of a news reporter of the dim past "a bounteous lunch was served and a good time was had by all" is the ending of the club meeting.

The Kouts Woman's Club

"Let there be no strife between me and thee, because we are all brethren."

This motto was adopted in 1909 when three prominent women of the Kouts community, Mrs. H. V. Deopker, Mrs. Frank O'Brien and Mrs. C. P. Hockett, decided to enlist other women in the town to form a woman's organization. They sent invitational cards to all women who might be interested and the meeting was set for May 21, 1909 at O'Brien's Hall in Kouts. Nineteen women responded and the Kouts Woman's Club was organized that day. The first officers chosen were Pres. Mrs. J. J. Overmeyer, Vice Pres. Mrs. Robert Biggart, Sec. Mrs. Frank O'Brien, and Treas. Mrs. C. P. Hockett.

In the beginning the purpose of the club was social. Plans were made to meet every other Friday from 2 to 4 p.m. and dues were set at 10¢ per member.

The charter members were Mesdames, Jerome Bartholomew, Robert Biggart, Porter Childers, H. V. Deopker, C. P. Hockett, J. E. Jones, Ned Jones, George Maxwell, P. O. Norris, Frank O'Brien, M. P. O'Brien, J. J. Overmeyer, W. Pierce, and Elijah Wood.

Through the years rules and regulations were adopted to fit the needs of the club. Membership was originally set at 21. This was later amended to accept 40 members. Social affairs continued into the second year, members with musical ability entertained and later, members of their families performed for the group.

Interest in the Federation of Woman's Clubs began with Mrs. O. P. Kinsey's invitation to attend the Woman's Club Convention on May 9, 1911. Mrs. Deopker and Mrs. Ned Jones were delegates of the Kouts group but it was not until 1915 that three members of the Valparaiso Woman's Club attended a Kouts meeting to apprise the members of the advantages, privileges, and benefits of affiliating with the Porter County Federated Clubs. In 1921 Kouts joined the Indiana Federation of Clubs and hosted their first convention in 1923.

The first member of the Kouts Club to serve as president of Porter County Federated Clubs was Mrs. Emil Hofferth, and two others have served since, Mrs. Art Carpenter 1944-46 and Mrs. John Starks 1952-54.

The overall objective of the Federation is human welfare and as such they contribute to: Student Loan Funds, Latin-American Fellowship, Red Cross, Penny Art Fund, Musical Pennies, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A.,

Kouts Chamber of Commerce

This first established business men's group was organized on May 22, 1944 with the following 24 men attending a dinner at Green's Restaurant:

Father A. S. Kondziela, Carol Root, Dr. S. E. Dittmer, Herman and Edward Kosanke, Harry Carr, Emil Hofferth, Cedric Hiatt, William Denzine, Frank Weiniger, Glenn Crouch, Roy Wandrey, James Herring, Elmer Stowers, Howard Jensen, Howard Reed, Oscar Maxwell, John Schumacker, Frank Green, Desilver Lyon, Harold Jasper-son, Alfred Rasmussen, J. Raymond Benkie, and Henry Dux.

Carol Root acted as chairman and gave suggestions as to the purposes of the group.

Nominations were made for officers with these results: Pres. Carol Root, Vice-Pres. Harold Jaspersen, and Sec-Treas. J. Raymond Benkie.

It was to be called the Chamber of Commerce and other business men, members of the Town Board, area ministers, Farm Bureau members, and others interested in community improvement were invited to join.

Some of the accomplishments of the Chamber of Commerce alone or in cooperation with other civic groups in and around Kouts are: bank organization, widening and paving of Main Street, lighting of the softball diamond, Highways #8 and #49, subdivision growth, town planning, cumulative sewer fund, industrial foundation, street lighting and utility improvement, and starting of the local newspaper.

The group meets the second Monday of each month. President and Year or Years Served

Kouts and vicinity has three Home Demonstration Clubs. The aims and goals are the same for all three clubs and shall be given once with the history of each club in the order of inception:

The aims of the club are as follows:

1. To interest more young homemakers to form home demonstration clubs.
2. To provide lessons that meet current needs of homemakers.
3. To encourage chorus membership.
4. To encourage and support 4-H work.
5. To pass on leaflets and bulletins to someone new when through with them.

The long-time goals are:

1. To improve relationships among family members.
2. To develop better management of time and money and thus increase income.
3. To develop leadership through community responsibility.
4. To improve family health through good nutrition.
5. To reach every family in the community with helpful information.

The Kouts Neighbors Home Economics Club

1. The Kouts Neighbors Home Economics Club was organized in 1931 at the home of Mrs. Herman Chael. Among the charter members were the hostess Mrs. Chael, Mrs. William Denzine, Mrs. Caroline Hamann, Mrs. Gus Krueger, Mrs. Nelson Metherd, and Mrs. Herman Wieberg. This club ceased meetings but was reorganized in 1942 and since then has shown continuous growth and interest.

The officers for 1965 are: Pres. Mrs. Junior Miller, Vice-Pres. Mrs. Joseph Shutske, Sec. Mrs. Fred Deli, and Treas. Mrs. Glenn Crouch.

Lamplighters Home Demonstration Club

2. The Lamplighters Home Demonstration Club was organized on October 18, 1949. The charter members were the Mesdames Loren Betz, Paul Drazer, Luis French, Fred Hamann, Richard Hannon, William Hefron, Walter Heiniger, Gerald Hitz, John Hilliard, Miles Jones, James Kosanke, Wilbur Lippert, Alden Miller, Leslie Oehlman, Albert Olsen, George Struve, Joe Vogel, Jr., Paul Wadsworth, and Roy Wandrey.

The first officers were: Pres. Marge Lippert, Vice-Pres. Naomi Betz, Sec. Mary Drazer, Treas. Kathryn French, Publicity Chrm. Fern Wadsworth.

There have been many interesting lessons presented to the club with the first lesson on Pasteurization of Milk and Dishwashing given in October 1949. Other lessons dealt with throughout the years are: Color in the Home, Fabric Painting, Glove Making, Brighter Wash Days, Care of Electrical Appliances, Broiler Meals, Weight Control, Reupholstering, Outdoor Cookery, Lampshades, Effective Speech, Cake Decorating, In the Freezer and Out.

In January 1961 the Lamplighters helped organize the sister club in Kouts, the Starlighters.

At Christmas time each year club members, their husbands and guests go caroling to the shut-ins in the community and distribute boxes of fruit, home made cookies, and candy to older residents.

The present officers are: Pres. Mrs. Russel Girton, Vice-Pres. Mrs. Leonard Antrim, Sec. Mrs. Conrad Shutske, Treas. Mrs. Merle Schoon and Reporter Mrs. James Kosanke.

Starlighters Home Demonstration Club

3. The Starlighters Home Demonstration Club was started in February of 1962.

The charter members of the Starlighters are: Mrs. Jack Nuest, Mrs. Victor Martin, Mrs. Donald Gingerich, Mrs. Robert Hott, Mrs. Gene Wise, Mrs. Marion Birky, Mrs. James Heinold, Mrs. Charles Schneckenger, Mrs.

Ruth and Jim's
OLD RIVER INN
Baums Bridge

James Yergler, Mrs. Frank Holzapfel, Mrs. Monty Helmuth, and Mrs. Harold Fritz.

Serving the club as first year officers were: President; Mrs. Harold Fritz, Vice President Mrs. Jack Nuest; Secretary, Mrs. Monty Helmuth; Treasurer, Mrs. Donald Gingerich; Reporter, Mrs. Charles Schnekenburger.

Present officers are: President, Mrs. Charles Schnekenburger; Vice President, Mrs. Gene Wise; Secretary, Mrs. Larry Strong; Treasurer, Mrs. Roland Good; Reporter, Mrs. Gordon Williams.

The Morrison Community Club

The Morrison Community Club was organized in May 1911 at the home of Mrs. Bert Tillotson now known as the Gordon Smith place. The only surviving charter member is Mrs. Lulu Starkey.

Some of the activities engaged in through the years were quilting, tying comforters, sewing rag rugs, serving lunch at auction sales, sewing for the needy of the locality, and helping members in time of sickness and sorrow.

The membership today of 17 is unusual in that there are four mother-daughters represented by: Mrs. Rebecca Minton and two daughters, Mrs. Allie Russell and Mrs. Anna Robbins; Mrs. Minnie Neuschafer and daughter, Mrs. June Hanselman; Mrs. Mae Pegg and daughter, Mrs. Betty Conner; and Mrs. Emil Lippert and daughter, Mrs. Wilda Mitzner.

The present officers of the club are: President Mrs. Emil Lippert, Vice-President Mrs. Esther Neuffer, Secretary Mrs. Wilda Mitzner, and Treasurer Mrs. Allie Russell.

Farm Bureau

Farm Bureau is the voice of agriculture in Indiana and in the United States. It is an organization of Farmers. It is voluntary, non-governmental, non-sectarian, and is non-partisan in development of its policies, working with both political parties in getting its programs into action.

Farm Bureau's programs are aimed at improving the economic and social environment of farmers and improving their net income.

Their many youth programs and social events contribute much to family enjoyment of rural living and development of future agricultural leaders.

The Farm Bureau was organized in 1919 in Pleasant Township with O. B. Wells, J. A. Warren, William Kniefel Sr., E. E. Starkey, and Somer Smith giving much of their time to the development of the organization.

The first officers were: President, O. B. Wells; Vice President, John Dunkel, Program; Vice President, J. A. Warren, Educational; Vice President, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Women; Vice President, Mrs. John Dunkel, Poultry; Vice President, Joe Heinold, Crops; Vice President, Albert Heimberg, Stock; Vice President, Mrs. J. A. Warren, Boys and Girls; Vice President, Edward Klemz, Finance; Vice President, Paul Titus, Social; Secretary, Mrs. Steve Mockler; Association Director, E. E. Starkey; Fair Director, Harry Mockler; Marketing Instructor, John Dunkel.

In 1964 there were 197 members with only E. E. Starkey, Emil Lippert and Elmer Werner the lone survivors of the charter members.

The 1965 Farm Bureau officers are: Pres. Elmer Werner, Vice-Pres. Kenneth Temple, Sec.-Treas. Mrs. Kenneth Temple, and Mrs. Herbert Hamann, Women's Leader. Mrs. Elmer Werner is Porter County Women's Leader.

The annual dues were $5.00 a year in the beginning and now are double that amount.

Quad County Organ Club

Following several monthly gatherings of interested organ players, twenty-two persons gathered at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Floyd Gratner of Rensselaer on Sunday, April 29, 1962 to organize the Quad County Organ Club.

Officers elected to serve the new organization were: Mrs. John W. Selman of Kouts, President; Mrs. Floyd Gratner of Rensselaer, Vice President; and Miss Minerva Wuethrich of Francesville, Secretary-Treasurer.

The name of the club was derived by the fact that the membership came from four counties, namely - Jasper, Porter, Pulaski and Tippecanoe.

Charter members are: Floyd and Etta Gratner; Dale and Vera Ledman; Ralph and Gladys Neville; John and Charlotte Selman; Josephine Speicher; and Jay and Effie Spencer.

The meetings of the Quad County Organ Club are held on the last Sunday of each month at the various members homes.

Present membership consists of: Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gratner of Rensselaer; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ledman and Betty of Lafayette; Mr. and Mrs. Arden Mendel, Brenda and A. J. of Kouts; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Neville of Rensselaer; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Selman, John Francis, Neil and Matthew of Kouts; Mr. and Mrs. John Speicher, Beverly, Leah and Johnny of Francesville; and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Spencer of DeMotte. Mr. and Mrs. Regal Spencer of DeMotte are honorary members, Mr. Spencer having taught a number of the organ club members.

Pi Epsilon Kappa Sorority

A group of young Catholic women met at the home of Mrs. John Smutko on August 8, 1947 to organize Psi Chapter of Pi Epsilon Kappa Catholic Sorority. Pi Epsilon Kappa was founded by Mrs. Edward McCullough of East Chicago in 1939, dedicated to charitable works and the study of the Catholic faith. It is well known in the Calumet region and Psi made the thirtieth chapter.

Mrs. John Smutko, as the organizer, called the first meeting and the charter members were Mrs. Leonard Kunzler and Mrs. Leonard Weinkauff of LaCrosse, Mrs. Joseph Vogel, Jr., Mrs. William Hefron and Mrs. John Smutko of Kouts. The first officers were president Mrs. William Hefron, secretary-treasurer Mrs. Gerald Shutske, chaplain Mrs. Leonard Weinkauff, and publicity Mrs. Conrad Shutske.

Meetings were held twice a month, the first meeting of each month devoted to the study of the Catholic faith, and the second a social meeting. All money raised by Psi Chapter is used for charitable works without undue publicity, such as St. Jude's Orphanage in East Chicago, Boys Town in Schererville, and 500 bags of candy yearly to Beatty Hospital at Christmas time. Many needy families in the Kouts area also benefit. Scholarships were given to a number of students through the years. A Sweetheart Dance held annually and a biennial convention both held in Chicago are social events.

At present there are two provinces with 40 chapters.

The 1965 officers are president Mrs. Richard Hannon, secretary Mrs. Raymond Hall, treasurer Mrs. William Hefron, and chaplain Mrs. Joseph Vogel, Jr. The sponsors are Mrs. Joseph Simic and Mrs. Roland Graham.

Kouts Lions Club

The Kouts Lions Club, a member club of Lions International, was chartered on Thursday, February 4 1960, with 25 members. The charter banquet was held at the American Legion Post in Kouts with a large group of Lions on hand for the event from 15 clubs, in surrounding communities.

The original Charter Officers were: President, H. P. Hudson; First Vice President, William Gesse; Second Vice President, Al Miller; Third Vice President, Vernon Dye; Treasurer, Lester Rhynard; Secretary, Tom Quinn; Lion Tamer, Richard Claussen; Tail Twister, William Johnston; Directors, Russell Girton, James Kosanke, Gilbert Swing, and Floyd Gesse.

The Lions have sponsored and participated in many community projects such as: building a picnic shelter for the community (which was destroyed by wind later), co-sponsor of a boy scout to the scout jamboree, support of the IFYE program, aid to needy families within the community, assistance with the building of the horseshoe and basketball court at the school grounds, sponsored the United Nations Contest at Kouts High School, assisted with the Porter County Bloodmobile, participation in the Porter County Fair and the sponsoring of a Queen candidate, and furnishing eyeglasses to needy residents.

The prime state and national projects of Lionism are of great importance to the Lions. These are, Eye Bank (the transplant of corneal tissue), Sight Conservation, Leader Dog School at Rochester, Michigan, and the Cancer Clinic for research and treatment at Indianapolis. The Kouts Lions have been very active in all these projects as has been evidenced by their many fund raising activities such as Candy for Cancer day etc.

In 1964 the club also had many beautiful trees placed around the Kouts School yard for future beautification, as well as to provide a good subject for study for the students.

Another real highlight in the club's activities has been the annual Auction sale. This provided the club with funds to carry on its work and provided the farmer and housewife with a market for their non-essential items of machinery and personal items.

The motto of Lions is "We Serve". The Kouts Lions always welcomes suggestions as to how it can better serve its community and mankind.

There are currently 26 members in the club. Meetings are always held in the evening of the first Thursday of each month with dinner. Guests are always welcome as are new members.

HEINOLD HOG MARKET

is proud to have "sprung up" in Kouts.

We appreciate the good will shown toward our organization by the farmers of the area and the inspiration of the businessmen and Chamber of Commerce to stimulate our efforts and growth, so that Kouts can claim to be the home of
THE WORLDS LARGEST COUNTRY HOG BUYERS.
